The Union Meeting at Nashville—Denunciation of the Nashville Convention—Approval of the Compromise—Appeal to the North, &c.

Pursuant to a call very numerously signed by most distinguished members of both parties, a large concourse of citizens assembled at the Court-house on the 23d inst., for the purpose of giving an expression of popular sentiment in regard to the great question of the day.

The meeting went off with a degree of unanimity seldom witnessed, and was characterized by much spirit and enthusiasm.

The meeting was called to order at 12 o'clock. Judge Cahill was called to the chair.

The speakers were the Hon. Andrew Ewing and Major Donelson. The former gentleman supported, with much ability, the course of the Tennessee delegation in Congress, in the adjustment of the questions before that body, in its recent session, and administered a rebuke to those who talked of disunion and secession as a ground of redress for public grievances.

The following is a synopsis of the resolutions passed:—

That we are a Union-loving and law abiding people, and recognize submission to the laws as the primary duty of all good citizens. That no State has the constitutional right to secede; and any such attempt would be revolutionary, and its consequences entail civil strife and bloodshed. That the abolition mobs and riots in the Northern cities, for preventing the execution of the Fugitive Slave law, and their abolition conventions, and the continued agitation of the slavery issue, will, if persisted in, paralyze all our energies, and lead to the total alienation of one section of the Union from the other. That we maintain the right of the people of the States, whenever palpably, intolerably, and unconstitutionally oppressed, to throw off the chains that oppress them; but this right is involuntary in its character, and there is no present use for its exercise. Therefore, we see no need for a Southern Congress or Convention. That we unite around the constituted authority of the country, for the maintenance of the supremacy of the laws; and, in a spirit of kindness, we respectfully warn our Northern brethren that an attempt to repeal, or failure to enforce the Fugitive Slave Law, will unite all the South, and most probably end in a total separation of the States. That the Compromise measures of Congress meet our approbation, as the best that, under the circumstances, could be adopted, and we pledge ourselves to them to give them our hearty support.

DISCOVERY ON THE DAN.

We learn that the recent flood has revealed a strange sight on the banks of the Dan, embraced within Capt. Wm. Irwine's plantation a few miles from this town. It is the exhibition of numerous bones or skeletons of human beings—pieces of earthenware, Indian hatchets, bark, fire coals, &c. Some of the skeletons seem to have been buried in a sitting posture, and are nearly whole. There is no doubt but these are the bones of Indians, traces of whose encampments on the banks of the Dan are still visible. But to us the mystery is how they came to be buried in what seems to have been an encampment. Probably the earth caved in upon them and buried the poor creatures alive. The late flood washed the banks of the river so as to expose many of these bones to the eye, and upon examination, we learn that a variety of curiosities were found in connection. We contemplate visiting the scene in a few days and will let our readers hear all about the matter.—Milton (N. C.) Chronicle.

LOSING A SISTER ON MONTE.

A robbery occurred, a short time ago, in Sacramento City, and among the articles stolen were a number of miniatures. A few evenings afterward a young man was observed by a policeman to enter the Eldorado, and after losing all his money, he bet a gold ring and the miniature on a card, and the policeman thinking the miniature might lead to the detection of the thief, arrested the gentleman and took charge of the miniature lady, which by the way, was beautiful.—Several gentlemen who came forward the next morning to assist the young man out of his difficulty, testified that the miniature was that of an only sister, a lovely girl of sixteen. What will the young lady say when she ascertains that she has been laid upon the monte table, gambled away, afterwards arrested and put in the toms, next morning brought before the Recorder, admired by the members of the bar, and after many compliments, finally restored to the unworthy brother.
