RALEIGH REGISTER.

TUESDAY, MARCH 30, 1824.

The Superior Court for this county, commenced yesterday, Judge PAXTON presiding. We cannot certainly say, whether any of the prisoners confined in Jail, on charges of a capital nature, will come to trial, though it is highly probable they will.

It is stated in the last Star, that Mr. CRAWFORD will shortly retire from the Presidential contest, and leave the palm to be disputed between Gen. JACKSON, and Mr. ADAMS. The Editors of the Star, assert that this will be the case, and were they ever mistaken in their political calculations?

When the Editors can reconcile these inconsistencies, then and not until then, shall we believe that Mr. Crawford, who is assured of the united electoral votes of New-York, Virginia, North-Carolina, Georgia, and Delaware, will relinquish his claims to a post, for which, by nature and education, he seems so eminently qualified.

The Richmond Enquirer states, that the number of Members of the Legislature of Virginia, who assisted in forming the Electoral Ticket in favor of Mr. CLAY, was smaller than we had supposed. The Enquirer also says, after noticing the Meetings in that State favorable to Mr. JACKSON and Mr. ADAMS, that "all this is 'love's labor lost.' It is utterly unavailing.

Lexington Reporter.—A writer in the Reporter strongly recommends Mr. CLAY for the President, but very liberally and candidly speaks of Mr. Crawford in the following manner:—"In Wm. H. Crawford a nation's destiny may be safely reposed. Undaunted amidst the roughest assaults of vindictive and disappointed malice, his firmness of character is a sure presage of the safety with which the people's interests may be committed to his keeping."

At the Superior Court of Chatham county, held last week, the Grand Jurors expressed their sense of the valuable public services of Mr. CRAWFORD and his distinguished fitness to fill the Presidential chair, and, with one dissenting voice, recommended him as best qualified for that high office.

of Cucus has been suddenly brought to a close. At the opening of the third day's discussion on the subject, the Vice-President required, that gentlemen should confine themselves in debate, to the question actually before the House, to the great disappointment of those who had resorted to the Senate, to witness "the keen encounter of their wits."

THE TARIFF.—The debate in Congress still continues on this bill. The discussion has been chiefly confined to the detail, and no question has yet been taken upon the great principles of the measure, by which the final result can be ascertained.

On Thursday last, John Johnson, convicted at the New-York Quarter Sessions, of the murder of James Murray, received sentence of death. When the Clerk enquired if he had any thing to say, he replied, "I am not the man that committed the murder, that's all."

The case of Johnson, sentenced for the murder of James Murray, is a subject of serious consideration in several respects. No person could possibly have had a fairer trial. He had the advantage of excellent counsel; and every point of law that could have been turned in his favour, was so done by the Court; and yet he was convicted on circumstantial evidence, but by a chain so compact and firm, that no doubt could have been reasonably entertained of his guilt.

POSTSCRIPT

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

New-York, March 23. By the packet ship Cortes, Capt. De Cost, from Liverpool, the editor of the National Advocate has received his regular file of London papers, to the 22d February, and Liverpool to the 24th, inclusive.

The only important intelligence by this arrival is WAR BETWEEN ENGLAND AND ALGIERS. The causes are said to be a refusal on the part of the Dey to make reparation for an insult offered to the Consular flag, and a declaration that he would no longer observe the stipulations of the treaty made by Lord Exmouth, prohibiting the making of Christian slaves.

Despatches, dated the 31st of last month, and 1st inst. have this morning been received at this office, from the Hon. Captain Spencer, of his Majesty's ship Naiad, (who had been directed to proceed to Algiers, to make, in conjunction with his Majesty's Consul at that regency, a remonstrance against some late proceedings of the Dey,) stating, that his negotiation had ended unsatisfactorily, and that the Consul was obliged to strike the British flag, and embark on board his Majesty's ship.

Captain Spencer further reports, that, having met an Algerine corvette, he felt it, under his instructions, his duty to attack her, and that she was laid on board, and captured in the most handsome manner, by his Majesty's brig Camelia, when Capt. Spencer had the satisfaction to find that he rescued 17 Spaniards, whom the Algerine was carrying into slavery.

This little affair will be soon ended, The Algerines have no squadron; their fortifications are not in the best order, and the moment a British fleet appears before the town, they will cut off the Dey's head, and send it to the Admiral as an explanation in full.

Nat. Advocate.
