POETRY THE LIGHT HOUSE.

The scene was more beautiful by far to mine eves,

Than if day is her pride had array'd it, The land breeze blew mild, and the azure blue skiel

Look'd pure as the spirit that made it.

On the forecastle I stood and eagerly ga-

And tho't on my friends with emotion, But what joy inspired me when the lighthouse fire blazed,

Like a star in the midst of the ocean.

to longer the joy of the Sailor boy's breast Was heard in its wildly breath'd num-1016

The Sea-fawl had flown to her wave girdied nest,

And the fisherman gone to his slumbers.

One moment I gazed at the hills gentle

All/hush'd was the billow's commotion : I then that the light house look'd lovely as hope,

That star on life's tremufous ocean.

Though the time is long past and the · scene is afar:

Ver when I rest my head on my pillow, Will memory sometimes enkindle the star.

That shone on the breast of the billow.

In life's last trying hour when, the trembling soul flies

And death chills the heart's last emotion.

Oh ! then may the Seraph of mercy arise, like a star on Fternity's occan.

THE LATE JARED INGERSOLL. From the Washington (Pa.) Reporter.

Funeral eulogiums are too frequently trite, common-place, and unmerited. The tears of the community are too ofen implored in vain by partial friendship, by unfounded vanity, or by undeserving arrogance. There are, however, some individuals who cannot depart from this terrestrial scene of duty and of labor either unreproached or unregretted. Their absence is a pub-

the ordinances and service of the altar and the church : and thus having learned to consecrate himself to the service, and to imitate the humility and acrifices of his Divine Master ; we be lieve him, after having earned the respect of his triends and the gratitude of the republic, to merit the heavenly approbation --- Well done thou good and faithful servant. enter thou into the rest of thy Lord."

The high land is well timbered, and fertile the low grounds as, good as any on the river. The improvements are unexceptionable, even in the estimation of the most fasticious. The residence of Col. B. is fitted up with taste and convenience and few families with or without taste would wish any thing added. The plan tation, is well enclosed, under a system of improved and pr ditable husbandry, and furnished with every house and fix ture necessary for a crop, or stock ; the accommodation of an overseer, or ne groes. It situation is healthy and agree able-suffice it to say that, to persons wishing to vest funds in such property, it offers more inducements than any in that section of country; and it is very rare that such an estate is brot into the market The subscribers, however, hope that purchasers will not rely on their account of the property, but judge for themselves. The subscribers also feel it their duty to state that, the Negroes are in every respect worthy of the notice of purchasers ; particularly of such as want them for their own service. They are in families and raised by Col. B. on the estate ; consisting of four well instructed, honest Blacksmiths, and a number of well disciplined, trusty house servants, male and female, besides field hands, women and children. As the sum of money to be raised will be upwards of $40,000, and as the injunction which prevented a sale last winter has been accommodated, and the sale is with the consent of all concerned, it is believed by the subscribers, that no fears or apprehensions need be entertained about its certainty. chre is the extinction of one of the lights of society.

In the death of the late JARED ING-ERSOLL, of Philadelphia, we lament over the remains of a person undoubtedly of extraordinary worth. Without being gilted by nature with the inherent characters or charms of genius. he attained to the height of learning, ability, integrity, and universal estimation, by the vigour of his moral excellence and untiring effort of mind.

He commenced his career during the transactions of our glorious revolution, and imbibed the republican principles from the atmosphere which burned around his youth. Having embellished his American education by European travel, and confirmed his legal studies in the Temple and the courts then illustrated by the presiding intellects of Camden and Mansfield, he was received on his return with cordiality by his contrymen. and but a brief period of exertion at the bar preceded his election to the Congress and Conventions which formed and established the governments of this country on those regulican principles, which, as they are the admiration are probably destined to be the regulating model of the enlightened and christian world .-Highly distinguished and personally esteemed in this exalted sphere, he has since successively filled the most important legal offices in this state and in the Union ; and, at the time of his death occur ying the rank of presiding judge in an important tribunal, he died as he had long lived in the hearts of his juniors, the father of the Philadelphia bar.

Endowed originally with a fortune considered affluent in those times of simplicity, and augmenting it by the increasing wealth of a most successful and laborious practice, it was his misfortune in the midst of a promising prosperity, to find himself not only deprived of every thing, but rendered liable to immense debts, by a too liberal confidence in commercial friends. From this misfortune, which might have overwhelmed a common mind, his integrity defived additional lustre. For nearly thirty years of his life, the proceeds of his learning and labors were faithfully devoted to the lic loss, and the gloom of their sepul- Session. Music, Drawing, and Painting, and the Latin and Greek Languages are hty Court Clerk's office of Mecklenburg. Music 30 dollars, Drawing and Painting || cure the payment of different sums of 20 dellars, and the Languages 10 dollars, per Session.

The amount for Board and Tuition is pavable in advance, and each lady is to furnish herself with a coverlid, a pair of sheets, blankets and towels.

New Pupils pay only from the part of the Session in which they are admitted .-There are 8 competent teachers, whose time is devoted to the business of this In stitution.
