

POETRY.

ON THE RUINS OF FORT PUTNAM, WEST POINT.

Dreary and lone as the scenes that surround thee,
Thy battlements rise 'mid the crags of the w<sup>ld</sup>,
Yet dear are thy ruins, for brightly around thee
Twas here the first dawn of our Liberty smil'd.

But lonely's thy terrace—thy walls are forsaken,
In ruins around thy proud ramparts lie low,
And never again shall thy cannon awaken
The echo that sleeps in thy vaults below.

Silence now reigns thy dark ruins among,
Where once rang'd the die & the war drum beat loud.

Now the scream of the eagle slow sailing along,
Alone sends its note from the mists of the cloud.

But where are the heroes whose home once was here,
When the legions of Tyranny peopled our shore—

Who here rais'd the standard to Freedom so dear,
And guarded thy home 'mid the battle's fierce roar?

They sleep in yon vale—their rude fortress below,
Where darkly the shade of the cedar is spread,

And hoarse through the valley the mountain-winds blow,
Where lowly they rest in the sleep of the dead.

The flowers of the forest have brighten'd that spot,
The wild rose has scatter'd its bloom o'er that ground.

Where lonely they lie—now to getting—
Unawak'd by the mountain-storm thundering around.

AGAINST BIGOTRY.

MARS 9 c. 38, 39 v.<sup>o</sup> "And John answered him saying, Master, we use one casting out Devils in thy name, and we forbids him because he followeth not us.—And Jesus said, forbid him not."

But shall we not forbid one who thus cesteth out devils, if he followeth not us? This, it seems, was both the judgment and practice of the Apostle, 'till he returned the case to his master. "We forbids him," saith he, "because he followeth not us;" which he thought to be a very good reason. The lowest circumstance we can understand thereto is, he has no outward connection with us. We do not labor in connection with each other. Many there will necessarily be in different parts of the harvest—so far from having any mutual recourse, that they will be as absolute strangers to each other as if they had been in different ages of the world. A further meaning of this expression may be, he is not of our party. It has long been a matter of serious consideration to all who pray for the peace of Jerusalem, that so many pious are still subsisting among those who are styled Christians. The most trifling circumstances have given rise to different parties, which have continued for many ages; and each of these would be ready to object to one who was on the other side,—"he followeth not us."

There was a time when all Christians were of one mind, as well as of one heart; so great grace w<sup>s</sup> upon them all when they were first filled with the holy spirit. But, alas! how short a space did this blessing continue: n<sup>o</sup> soon w<sup>s</sup> that unanimity lost, and a difference of opinion sprung up again even in the Church of Christ.

"Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name, and we forbids him."—If we either directly or indirectly forbids him, because he followeth not us, then we are bigots. Do you beware of this—take care, first, that you do not convict yourself of bigotry by your unready to believe that any man does cast out devils, who differs from you; & if you are clear thus far, if you acknowledge the fact, then examine yourself, secondly, a "I not convicted of Bigotry in this—in forbidding him directly or indirectly? Do I not forbids him on that ground, because he is not of my party; because he does not fall in with my opinions; do I not discourage him because he is not of my church, by disputing with him concerning it? Do I shew no anger, contempt or unkindness of any sort, either in words or actions? Do not I hinder sinners from hearing his words? If you do any of these things, you are a bigot to this day."

Search me, O Lord, and prove me—try out my reins and my heart—look well if there be any Bigotry in me, and lead me in the way of everlasting life, for Christ's sake. C. M. E.
