VOL. V.

FAYETTEVILLE ACADEMY.

On Monday the 2d of this month, commenced the examination of the Fayetteville Academy...

Whilst the high attention of the Teachers in the several classes was manifested, it is justice to remark the students of both sexes displayed on this occasion, proofs of industry, knowledge and taste, equal to the best hopes of the favourers of this institution.

The 1st Class examined in Virgil and Horace. A proper understanding of the Authors was evinced: but Master William Cowan of Bladen County excelled.

The 2d class, consisting of seven boys, was examined in Sallust and Virgil; prove correct in grammatical construction and parsing; but Master John Jones, of Wilmington, was distinguished in pronouncing the Latin of the Authors with most propriety.

To the students of the Roman Poetical Authors, a more strict attention to the rules of Prosody is recommended.

In the 3d class consisting of four, the students were examined in Cesar and Sallust. Much attention and knowledge of the Authors was indicated by all the Members of this class.

The 4th Latin class of five scholars, was examined in Cordery and Eutropius, James Mumford, of Fayetteville, was remarked for good reading and pronunciation, but all deserve credit.

The 5th Latin class of four scholars, was examined in Grammar and Cordery, and acquitted themselves well.

Joseph Eagles, a young scholar, was examined in Grammar & Cordery, and answered well, having made progress proportioned to his time at the school.

On a general revival of Latin Grammar, 21 students were examined, and a complete knowledge of the grammar rules was evinced by each of the class.

In English Grammar, 1st class of four members; John M'Rae and Dennis O'Bryan were distinguished.

The 2d English Grammar class in English reading, ten Scholars were examined in reading Prose and Verse, all deserving praise.

1st class in English Reading. Ten scholars were examined in reading Prose and Verse, all deserving praise.

The 2d class of English Readers; eleven boys were examined, and Henry Beatty, Charles Mallett, and James Mumford were distinguished.

The 3d class of English Readers, twelve Scholars were examined in reading prose, and well approved of.

A 4th class of Readers, eight in number, are entitled to the same remark.

The 5th class of Readers read well, but Peter Mallett, John Dick and Norman Howatt were distinguished.

A class of young Readers and Spellers, seven in number, acquitted themselves well.

A class of nineteen in number were examined in Arithmetic; Charles Williams, of Chatham County, Dennis O'Bryan, of Edgecomb, Alexander Watson, of Bladen, were most approved. It is observed, with concern, that Henry Ward and Henry Sibbey have not shown due diligence.

In the general revival of Spelling, throughout the Dictionary, thirty three of the Scholars were examined, John Hadley, James Baker, George Holmes, Henry Purviance and James Bowie excelled; but all acquitted themselves well.

Of ten young Spellers examined in Webster, John Bowen, and Edward Mallett were most approved. In Writing, thirty four boys of different classes, exhibited Copies. John Hadley, Dennis, O'Bryan, Michael Blocker, Thomas Bowen, and George Holmes most excelled in their respective classes.

The evenings of the days of examination were engaged by the young Gentlemen of the Academy, to the number of sixteen, in delivering select Orations to a respectable audience. The exhibition of all was received with applause; but John Jones, John Hadley, Alexander Watson, William Hill and John Eccles were most distinguished.

The young Ladies of the Academy, to the number of fifty, were examined in Spelling, Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, English Grammar and Letter writing, all evinced knowledge of and application to their several employments in the School.

Twelve young Ladies, in three classes, were examined in English Grammar, and so correct were they all, to distinguish would be improper.

Twenty-eight young Ladies, in five classes, were examined in Reading and Spelling, and acquitted themselves well.

In the 1st class of Readers, Miss Julia Moore of Brunswick county; in the second class, Miss Wilson and Miss Flora MacQueen of Robeson County, were most approved.

In copies and letter writing, Misses Hawley, Elliott, Wilson, Moore and Blue, were distinguished.

Specimens of the young Ladies Needle Work in Embroidery, in Dresden and Marking were exhibited Misses Hawley, Elliot, White, Flowers and Lanier received the approbation of the Ladies who examined their pieces, several of which were truly elegant.

In marking, Miss Lopisa Tarbe's Sampler was most approved.

By order of the Trustees, JOHN HAY, President.

REPUBLICAN GRATITUDE.

At a late numerous meeting of the citizens of Albany, it was agreed that the high sense the meeting entertained of the private and public virtues of his Excellency, GEORGE CLINTON, should be expressed in an Address to his Excellency, on his retiring from the office of Governor of that state.

To his Excellency GEORGE CLINTON, Governor of the State of New-York.

THE important functions you have so long and so honorably exercised, for the more immediate advantage of the people of this State, are about to be once more suspended, perhaps for ever. We improve this, therefore, as the proper season to express the high sense we entertain of your virtues as a private citizen, and the gratitude we feel, and shall ever cherish, for your useful labours as a servant of the people.

The man who can justly boast of a long life, actively devoted to the service of his country, may well claim the meed of patriotism, and the best rewards a grateful people may have to bestow. Your life, Sir, has been thus devoted, and the consciousness of it must prove to you a source of honorable pride—whilst you cannot but derive felicity from the reflection, that your labours for the public weal have been crowned with success.

It is with mingled emotions of pride and pleasure, that we contemplate your career as a soldier, a patriot, and a statesman; inasmuch as we derive from the retrospect, one more proof of the fallacy of the favorite maxim of monarchists, that ingratitude is the peculiar sin of republics. Nor is yours, sir, the only living example we might offer in proof, that a steady course of public virtue will not be repaid with ingratitude in the American Republic—whatever may have been the conduct of ancient Republics, constituted essentially different from ours, towards men who had served them with zeal, fidelity and usefulness. In a Republic properly constituted, though the people may labour under temporary delusions, and the brightest virtues may for a while lie buried in obscurity and neglect—yet reason will not fail at last to resume her empire, and intelligence, virtue and patriotism, to irradiate and purify the public councils, dispel the mists of delusion, and restore to liberty her benignant aspect, and her pristine vigour. How far your own experience affords proof of this position, impartial history will not be wanting to record, nor posterity to acknowledge.

Long as you have lived to labour in the vineyard of liberty, there is yet a field open for the exertion of your talents in her sacred cause. You are destined for new scenes of action* into which it needs not the gift of prophecy to predict, that you will be called by the voice of a grateful country. Thither our best wisher will accompany you—and in this new relation to society, your past life affords the surest pledge of your devotion to her true interests. In concert with the sage JEFFERSON, and that band of patriots who form the majority of our national councils, and in unison with the wishes of every true American, we doubt not the grand object of your cares will be, to preserve inviolate those sacred fruits of the REVOLUTION—THE UNION OF THE STATES, AND THE LIBERTIES OF THE PEOPLE.

In closing this Address, we cannot but rejoice, that you will leave the affairs of the State in unexampled prosperity, under the auspices of a man who deserves and enjoys our utmost confidence; and whose election as your successor, considering the circumstances under which it took place; has afforded additional proof of the capacity of the people of this state for self-government, for the enjoyment of popular elections, and the blessings of rational liberty.

With these sentiments, sir, we bid you an affectionate farewell—and when it shall please Heaven to translate you from the scenes of this life, may a blissful immortality in another and a better world be your portion.

RICHARD LUSH, HENRY QUACKENBUSH, GEORGE MERCIAN, CHARLES D. COOPER, SOLOMON SOUTHWICK, Albany, June 29, 1804.

* G. Clinton is the Republican, (and at present the only) candidate for the Vice-Presidency

HIS EXCELLENCY'S REPLY.

I ENTREAT you to accept of my grateful acknowledgments for your polite address, and for the favorable opinion you are pleased to express of my private character and public services: As it has always been my endeavor to discharge with fidelity the important trusts reposed in me by the people, the considerations that my services may have contributed to their welfare and happiness, is highly gratifying to me, and their approbation constitutes my best reward.

In retiring from office, it is with pleasure I reflect, that the care of our public affairs will devolve on a man, whose well known attachment to the principles of our happy revolution, and faithful discharge of the duties of some of the most important offices of the state afford just grounds of confidence, that the government will be administered with integrity and wisdom.

Permit me to reciprocate your kind wishes for my present and future happiness, and to embrace this opportunity of bidding you a sincere and affectionate farewell.

GEO: CLINTON.

Music and Dancing Academy.

FRANCIS MAURICE, Professor of the French Language, Music and Dancing, of the Town of Wilmington, late from New-England.

RESPECTFULLY informs the Ladies and Gentlemen of the city of Raleigh and Vicinity, that he expects to open his Academy in the City of Raleigh, so soon as he shall have obtained twenty Subscribers to learn Dancing, and ten to learn Music, on the following conditions.—Dancing, twice a week, every Wednesday and Saturday in the afternoon from 3 to sun-set, for the small class, and from sun-set to ten, for large class, at six dollars per quarter. Music on the Piano Forte or Violin, ten dollars for 24 lessons. The Terms for teaching the French Language will be the same as those for Dancing. If Mr. Maurice be encouraged to come to Raleigh, he will bring with him his Grand Piano Forte, on which he will instruct his Pupils. He trusts that his terms will be considered low, as it will be observed that he teaches Dancing every week, and not as is the practice of some, every other, or every third week. The price for Music is also lower than usual. July 7.
