Foreign Intelligence.

ENGLAND.

LONDON, AUGUST 31.

On the Scheldt, in the docks at Bruges, and in the ports of Oſtend and Antwerp, they are now laboring with an activity beyond example, on the conſtruction of gun and flat bottomed boats. Each of theſe veſſels will carry two pieces of artillery, of the calibre of 36, 24, or 18 lbs. The dock yards of Bruſſels, Louvain, and Trieſt, are immediately to be put into a ſtate of equal activity. Before the end of two, no leſs than 100 gun or flat bottomed boats will be completely armed and equipped.

It is confidently ſtated, that government will, in the courſe of a few days, iſſue letters of marque and reprisal againſt Spain. Authentic intelligence is ſaid to have been received from Portugal, that French privateers are fitted out in the Spaniſh ports, and that Britiſh prizes are carried in and ſold there.

The Earl of Warwick, the Lord Lieutenant of Warwickſhire, has made an offer to government to ſubſcribe the ſum of 10,000l. to be expended in the purchaſe of arms for the uſe of all the volunteer corps of that County.

The preſent conduct of the Government of Ireland is exactly of a piece with their proceedings previous to the breaking out of the inſurrection in Dublin. Nothing but fatal experience could convince them than an explosion was at hand. They treated information on the ſubject not only with negligence, but, as is ſaid, with inſolence and contempt. They have now gone exactly into the oppoſite extreme: they are by their mode of proceeding for the defence of Dublin againſt any new attack, giving riſe to a thouſand fears for which there is no foundation; they are encouraging the circulation of endleſs rumours of new plans of inſurrection, and, by this extraordinary appearance of alarm, they actually increaſe the numbers and the confidence of traitors. They ought to know that Dublin could be effectually defended without reſorting to meaſures which only ſerve to alarm the timorous, without overawing the deſperate and the guilty. There is great difference between commendable vigilance and a ſyſtem of preparation originating in timidity. The ſame men who permitted rebellion to be organized in the very heart of the capital, who, till the laſt moment, had not the ſmalleſt conception of the danger which threatened the metropolis, will not be looked up to as the firſt to take precautions againſt future attempts. We have ſeen letters from moſt great perſons in Dublin, of unqueſtionable loyalty, which ſtate, the defence of the capital ſeems to engage the whole attention of government, whilſt, in remote diſtricts, the diſaffected continue their preparations with impunity.

SEPTEMBER 1.

A letter from Paris, dated Auguſt 20, ſays as follows: "Two bankers were laſt week ſent to the Temple, becauſe they had given bills of exchange upon Hamburg and Frankfort for three millions of livres, deſtined for the uſe of Louis XVIII. and which the police has diſcovered to have been ſecretly to be ſent by ſome royaliſts at Paris, ſince his refuſal to reſign his right to the throne of France was publiſhed here.

The diſturbances in Ireland, even if leſs dangerous than they have been repreſented, cannot be denied to make a powerful diverſion in favor of France. Should they riſe to any alarming height, the Firſt Conſul may then probably chuſe his firſt attempt at a deſcent upon the Iriſh coaſt. If only ſerving to divide the attention of our government, between the care to guard Britain from invaſion, and that of ſuppreſſing it in rebellion; even thus will Bonaparte acquire, through his freſh allies, a greatly increaſed probability of ſucceſs in his ſchemes againſt us; but of theſe and whatever other advantages an enemy might boaſt againſt us, we have the valour, the loyalty, the inborn heroiſm of our people for a certain defence. It is, beſides, to be remembered, that the perſonal force of Great Britain is greater than was that of France, at any period during the late revolution.

One thouſand five hundred gun boats are now afloat, equipped and ready to act againſt the French, between the Land's end and Plymouth.

Le Groſe, a French veſſel from Martinique, having on board Gen. Nogues, late Governor of St. Lucia, with twenty-nine other officers, has been captured by the Eliza privateer of Briſtol, Capt Thomas, and brought into King's Road.

Government has ordered general reprisals againſt the ſhips, goods and ſubjects of the Batavian and Italian Republics, on the ground that they have adopted meaſures of [illegible] againſt us.

IRELAND.

DUBLIN, AUGUST 24.

This day a ſpecial commiſſion for trial of perſons now in cuſtody, charged with high treaſon, was opened by the honorable Judges Downes, Finucane, and Daly. Lord Norbury and Baron George are alſo named in the commiſſion, but were not preſent.---The pannels being called over, the city and county grand jury were ſworn.

Judge Downes then addreſſed the juries, in a charge not characterized by any thing very novel, but deriving conſiderable intereſt from his lordſhips mode of delivery and the peculiar circumſtances of the times. In adverting to the aſſaſſination of the lamented Lord Kilwarden, he was ſo much affected that he could not go through the whole of what he intended to have ſaid on the ſubject, and much of what he did ſay was in ſuch a broken and faultering voice, as not to be intelligible to thoſe not immediately near him. The charge which was very ſhort, having been concluded, the following priſoners were brought up and aſſigned council, viz.

Fenix Rooke (conſidered as a rebel leader,) Thomas Dornelly, John Killeo, J. M'Kenny, Walter Clare, Dan Begley, Alias Bayley, N. Farrel, Michael Kelly, Martin Burke, Edward Kearney John Begg, Patrick Maguire, J. Doran and Owen Kirwan

The celebrated Curran was engaged to defend moſt of the priſoners.

The court was then adjourned to Monday next, merely to bring up any other priſoners againſt whom bills of indictment ſhould be found in the interim, that counſel might be aſſigned to them. The priſoners brought forward to-day are to be ſerved immediately with copies of their indictments, and to be tried on the 31ſt inſtant, to which day the court will be farther adjourned.

AUGUST 26.

Seized in a ſtore at the rear of Thomas ſtreet on Saturday 23d July, 11 deal boxes filled with powder and made up ammunition: 14 bundles of cannon powder, No. 1. 140lb. 846 hand grenades, formed of ink-bottles, filled with powder and encircled with buck ſhot, 104 Champaigne bottles filled with powder, enveloped with muſkets balls, and covered with canvaſs, 12,000 rounds of muſket ball catridges tied up in parcels of 20 each, and 4 flints attached to each parcel: 1 ſcaling ladder complete, 150 grappling-irons for ſcaling ladders; 24 buſhels of muſket balls, about 150 000 tied up in 4 each, being charges for blunderbuſſes, 1 ¼ quires of cartridge paper, 2 deal caſes of ſky rockets, and other ſignals, a box of tin tubes for the hand grenades. 49 hooks, chiſſels, &c. 48 quires of the proclamation of the proviſional government, 1 large bench vice, 108 cartridge formers, 8 pieces of faucifie, 78 yards in length, 1 piece of green cloth, 2 ſaws, 2 ſhaves, an old deſk, with ſeveral intereſting memorandums in it.

The above is an exact return of what was delivered into his majeſty's ſtores at the royal barracks. It of courſe does not include the pikes (amounting in number to 34 000,) which were broken up, the rebel ſtandards, uniforms, bread newly baked, &c.

Barney Coils was yeſterday taken into cuſtody, the preciſe charge we have not yet heard; but we believe it is the ſame upon which ſome of his friends have been held.

The extraordinary vigilance that has taken place in this city ſince Monday laſt, in more effectual enforcing the regulations ordered to be obſerved by the inhabitants, in conſequence of the exiſtence of martial law, is not, we underſtand, owing to any increaſed apprehenſions entertained by government of the deſigns of the inſurgents, but rather adopted as a precautionary meaſure during the fairs that take place in the vicinity of Dublin at this time, to prevent the diſaffected from making their attendance at thoſe places in unuſual numbers, or being abroad at unreaſonable hours.

Yeſterday Redmond, of the Coal quay, in whoſe houſe pikes were found, underwent an examination by the privy council, and while it was going on, a detachment of the Linen hall corps, led by two aids-de camp, ſearched every houſe in Great Shipſtreet for ſome perſons againſt whom it is ſuppoſed, Redmond gave information. But which is more important, Robert Emmet, after whom ſtrict ſearch has been making, was arreſted yeſterday at Harold's croſs by Major Sirr. He attempted to eſcape and was very near doing ſo. I truſt his arreſt will lead to important diſcoveries. Major Sirr was induced to arreſt him by his aſſumption of falſe names and other circumſtances, but actually did not know it was Emmet he had, until identified by Mr. Phipps, a fellow of the college; the loyalty of this city is much exhilirated by the arreſt of this man, who it is ſuppoſed was at the bottom of the inſurrection.

Raleigh,

MONDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1803.

The British privateer brig Rover Capt. Collins, of Liverpool, Nova Scotia, is hovering near the Maſſachuſetts coaſt, and has plundered ſome American veſſels in a wanton and diſgraceful manner. She robbed a ſchooner belonging to Plymouth, Capt, Rider of 1200 dollars in caſh, and even took 100 dollars from the ſeamen. About 10 days ſince ſhe fell in with a Newburyport veſſel, and robbed two ladies (paſſengers) and their children of, all their property, even to their wearing apparel.

The French armed ſchooner La Sophie, arrived at Charleſton on the 10th, from Cape Nichola-Mole, is an advice boat with diſpatches for the commercial agent of France in that city. She brings accounts that the Engliſh had bombarded Fort Dauphin and St. Mark's, which places had been compelled to ſurrender to them, and the brigands who aided in the reduction.

Important letter from the American Conſul at Algiers to the American Conſul at Cadiz.

CIRCULAR.

Algiers, Auguſt 2d, 1803.

"I have to inform you, that this moment has entered this port two galoetas, Tripoline corſairs, with three lateen ſails, and carry 4 guns, from 50 to 60 men each, 13 benches of oars; they came from the eaſtward; will ſail in a few days for the coaſts of Spain, no doubt in ſearch of American unarmed merchant veſſels. You will give this information to the maſters of American merchant veſſels, and to all whom it may concern in the port of your diſtrict, and adjacent, and to the captains of any of the United States ſhips of war, which can be informed in time to prevent the threatened evil, and to ſearch with vigilance for theſe marooning crafts.

I am, with reſpect,

RICHARD O'BRIAN.
