

A FAMILY QUARREL.

It is neither our province or desire to intermeddle with the family quarrels of the Democracy. But we can but respect the mainly independence which prompted Mr. Fleming's onslaught upon the "Raleigh Standard," in the House of Commons, on yesterday, for the arrogant and dictatorial tone of that paper, in connection with his refusal to support the Caucus nominee for State Treasurer. It was a most refreshing episode in Legislative monotony—a most beautiful exhibition of "harmonious Democracy"—a most memorable epoch in the calendar of the "Standard." The Editor of that journal will have grown older in his present faith and much grayer in the service, before he will have forgotten the merited castigation which Mr. F. administered, and, probably, before he will again attempt to lecture a man for disregarding party trammels, and following the honest dictates of his judgment.

While we say this much, however, we really feel bound to protest against the production, by Mr. Fleming, of that famous document, wherein the Editor of the "Standard," but a few years back, "felt like pouring out his whole soul," in speaking of Henry Clay. That was the "most unkindest out of all!" True, the provocation was great—but the punishment was too cruel! Mr. F. may have deemed it hard, that a mere neophyte (compared with himself,) in the mysteries of Loco Focoism, should have attempted to "read him out"—but, then, he should have had some regard for a "man's feelings." He acted in direct conflict to the best principles laid down in the "Pleasures of memory!"

CONGRESS.

Congress has been in session for nearly three weeks. Nothing has yet been done beyond the ordinary business at the commencement of each session. But there have been many things suggested which Committees have now under consideration.

We are happy to learn that there is an earnest determination in a large majority of the members of both Houses, to shut out all needless or aggravating discussion, and especially to keep free from the exciting questions which occupied so much of the time of the last session. This gratifying account of what Congress has determined to do and not do, is confirmed by the "Intelligencer" of a recent date. After felicitating its readers that the apprehensions of the patriotic classes of our fellow-citizens that the present session of Congress would be spent in the same unhappy conflicts as was by far the greater part of the late long session, are not as yet realized, and, it trusts, are not likely to be, it says:

"A firebrand was indeed cast into the House of Representatives, early in the last week, apparently with the hope of kindling a flame in that House and reviving the topic of last year's discord; but it found in that body no element to feed upon—excited there no sensation but disgust—and was most summarily disposed of. We do not believe that there is any organized purpose, in any part of the House or of the Senate, to reenact the scenes of the last session; and we indulge hopeful trust that the results of the present session will be such as will confirm the public peace, promote the public welfare, and redound to the honor of the Union."

FOR THE REGISTER.

MR. GALES:—As you already know, the election for State Treasurer came off yesterday, and that faithful and competent officer, Charles Hinton, was beaten. It may be interesting, if not instructive to some of the Whig Counties in this State to learn how this result was brought about. To be elected, it was necessary, as the Journals will show, that the successful candidate should receive 82 votes. Mr. Courts, the Democratic candidate, was elected and received 84. Of those who voted for him you may find the following five gentlemen, representing or pretending to represent strong Whig Counties and District, to-wit, Mr. W. W. Avery, of Burke; Mr. J. P. Gordon, of Wilkes; Mr. James Sharpe, of Buncombe; Mr. C. Cotton, of Chatham; and Senator W. H. Thomas, of Cherokee, Macon and Haywood. Suppose, Mr. Editor, that those five gentlemen had done as their constituents themselves would have done, how would the result of this important election have been? Let us see: 82 votes were necessary for a choice—Courts (democrat) received 84; Hinton (whig) 77. Take those five from Courts and he would be left with 79; give the same gentlemen to Hinton (and he was entitled to their votes) and he would have 82, the exact number that was necessary to a choice. What will Burke, Wilkes, Buncombe, Chatham, Cherokee, Macon and Haywood, with their overwhelming Whig majorities, think of this vote of their un-representatives? WHAT OUGHT THEY TO THINK OF IT! Further comment is unnecessary; a fearful day of retribution is coming.

Yours, &c.,

BLUE RIDGE.

[We commend the foregoing merited strictures of our Correspondent to those Whig counties, that have been so grossly misrepresented in the particular alluded to. They will not forget, we hope, to apply to the gentlemen designated above the same test of unfitness for office, which they have prescribed in the case of our efficient and faithful Treasurer. ED. REG.]

Mr. CORWIN's Treasury report is highly spoken of, as a very able document. Its facts and figures—its suggestions and recommendations—its clearness and comprehensiveness—are all worthy of praise. It is a document from an American statesman, of which the whole country may well be proud.

European Life and Manners in Familiar Letters to Friends, by Henry Colman.
Around the life and manners of the Europeans and especially around our kindred nation, the English, there has always been an interest which has grown stronger as we have read from time to time of them and of their customs. While we have books without number describing England and English society, we seldom meet with one which admits us into the precinct of private life, and especially life among the nobility. Next to going and living among them, and partaking, in propria persona, of their generous hospitality, we enjoy ourselves in reading the letters of our countryman, Henry Colman. These letters, written originally to his family and friends in America, are in a style so simple and natural, and Mr. Colman's descriptions of the great persons and great places that he visited, so vivid and life-like, that we go where he goes and see what he sees. With him we gaze upon the mighty current of existence, forever pouring through the strand and Piccadilly and Temple Bar. We saunter through Hyde Park and look with wonder upon the gilded equipages and gay liveries of the nobility, and lose ourselves in the flood of human life. With him, we look upon the House of Peers, that body of men which we have so long wished to see, and here and there recognize those whose distinguished service and brilliant talents have cast a brighter halo around the escutcheon of England and have made themselves world-renowned. Then we push, squeeze (as Colman says we must do) scrouge our way through a London crowd, to catch a glimpse of her majesty, and with the vast multitude we shout "God save the Queen." We visit the Duke of Richmond, and wander through his grounds, hunt deer in his parks, and shoot wild game upon his lakes and meadows. We spend Christmas with Sir Charles Morgan, and Easter with Lady Byron.

To some it may seem a trifling matter to be informed, that one noble Lord has fifty hunters in his stable, and another eighty fox hounds in his kennels; that one has eighty servants and another one hundred; that all eat from gold and silver, and dress in velvet and satin; but it is interesting to an enquiring mind to observe the differences which distinctions of rank and accumulation of wealth have made. While Mr. Colman delights in describing magnificent palaces and sumptuous feasts, he touches very lightly the contrasts of poverty and distress, which constantly present themselves. This is natural, as the humane mind delights not in the contemplation of evils which it cannot remedy. We never feel more disposed to thank God for our own simplicity and the universal enjoyment of the necessities of life than when comparing the splendour and luxury of the rich and the squalid misery of the poor, in other lands. If we have none who can boast of such elegance and refinement, we have none who are in such abject poverty.

Mr. Colman seems to have been a man of amiable character and warm heart, a Unitarian in religion, sympathising alike with Catholic or Protestant, provided they are not zealous for their faith.

The "Bug" also at Home again.

I HAVE just returned the second time from Boston, N. York, and Philadelphia, having spent nearly all of August and September in said Cities, getting up our CLOTHING, every article of which was cut by myself, and made up under my own inspection, and I presume there is no one in North Carolina now, who would be verdant enough to question my capacity after the eloquent tribute paid to my artistic skill, in our last Superior Court, by Judge, Counsel on both sides, witnesses and Jurors. I refer to the case of "Biggs vs. Oliver"—action for damages, in which I had to pay $250, in consequence of my extended reputation.

Come in, if you please, and assist me in paying off the judgment by buying our goods. Who is there in North Carolina, who has not heard of the Hon. George E. Badger, the Hon. Wm. H. Haywood, Jr., and 'Bug' Oliver, Why 'their fame is no more to be hemmed in by State lines than their talents are to be circumscribed within the same narrow limits?

We are connected, as all our customers know—and if they don't know it, they may—with no Northern House—but we are Tailors ourselves—buy our own goods, and import quite as many of what we purchase in proportion to our business, as any house in this State or out of it. There is no establishment here or elsewhere that possesses any advantage over us. We buy where every body else buys, and we think we understand our business and buy as cheaply. We say our clothing is equal to any offered for sale in North Carolina, and, we think superior, being Judges ourselves of clothing. Of that though, we will leave the public to decide, when they examine for themselves. One thing is certain—without intending to reflect upon any one—we will sell our clothing cheaper than the same articles can be bought for in any of the Northern Cities, and as cheap as any body that comes here, who does not steal his clothing ready made.

Our stock embracing Drab, Black, Blue, Green, Gray, and other OVERCOATS from 6 to $20 and upwards. Cloaks, full circle, $18 upwards. Frocks, dress, and Sack COATS from 7 to $12 and upwards. PANTALOONS, all colors and prices, from $4 to $8. VESTS, all kinds and all sizes, at all prices from $1.25 to $5. In fact, every thing that can be found in any similar establishment in the Union.

We are North Carolinians. We are permanently located here, and if we sell as cheap as others, why not give us the preference? If we do not sell as good goods at as small a price, we will not ask your patronage.

Call! call! call before you purchase, at OLIVER & PROCTER'S, No. 1, R. R. R., Fayetteville Street.

Department of Mathematics, D. R. Wallace, A. R.
THE TWENTY-THIRD SESSION will commence on the 15th day of January, 1850.

The Principal takes great pleasure in informing the Public that the Mathematical Department has been, at the cost of great labour and expense, placed upon an exalted and permanent basis. Mr. Wallace whose services have been secured for that division of the School, was graduated with the first distinction at College, and has since had charge of the Greenville Academy, which, as Principal, he conducted with entire success and universal approbation. His testimonials from the most eminent Scholars of the state evince a high order of Scholarship and a high rank as an Instructor.

In the Warrington Academy, boys are prepared thoroughly for the advanced classes of any College in the Union or for the varied duties of useful life. The strictest attention is given to the moral as well as intellectual improvement of the Students, and the course of instruction, while it insures a high order of Scholarship, is designed to develop and strengthen the faculties of the mind.
