"Every thing (says a late humorous writer) has two handles, and every man can chuse which he will take." We mentioned in our last that Governor M'Kean had only 7 votes as a Candidate for Governor, when balloted for in the Legislature. This it appears was the truth but not all the truth. The Lancaster Intelligencer of April 9th sets it in a new light, and as it is our duty to give as far as we are able correct views of passing circumstances we copy the paragraph "After placing Gen Steele in the Chair, it was moved and carried, to select the Candidate by Ballot. This mode displeased some of the present Governor's Friends; and they withdrew. The remaining Members proceeded to Balloting; and, on counting the Votes, they were, for Simon Snyder, Speaker of the House of Representatives, 42 the present Governor, 7 and Samuel Maclay 1." The Members who absented themselves published a recommendation, friendly to the re-election of Governor M'Kean, signed by 34, several having left Town prior to the resolution being entered into. Extract of a letter from Cadiz, dated February 28. "We apprized you in our last of the blockade of our port by the British commander on this station. He, however, afterwards announced, that vessels laden with provisions would not be prevented from coming in, and accordingly a number of wheat and flour from different quarters have since arrived here. Such, however, has been the urgent demand for both these articles that the last cargo of 3000 barrels of flour in our bay, has been disposed of at the noble price of 23-12 dollars per barrel on board, for the use of our navy, and at ready money. The above price will clearly show how great our wants must be, and to which we must add, that at present there is not a single fanega of wheat or barrel of flour for sale here. Therefore the first importation of either article will undoubtedly command very high prices. We must further add, that we do not expect any material decline in our prices until the collection of our ensuing crop takes place, which, according to every appearance by no means promises to be very abundant. Our government actually permits the produce of wheat and flour to be shipped hence in specie, on paying the customary duty of seven per cent."

rané, supposed to be in pursuit of the French fleet which had made its escape from Rochefort. They had been off the island two days; and the inhabitants alarmed for their own safety, had assembled to the number of 40,000 men in arms, and were making vigorous preparations for defence. The following is an extract of a letter, dated Guadaloupe, March 16. "I have to inform you, that the two French squadrons have united—one from Toulon, and the other from Rochefort. The latter has made terrible havoc amongst the enemy; from seven to eight hundred vessels, large and small have been taken, sunk, or burnt; besides which, the squadron has raised contributions in all the English windward islands. Spanish Trinidad alone, taken by the Toulon squadron, has escaped contribution, as the French have placed a garrison in it, and mean to keep it in their possession. The squadron consisted of 23 sail of the line, and 21 frigates, besides 30 other vessels, such as corvettes, transports, &c. making in all 74 sail. The precise object of the expedition is a profound secret, all their officers have their orders sealed. It is said there are 18,000 men on board this fleet. You may, if you think proper, communicate the above information to your friends." Capt. Paddock, from the city of St. Domingo and Porto Rico, informs us, that the Haytian army appeared off St. Carlo the 5th March, and on the same morning shot a French general who was walking on the ramparts. On the 8th they crossed the river and pitched their tents. On the 11th the French General Debarque, at the head of 400 troops, made a sortie from Fort Carlos, and routed the besiegers (who lost their commander and 100 troops) after a smart skirmish of four hours with the loss of only 3 men killed, and 5 wounded, including General Debarque, slightly. On the succeeding day General Ferrand ordered all the shipping to put in port, on account of the injury they would sustain from the firing of the negroes; and compelled them to take on board all the women and children in the place and convey them to Porto Rico. Capt. Paddock received sixty of those unfortunate persons on board his vessel. The garrison of St. Domingo consisted of about 4000 troops, well supplied with arms, ammunition and provisions, and the commander in chief apprehended no danger from the threatened attack. The following is the translation of the speech of General Ferrand, to the soldiers and inhabitants, on the walls of St. Domingo, in presence of the brigands: French Soldiers, and inhabitants of St. Domingo. It is here you must remain; it is here you must either fight or perish—it is here that the all-powerful God has marked out the place for vengeance—it is here you ought to revenge the manes of your fathers, mothers, sisters, wives, children and friends, who all perished by blood-thirsty hands—by the monsters who surround us! It is here that you ought to shew what the valor of a chosen few are able to perform against a number of assassins—it is here where the field is chalked out for victory! Do not be alarmed at these cannibals; they appear only here strong by treacherous murder, against those who are not able to defend themselves—But what can their numerous cohorts do against brave soldiers and a place fortified by nature and art? Soon you will see them dispersed and fall at the foot of these ramparts. They will perhaps tell you that they have conquered every town in St. Domingo, though they were fortified and defended by very brave troops. Pure illusions! They are called conquerors! They only conquered those towns which were surrendered to them by treachery and treason. None sure was taken by true force, except St. Jago; which, though ill fortified and defended by a handful of inhabitants, has shewn what valor could do against such enemies. Eighteen hundred of those barbarians have bit the dust, and we shall soon give a good account of the remainder of their army. Inhabitants of St. Domingo, I do not know if your misfortunes can bear a comparison to the direful necessity which forces us to give battle, having no place for a retreat; on one side surrounded by the brigands, on the other by the sea; having not one single vessel either to fly to or escape to—no other alterna-

live offers but victory alone. I repeat it again, it is here you must perish or conquer! Have courage now, let us fight, and victory will be our lot. An English privateer schooner has been cruising off Sandy-Hook, N. Y. for four days. She boards all vessels going out or coming into N. York; and on Saturday last she fired six shots at the schooner Industry, from Savannah, one of which went through her mainsail. We have not learned her name; but understand she is from New-Providence, whence she sailed two months ago. She is a very small vessel, with a crew of 36 men only. Mer. Adv. The Spanish Consul, to the United States, residing in Philadelphia informs the Merchants in the United States, that the port of St Augustine, in Florida, is open, for the importation of provisions; but in order to be admitted, they must procure a passport from the respective Spanish Consuls residing in the United States. The returns of the Massachusetts election, (up to the 9th inst.) contain the amount of votes from 290, towns and are as follow:— For his Excellency Caleb Strong 29,014 Mon. James Sullivan 25,790 Present Federal majority, 3,219 On the 17th inst. the President of the United States returned to Washington city from Monticello, in good health. Colonel Burr, it is reported, is to be appointed Gov. of Louisiana, in the room of Wm. C. C. Claiborne. Philad. Gaz. We are told, that the President of the United States has appointed John B. C. Lucas, Esq. chief justice of the courts of Upper Louisiana. Capt. John Shaw, we understand, is to take the command of the frigate John Adams, and will sail for the Mediterranean about the 1st of next month. The General Assembly of New-York have directed the Attorney-General to prosecute James Cheetham, the Editor of the American citizen for a libel on that body in asserting that the law for incorporating the merchant's bank was obtained through bribery. On the 8th inst. the country seat belonging to the late General Hamilton, called the Grange, situate at Haerlem, was sold at Public Auction at the Tontine coffee-house, N. Y. and purchased by Archibald Gracie, Esq. for the sum of 30,500 dollars. The Ohio and its waters have, this spring been uncommonly high. In particular, the Great Miami in many parts overstepping its banks, laid towns and farms under water, swept away mills, houses and stock, and has otherwise done great damage. Report says, that some human lives have been lost. We are not yet in possession of sufficient information to enter on a detail of facts. Heartwell and Peter Leath, who were guilty of riot and assault in Petersburg, in February last, have been tried at the present term of the District Court, and sentenced, the former to 13, and the latter to 12 1/2 years imprisonment, in the penitentiary. According to the proclamation of the Governor of South-Carolina dated the 19th ult. a Daniel Daugherty, of Pendleton district, has been murdered by his wife, his step-father, Laban Oakley, and a certain John Andrews. It appears that the atrocious criminals effected the murder, by infusing poison into the food, medicines and drink of Mr. Doughty, who at length died in excruciating tortures. The wife, and John Andrews are committed to jail; but Oakley, (who is considered to have been the first mover of the wicked conspiracy) has escaped; and his Excellency has issued a proclamation, offering Four Hundred Dollars Reward, for his apprehension. On Saturday, the last day of the Superior Court held in and for the county of Clark, (says the Georgia Centinel) William Williams, who has rendered himself notorious by the many nefarious deeds perpetrated in this, and in the state of South Carolina, was sentenced to die on Wednesday, the 3d inst. But on the evening preceding the date for his execution, he effected his escape from the jail inopenday, and under the eyes of a vigilant guard, who were surrounded the place of his confinement. His aunt wife, and sister had obtained leave of the Sheriff to go into the jail, to take the Sheriff last action; while there Williams exchanged, armments with his sister, and in that habit made his escape. Thus it appears, that this felon, tho' twice condemned before, has again by his artful intrigue rescued himself from the demands of justice. His two brothers, wife, sister and aunt, we are informed, are kept in imprisonment, and charged with having aided and abetted in procuring his release. We are informed that on the 14th instant, a man named Francis Major, called at the house of a Mr. Camden, near Lancaster, in Garrard county, K. and asked for some fire to light his pipe—Mr. Camden handed him some fire, after which Major directed him to hold his horse until he loaded his pistols, when his pistol was charged and he had mounted his horse. he offered if Camden would give him ten dollars, to shoot him thro' the head. On Camden's refusing, he proposed to do it for five, then for three, and at last came down to two pence. Camden still refusing. He then declared he would do it for nothing, and accordingly shot him through the head, which caused his immediate death. Major instantly rode off full speed, but was followed by two men, who soon took him and had him committed to jail in Lancaster. A Fire broke out last Thursday evening, at Kingston, Ulster county, New-York, in a barn belonging to Abraham B. Banker, Esq. In consequence of the high wind, the house and barn of Mr. William de Waal, the barn and two Barracks of Mr. Abraham Hoffmas, and a shop of judge Banker's, occupied by Mr. Gillet a shoemaker, were also consumed. The burning fragments communicated to about 20 separate buildings, among which were the church, academy, and court house, as also a barn above half a mile distant. By very active exertions the village was saved. Mungo Park, the celebrated traveller, started from Portsmouth in England, lately, in an armed vessel, for Africa, to pursue his researches in the interior of that continent. Ireland, according to a recent enumeration, is said to contain 11,000,000 Irish acres, 687,118 houses, and 5,496,944 inhabitants. A subscription for the erection of a monument to Luther, at Hamburg, amounts already to 5000 rix dollars.—Their highness the Duke of Brunswick Wolsenbuttel, and the Princess Dowager of Anhalt-Zerbest, as well as the manufacturers Messrs. J'Eislep, are amongst the subscribers. A correspondent of a French Agricultural Society (Poitiers) recommends the use of Italian poplars as flooring, as a preventative against the destruction of corn in granaries, &c. weevils, insects, &c. A series of experiments made by him on this subject, (at first accidentally discovered) have been attended with complete success. Died. At Newbern, on the 12th inst. Mr. Chas Saunders, sen.
