To the Filitars of the Raleigh Register. We request you to give the following - correspondence an insertion in your next paper :

AUGUST 14th, 1824.

Mesare. Gales & San : date, we have seen a piece signed " Hecora and his country, he has ever scorned, for evar," in which our names are brought with indignation, all such baseness before the public, in a way and for a purpose which cannot be misunderstood, and as nei ther of us are holders of seekers of office, it has appeared to us, the extreme of indecorum to introduce into a public Journal, our names under an anonymous signature. If, airs, you are, yourselves, the authors of the friendly vermin of theirs, conscious of piece alluded to, we flatter ourselves you will the fact should thus crowd after him have the frankness to avow it ; if you are not, then we demand from you a written declaration of the author's name.

> NO. II. THE ANSWER.

RALEIGH, AUG. 14, 1824. GENTLEMEN : In answer to your note of this date, delivered to as by Mr. William H. Hill, we inform you that the publication in our last Register, to which you allude, was handed to us for insertion by Mr. William Ruffin, of this City, who we believe is the author of it.

We are, respectfully, JO. GALES & SON.

Col. WM. POLK, Dr. Buners.

In consequence of this letter, the following was transmitted to Mr. Ruffin, through Mr. Ross.

RALEIGH, AUG. 16, 1824, Mr. William Ruffin :

13th instant, we noticed a communication over the signature of " Hiccora for evar," in which our names were, as we conceive, indecorously and unjust fiably brought before the public. Under this impression, on the subsequent evening, we addressed to the editors of the Register, the following note-(See No. 1.)

To this note we received, yesterday, through the medium of the Junior E itor of the Register, the following reply-(See Nate No. 2.) The act of which we complain is one of accounted for : the fact is, they have they abuse him, by way of satiating their envy and prejudice. Had Mr. "rawford ever been guilty of grovelling in the dirty and base rubbish of in trigne, in company with the most of his fellow-servants, at the Metropolis, he might now be hailed by those wicked GENTLEVEX-In the Register of this Republic. But, happily for himself He has always trod the straight and righteous path, and has actually advanced so far before them all, in point of every thing that is noble, wise and honest, that it is no wonder these and curse him.

The brilliancy of Mr. Crawford's virtues, and the splendor of his talents, seem to act upon his enemies something like the sun upon the human sight; for if a man look at the sun he does so with pain; just so it is with Mr. Crawford's enemies, when they behold him glittering like yellow gold, in the midst of all his dazzling virtues and shining talents, which he so happily possesses, they, all the while, behold him with agonies, while they cannot but admire him. Those ungrateful writers who' have taken up hostile pens against Mr. Crawford, would have it appear, if possible, that he is the most flagitious rogue unhung; that he has been guilty of woful misconduct in the Treasury Department, and that he has actually swindled the United States out of thousands of her money. They Books, amongst which are the following : also say, that he is a warm advocate Duponceau, on the Jurisdiction of the Courts of the Tariff, in all its features, and that he has advocated a vast catalogue SIR-In the "Raleigh Register," of the of other mean and impolitic acts ; but I would advise those false tattlers to tell it not in Gath, for I can assure Miss Aikin's Memory & we en Elizabeth them that all such tales as these are hissed at, even by the most credulous. But it is worthy of consideration who these waggish writers are, who wield such impotent pens against Mr. Crawford, and from whence they gathered all their boasted information and knowledge respecting him. This is easily

It appears to me to be unnecessary (at least for the present) to notice any other part of your communication, than the first sentence of the concluding paragraph-in which you speak of the " manifest impropriety, injustice and indelicacy" which my conduct has been uses; for it is one thing certain, that marked with towards you. Believe me, gentlemen, you have only to convince me of that fact, to obtain the " most ample and satisfactory apology"--and you will not be more ready to receive, than I shall be prompt in tendering. But neither your letter, nor a review of the subject, has brought me to the adoption of your opinion. Nothing in the piece alluded to was intended to affect, or can affect your private characters : the whole scope of it goes to public matters; and the chief of it relates to the proceedings of a meeting of citizens heretofore, which was given to the public under the sanction of cal respectability, of which the followyour nanus.
