INVASION.

Paris papers by the brig Favorite from Bordeaux, have been received to the 22nd of April, but afford nothing worth translating except the following article, which is rendered interesting from its connexion with the preparations carrying on for the Invasion of England.

St. Cloud, 28 Germinal, (18th April) 12th Year of the French Republic. BONAPARTE, First Consul of the Republic, to the CONSERVATIVE SENATE.

SENATORS,

The Senator Joseph Bonaparte, grand officer of the legion of honour, has testified to me the desire of partaking in the dangers of the army encamped on the coasts of Boulogne that he may share in its glory.

I have thought it for the good of the state, and that the Senate would perceive with pleasure, that after having rendered important services to the Republic, as well by the solidity of his counsels in circumstances the most serious, as by the knowledge ability, and wisdom he has displayed in the successive negotiation of the treaty of Morfontaine, which terminated our difference with the United States of America; in that of Lunéville, which gave peace to the Continent; and more recently that of Amiens, which had restored peace between France and England, the Senator Joseph Bonaparte should be placed in a situation to contribute to the vengeance which the French people promise themselves for the violation of the latter treaty, and that he should have the opportunity given him of acquiring a still stronger title to the esteem of the nation.

Having already served under my eyes in the first campaigns of the war, and given proofs of his courage and of his skill in the art of war in the rank of chief of battalion, I have nominated him Colonel-Commandant of the fourth regiment of the line, one of the most distinguished corps of the army, and which is reckoned amongst those who, always placed in situations of the greatest peril, have never lost their colours, and have very frequently decided the victory.

I desire, therefore, that the Senate agree to the request which will be made to them by the Senator Joseph Bonaparte for leave of absence from the Senate, during the time which the occupations of the war may detain him with the army.

BONAPARTE.

The Senate charged its Vice-President and Secretaries to express to the First Consul the sentiment which that body partake of with all France for his illustrious brother.

JUDGE BOWEN.

We are informed (says the Editor of a Massachusetts paper) that Judge Bowen, of Georgia, has been subject to fits of insanity. We may be mistaken, but we believe Mr Bowen took a voyage to the East Indies in 1794, for the benefit of his health. On the passage his conduct appeared very extraordinary, and it was found necessary to confine him to his cabin. Upon arriving in the isle of France, being totally deranged in intellect, he was secured in prison, but was released after a slight appearance of recovery. Relapsing, however, into his former state of derangement, and it being proved that he was endeavouring openly in the streets to excite the slaves to take up arms against their masters, the Governor of the Island ordered him confined in a mad house, where he continued several months. He then exhibited such symptoms of extrem madnes, that it was absolutely necessary to chain him to the floor. No cloaths could be kept on him, and he has been seen in this most distressing situation by several Americans who visited the Isle of France in 1794. Mr. B. afterwards recovered his reason in part, and was brought home to his friends, in Rhode-Island, who, we are told, are some of the most respectable people in that State. Mr. Bowen finally settled in Georgia, where he was appointed a Judge of their superior Court. Now if this statement is correct, and if Judge Bowen is the same person who was confined in a mad-house in the Isle of France nine years since, we may suppose his disorder has again returned.

RESUSCITATION.

The following is an extract of a letter from a gentleman at Stoughton, in the county of Norfolk, to his friend in Boston dated June 9, 1804.

"On Monday last, between the hours of eleven and twelve. A. M. we experienced a small shower, accompanied with considerable thunder and lightning. Previous to the shower when the clouds had not much collected and the thunder rolled only at a distance, we were alarmed with sudden and tremendous peal, which seemed to burst upon the house over our heads. Most of the family were extremely agitated, and my little daughter was fainting. After attending to her a few minutes, I went out, expecting to discover some effect of the lightning. I examined the house and out building, but made no discovery. Soon, however, I cast my eye towards the little thicket of houses near the meeting house, where I observed a collection of people in apparent commotion. Apprehensive that some person might be injured, but unwilling to leave home on account of the situation of some of the family, I sent a boy to make enquiry. He returned with the information that Mr. Lewis Johnson was struck with lightning, and supposed to be dead. I immediately ran to the place where he was, (the distance being between forty and fifty rods) on my arrival was told, that he was dead. I found that they had actually closed his eyes, and, as usual were preparing to put on a bandage to support his jaw, which was fallen. They had sent for Dr. Adams, but he had not arrived. Recollecting to have seen an account of the efficacy of cold water, when applied to persons apparently killed with lightning, I caused a similar application to be made, which succeeded beyond my most sanguine expectations. A bucket of water was thrown upon him—it was repeated—he soon exhibited signs of life and began to gasp. At this moment the Doctor arrived and opened a vein in his arm. The application of cold water was still continued, and not less than six buckets were poured upon him. Symptoms of returning life increased. In about half an hour he spoke, and in an hour walked, with assistance, into the house. Complaining of extreme chillness, he was wrapped in flannel, and laid on a bed. From the moment of his resuscitation he was exercised with violent pains in his breast, back and limbs, and particularly in his joints. These pains continued, without intermission during the day and following night. But being again bled, and taking cooling physic, the pains on Tuesday morning began to abate, and have since continued gradually to decrease. He is now in a state of convalescence, though extremely feeble, and not intirely free from pain. The hair on the back part of his head was considerably singed, his skin in several places burnt, the shoe on his left foot rent in pieces, but his cloaths received no injury.

From the facts above stated it appears, that the copious application of cold water was the means, in the hand of Divine Providence, of rescuing Mr. Johnson from a premature grave, restoring to his family their head and support, and to society a useful member.

THE TEMPLE OF HEALTH, ENCORE.

PRESUMING that no new Countersign has yet received the finishing Stroke on the Political Anvil—notwithstanding the Arrival of that Archetype of Innovation, to set the Crowd agape—who perhaps dropt his Pandora's Box at modern Oliver's Levee—I beg leave to acquaint all Parties contained in my former Muster-Roll, that new Baths and Houses over the Springs, together with a Range of Stables 60 by 20, ought to have been finished long ago; having contracted with federal and republican Subjects for that purpose; but find both deficient in Practise, however assuming in Theory.

The Castle of Thundertontrenck was also to have been revolutionised, cum multis aliis.

In future, I am firmly determined to employ no man but a real American, whose mind is alone influenced by true Amor Patriæ, unbiassed by the fluctuating rotation of political cant phrases.

And to enlighten the Federal Tories, I throw down my pen this 4th Day of June, 1804, with VIVAT REX, Toriorum.

J. LENOX. Lenox Castle, N. C. N. B. I fix a Patent Shower-Bath with the Apparatus complete last Year, in a House as tight as a Drum, containing a Spring almost as cold as Greenland.

Music and Dancing Academy.

FRANCIS MAURICE, Professor of the French Language, Music and Dancing, of the Town of Wilmington late from New-England,

RESPECTFULLY informs the Ladies and Gentlemen of the city of Raleigh and Vicinity, that he expects to open his Academy in the City of Raleigh, so soon as he shall have obtained twenty Subscribers to learn Dancing, and ten to learn Music, on the following CONDITIONS.—Dancing, twice a week, every Wednesday and Saturday in the afternoon from 3 to sun-set, for the small class, and from sun-set to ten, for large class, at six dollars per quarter. Music on the Piano Forte or Violin, ten dollars for 24 lessons. The Terms for teaching the French Language will be the same as those for Dancing.

If Mr. Maurice be encouraged to come to Raleigh, he will bring with him his Grand Piano Forte, on which he will instruct his Pupils. He trusts that his terms will be considered low, as it will be observed that he teaches Dancing every week, and not as is the practice of some, every other, or every third week. The price for Music is also lower than usual. July 7.
