RALEIGH REGISTER.

TUESDAY, JULY 20, 1824.

We recommend to the attentive perusal of our readers, the nervous Address on the opposite page. The meeting which gave rise to it, was held in the district, where the veteran Republican ALBERT GALLATIN lives, a circumstance sufficient of itself to clothe it with interest.

In the reign of George the first, the two celebrated English Universities, Oxford and Cambridge, were much opposed to each other in politics. So high did they carry their feelings, that government thought proper to station military force there. Cambridge as adherents to the royal party, was rewarded by a present of books, and the celebrated Dr. Trapp furnished the following epigram:

Our royal Master saw with heedful eyes, The wants of his two Universities, Troops he to Oxford sent, as knowing why That learned body wanted loyalty; But Books to Cambridge sent, as well discerning, That, that right loyal body wanted learning.

This Epigram received a very happy and decisive retort from Sir William Brown as it is said impromptu:

The King to Oxford sent a troop of Hares, For Tories know no argument but force, With equal care to Cambridge, Books he sent, For Whigs allow no force but argument.

The Augusta Chronicle of July 3d says, that the Small-pox is raging in the Cherokee Nation, and was brought there by some of the natives lately returning from Philadelphia, four of the company who left Philadelphia died on the road.

Commission under the St. Petersburg Treaty.—The Board of Commissioners on the 31st ultimo closed the testimony on both sides on the question of average value, and on the 14th inst. separated by mutual agreement for the purpose of arranging and digesting the documentary evidence which has been submitted to them, with an understanding that, unless more time should prove necessary, they are to meet again on the 24th of August next, and proceed, without further delay, to the discussion of average value.

SOUTH AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE.—The London Courier of June 1st says, "The question of the recognition of South American Independence continues most anxiously to occupy public attention, particularly in the city. We can venture to state, that previously to the close of the present session of Parliament, a communication will be made on this question to the House of Commons."

A hogshead of Tobacco, made by a Mr. James, of the State of Ohio, was recently inspected and sold in Georgetown, D. C. for $30 per hundred pound, producing, for the hogshead, upwards of $250.

Not a word from Washington has been said about Edwards' returning the $11,225, for which he has rendered no service. Would it not be well for the Attorney General to commence suit against the ex-minister for the recovery of this money?

Henry Johnson, of Louisiana, being a candidate for the office of Governor of that state, with a fair prospect of being elected, has resigned his seat in the Senate of the United States.

A citizen of Louisiana contradicts an assertion which has been going the rounds stating that from appearances, Gen. Jackson will receive the votes of Louisiana for the Presidency. He says that "there is no probability of Gen. Jackson's obtaining the vote of Louisiana; that Mr. Clay will get the vote of that State, if his friends think he has any prospect of success. If not, the vote will be for Mr. Crawford or Mr. Adams. Mr. Crawford," he adds "is gaining very fast in Louisiana.—Such is the information received from every part of the State, by letters from the most influential characters."

Three Electoral Tickets are formed in Mississippi: Jackson, Adams and Crawford. Two in Alabama, Jackson and Crawford.

Law Decisions.—Two points have recently been decided by the Supreme Court of the State of Alabama, which are considered of great importance as to their effect on a very large amount of existing contracts. The first is, that under the State Law of 1818, a higher rate of interest than 8 per cent. is not recoverable on any contract, except those which expressly stipulate for the payment of higher interest, from the date, and then only to the time fixed for payment. The second is, that a note with a "scroll" at the signature, with the word seal written in the scroll, is not sufficient to constitute a sealed note.

The new novel from the author of Waverly, is entitled "Red-gauntlet, a tale of the 18th century;" and is now in the Philadelphia press.

We copy the following obituary notice from the National Intelligencer: "The Washington Republican newspaper, after struggling for some weeks in an obvious decline, terminated its feebly existence on Saturday evening, aged nearly two years. It exhibited, we are sorry to say, to the last moment, not the least symptom of penitence for its manifold transgressions. But it is dead, and Shakespeare says, 'he that dies pays all debt.' Quiescat in pace."

Popular as we know Mr. Crawford to be, we did not believe that he would be so universally toasted on the 4th of July as he has been. Among a number of toasts and sentiments, at various places, we find the following, in addition to those already published: Celebration at Baker's Spring, by the young Men of Richmond, Va.

Lovendes.—The pride of his country's councils—the loved of her people.—His loss is remembered in bitterness amid the divisions and dissensions of the Republic.

Wm. H. Crawford.—Like unto firm, like Aristides just. Here is health to his cheek, honor to his name and success to his cause!

Albert Gallatin.—What public man, tho' native-born, has served our country more with cleaner hands—with greater wisdom or with warmer zeal?

AT PETERSBURG, VIRGINIA.

By Wm. Shands, Jr. Wm. H. Crawford: His talents, experience, and public services, virtue and political integrity, entitle him to the highest honor his country can bestow.

By Major Daniel C. Batts. Wm. H. Crawford: Impervious to the tooth of malice—the pure Republican—the able Secretary—the honest Man.

By Francis G. Yancy. "The Flying Parthian"—Whose poisoned arrows thrown behind him, and glancing from a colossal tower of adamant, have wounded only the assailant. "His oath let it speak for itself."

By Hiram Hames. Man, whatever be his station, name or creed, if his heart is honest and his soul is free, I hail him as my brother.

By Captain Richard O. Henderson. The Honest Candidate for the next Presidency: When assailed by the minions of Executive patronage, he will shake them off, "as does the lion the dew-drop from his mane."

AT DINWIDDIE, VIRGINIA.

By James W. Pegram. Wm. H. Crawford: Shielded by the buckler of innocence and truth, the "poisoned arrows" of envy, prepared for his destruction, fall harmless at his feet.

IN PRINCE GEORGE, VIRGINIA.

By John Prentiss. Ninian Edwards the A. B. conspirator. A bad soil cannot produce good fruit.

"Shame the consequence of guilt Shall mutilate the name he's built On Honor's threatened fall;

Whilst trembling on the yawning grave He'll then the world's forgiveness crave And bow at Pluto's call!"

By Mr. Peterson. Wm. H. Crawford, Secretary of the Treasury. Malicious persecutors would have destroyed him, but he was shielded by the sceptres of virtue and honor.

AT STEVENSBURG, VIRGINIA.

Gen. George Washington. His name pronounces his finest eulogy. James Monroe, President of the United States. Honest in his ends and unfortunate in his means.

By Dr. Wm. O. Peake. The Secretary of the Treasury. May he soon be promoted to the Presidency of the United States.

By Capt. W. M. Burton. The holy alliance and Hessian fly. 'Tis hard to say which is most inimical to the American farmer.

By Mr. Richard Wells. Wm. H. Crawford—A statesman of consummate abilities, a republican of spotless integrity. He has been cast into the furnace of political intrigue and persecution, but, like gold from the crucible of the refiner, he has come out purer than he went in. Thrice he has been weighed in the balance of the sanctuary, and has not been found wanting.

AT CHESTER PENNSYLVANIA.

The following toast was drunk on the 3d July, at the celebration in Chestertown, by the "Chester Republican Blues" and "Chester Independent Company."

"The Congressional Caucus—It originated in the wisest policy, and is predicated upon the soundest principles. May its decision meet the approbation and elicit the unanimous support of an enlightened people."

AT MANTUA VILLAGE, Pennsylvania, by the first Company Citizen Guards and second Company Citizen Volunteers.

The Democratic party of the Union. May become united in Phalanx, and place at the head of the administration a man who will reflect honor on their choice and maintain the nation's dignity.

The Holy Alliance. Yes, cursed be the name, That spreads o'er the world pale destruction and fear.

That revels in bloodshed and glories in shame, And quaffs up with pleasure the sorrow-shed tear.

By Capt. Wm. Mandry. Wm. H. Crawford—He has passed through the fiery ordeal of his calumniators, may he receive the suffrages of his country, which his virtues merit.

AT NEW-HAVEN, CONNECTICUT.

Wm. Crawford, Secretary of the Treasury.

BY THE TAMMANY SOCIETY, NEW-YORK.

Gen. La Fayette, the Guest of the Nation. The early friend of American Independence. Wm. H. Crawford.—The man of the people; the disciple of Jefferson; the honest undeviating republican; like Daniel in the lion's den, he has come forth untouched, unhurt, and unblemished.

By M. L. Davis, Father of the Grand Council. Albert Gallatin—His democratic principles, the pride of his friends; his talents, the dread of his enemies.

By N. Blossom. Wm. H. Crawford—The wicked plotteth against the just, and gnasheth upon him with his teeth.

By a Gentleman from Massachusetts. J. Q. Adams—May neither the ostentation of wealth, the pride of learning, nor family aristocracy ever be suffered to rule the destinies of a free and equal people.

By Jesse Hoyt. The Hon. Walter Ldwrey.—An independent statesman and an honest man. In vindicating himself from unjust and unmerited reproaches, he was instrumental in furnishing to the nation a most profound construction of the second section of the rules and articles of war.

By Dr. Smith. The Hon. Wm. H. Crawford—A man of sterling talents, whose inflexible integrity, like the shield of Minerva, has scattered harmless at his feet the poisoned arrows of calumny, and like tried gold from the refiner's furnace, his character shines with additional splendor.

At a dinner of "National Republicans of the school of 1804," in Boston, the following was the seventh among the regular toasts:

"A CONGRESSIONAL CAUCUS: The anchor cast in the storm of '98, which has held the Republican barque to its moorings for a quarter of a century—may it not be dragged from its hold on the confidence of the people, by the whirlwinds of factious and interested combinations." Tune—Auld Lang Syne.

New-York, July 13.

In part of our publication of yesterday, we announced the bursting of the boiler of the steam ferry boat Jersey, and the death of one of the passengers. Last evening, we went to Jersey City, and saw the wreck of the boat, and learnt the following particulars:

About one o'clock, the boat arrived at the city of Jersey, from Courtland street dock, the passengers landed, and the men were employed in getting in wood, the steam at the moment discharging through the safety pipe, when the boiler burst with an explosion which was heard in this city, and at Bergen and Hoboken. The boiler was seen to rise forty feet from the deck when it exploded, and the fragments flew from 10 to 30 feet from the boat, destroying all the wood work with which they came in contact.—Miss Charlotte Nelson, about nineteen years old, an adopted daughter of Mr. Peter V. Ledyard, of this city who had just stepped on board the boat to return home, was struck by a part of the wreck, and driven against the bulk-head and was instantly killed. The engineer was not on board when the accident occurred.—The pilot, Mr. Wm. West, was just stepping from the boat to the wharf, but had not got far enough to escape the boiling water, with which he, together with a colored boy, were scalded.—Mr. W. severely.

No person can account for the accident, unless the boiler and pipes were choked with salt. The boiler was nearly new, on the low pressure principle; and the furnace of 3-8 copper, was supposed to be one of the best in the Port of New-York.—Com. Adv.

An equality of condition between persons about to form matrimonial alliances, is often thought to lay a surer foundation for domestic comfort, than those diversities either in fortune or acquirements, which seem to place the parties greatly in contrast with each other. It is probable that this idea was present to the mind of both Dr. Johnson and Mrs. Potter, whom he afterwards married. At one of their interviews during courtship, the Doctor told her "that he was of a mean extraction, that he had no money, and that he had an uncle that was hanged;" to which, by way of reducing herself to an equality with him, she replied, "that she had no more money than he," and that though "no relation of hers had been hanged, she had fifty who deserved hanging." Augusta Chron.

HAVANNA, JUNE 26.

"A brig arrived a few days since, with 401 negroes, captured on the coast of Brazil, under the Brazilian flag by the Spanish privateer, ROMANO belonging to this port, and sent in for adjudication. It is said that two hundred died the first night of her arrival with the Yellow vomit! God knows where they were buried."

Way Passenger.—While the Custom House Officers and keeper of the Coffee-House were boarding a schooner entering the Philadelphia harbor, a Sturgeon upwards of seven feet long, leaped in and took passage with them, to the great annoyance of his companions.

Murder by runaways.—We understand, says the Fayetteville Observer, that three persons of the patrol near Bladen, in endeavoring to put an end to a negro carousal four or five nights since, had an encounter with three runaway negroes, in which one of the patrol, and one of the blacks were killed.

One of the three runaways, an outlaw by the name of Jack, belonging to Col. Andrews of Bladen, was attacked by one of the patrol, and turned upon the assailant with a long knife. The patrol received a wound or two, and then wresting the knife from the outlaw gave him a mortal wound; but was himself shot dead by another of the runaways. The two blacks escaped.

A fearful casualty.—On Tuesday last, a young man named Irvin Gunter, and negro Moses, belonging to Dr. R. H. Crowell, residing about 7 miles from this place, having retired for shelter, during a heavy thunder gust, to a scaffold erected under a tree near the house, were both instantaneously killed by lightning.—Halifax Free Press.

NATURAL CURIOSITY IN CLINTON.

Near the top of the Mountain, under the first cliff of rocks, about a mile and a half from the road leading to Niagara, (on the Canadian shore,) is situated a large Cave, within which, about a rod from its mouth, is a spring which flows the whole year. About the end of March, the water issuing from the rocks freezes, forming large pieces of ice. During the heat of summer the ice continues to form. In the Fall of the year, about the end of September, as the weather gets cooler, the ice disappears, and there is no ice formed, during the cold winter months, until the ensuing spring. The water is quite pure issuing out of the rock.

From the New-York Evening Post.

LIVELY TRAVELLING.

O! what a row, what a rampus and a riot.—The Olive Branch and Kent, alias the old line and opposition, alias the monopoly and free trade and coasters' rights, alias regular nomination and the people's ticket, left here yesterday morning in company for Albany, each boat "crowded to overflowing."—An hour before the appointed time of sailing, the note of preparation was struck, and such another din of bells, hautboys, French horns and speaking trumpets, wrangling, bustling, clanking and clanking, was never heard. The hundreds on board, the thousands on the wharf; carmen, bates and boxes; horses, carts and bugles; bells, outrunners, and boats; nay the world itself seemed to be under the all powerful influence of steam. Do you go to Albany, Sir? Will you take the Olive Branch, Sir? This way, sir—this way sir—stand clear—clear the road—I spoke to him first—clear out—hind the gangway—mind your business—Puff goes the steam—smoke that fellow—I shall be killed—oh! I'm dead—All hum, buz, rattle, pine smoke and steam. A passage to Albany—the pleasure of a crowded cabin—and all this bell ringing and music, for the small sum of two dollars! Who under such circumstances would not go to ALBANY.

MARRIED.

At Waynesboro', on the 15th ult. Dr. Tho. Ward, formerly of Warren county, to Miss Elizabeth A. Blackman.

DIED.

In Randolph County, on the 11th inst. after a long and painful illness, which he bore with christian fortitude, Zebedee Wood, Esq. in the 81st year of his age. In the death of this venerable man, an aged widow is left to mourn for an affectionate husband, to soothe and comfort her in the last decline of life; children have lost a fond and indulgent parent, and the society in which he dwelt, is deprived of its greatest ornament.

Perhaps it seldom happens, that one man should possess so many virtues as did the deceased. He was a loving and tender husband, an affectionate parent, a kind neighbor, a steady friend and a firm patriot. His house was open to the stranger, and the poor never went away empty. So eminent were his virtues, that he was universally beloved and respected by all who knew him. He was for many years a member of the Methodist Church, and died in full confidence, that after death he should realize the blessings that are promised in the Gospel to those who "die in the Lord."

At Fayetteville on the 2d inst. of pulmonary consumption Mr. Peter Smith, late principal clerk in the Branch of the State Bank at that place, aged 38 years. His character was marked by scrupulous integrity and uniform correctness.

At the residence of his father, Alex. M'Alister, Esq. in Cumberland county, on the 11th inst. Cole M'Alister aged 14 years.

In Rowan county, on the 3d inst. Mr. Jacob Albright, in the 70th year of his age.—He had been a citizen of that county for upwards of 50 years, and was one of those who shared in the troubles of the revolution in which he took an active part from first to last.

STRAY.

ENTERED on the Stray Book of Stokes County, Bethania, by John Grabs, one SOBEL MARE, with a blaze in her face, three feet white, two old shoes on; 14 hands high, five years old, sore back, no brands visible. Appraised to Fifty Dollars. WM. A. LASH, Ranger. Bethania, June 21st, 1824. 69-2w.

Runaway.

TAKEN up and committed to the Jail of Wake County, on the 13th inst. a Negro Man, who says his name is LONDON and that he belongs to Doctor Ward of Wayneborough, in the lower part of this State. The owner is requested to come forward, prove property, pay charges and take him away; otherwise he will be disposed of as the law directs. SAMUEL E. PULLEN, Jailor. July 15. 70

Land for Sale.

HAVING duly qualified as administrator de bonis non with the will annexed, upon the Estate of Col. Ransom Southard, dec'd. I shall, in execution of the last Will and Testament of my testator, proceed to expose for sale to the highest bidder, on the 10th of August next, at the late dwelling-house of the deceased, in the county of Wake, 18 miles north of the City of Raleigh, the real estate, consisting of 27 or 28 hundred acres of good land, of which the said Testator died seized and possessed. This land lies on both sides of the main road leading from Raleigh to Oxford, and contains valuable improvements—consisting of a large and commodious dwelling house, with the usual houses appurtenant, necessary for the accommodation of a family, and all the necessary farm houses; a small dwelling-house with other houses necessary for a small family, to which is attached a good store-house, and an ordinary good Grist Mill. There are few tracts of land better watered than this; it abounds with good springs, and never failing streams. Terms of credit will be one, two and three years; the purchaser giving bond, with three approved securities. J. W. HARRIS, Adm'r. June 4th, 1824.
