

POETRY.

Seldom, indeed, do we read such heart-touching lines as the following: lines which none but a mother's feeling could inspire, and who seems to be looking on the very object, as she paints its speaking features, as they lie before her.

THE FAREWELL TO THE DEAD YOUTH.

By Mrs. Hemans.

Come near—ere yet the dust
Soil the bright paleness of the settled brow,
Look on your brother, and embrace him now,
In still and solemn trust!

Look yet on this young face!
What shall the beauty, from amongst us
Gone,
Leave of its image, e'en where most it shone,
Gladdening its heart and race?

Ye weep, and it is well!
For tears best earth's partings—Yesterday
Sons—as upon the lips of this pale clay,
And sunshine seem'd to dwell
Where'er he mov'd—the welcome and the Bless'd!

Now gaze! and bear the silent to his rest.
Look yet on him, whose eye
Meets yours no more, in sadness or in mirth!
Was he not fair amongst the sons of earth,
The being born to die?

How may the mother's heart
Dwell on her son, and dare to hope again?
The spring's rich promise, hath been given
In vain,
The lovely must depart!
Is he not gone, our brightest and our best?
Come near! and bear the early called to rest.

Look on him as he laid
To slumber from the harvest of the chase?
Too still and sad the smile upon his face
Yet that, e'en that, must fade!
Death will not hold unchanged his fairest
Guest!

Come near! and bear the mortal to his rest!
His voice of mirth hath ceased
Amidst the vineyards! there is left no place
For him whose dust receives your last embrace,
At the gay bridal feast!

Earth must take earth to moulder on her breast!
Come near! weep o'er him! bear him to his rest.

Yet mourn ye not as they
Whose spirit's light is quenched?—For him
Is seal'd. He may not fall, he may not cast
His birthright's hope away!
All is not here of our beloved and bless'd!
Leave ye the sleeper with his God to rest.

THE FUNERAL AT SEA.

It was a morning at sea. The sun had just risen, and not a cloud appeared to obstruct his rays. A light breeze played on the bosom of the slumbering ocean.—The stillness of the morning was only disturbed by the ripple of the water, or the diving of a flying fish.—It seemed as if the calm and noiseless spirit of the deep was brooding over the waters. The national flag, displayed half way down the royal mast, played in the breeze, unconscious of its solemn import. The vessel glided in serenity, and seemed tranquil as the element on whose surface she moved. She knew not of the sorrows that were in her own bosom, and seemed to look down on the briny expanse beneath her in all the confidence and security of strength.

To the minds of her brave crew, it was a morning of gloom. They had been boarded by the angel of death! and the forecastle now contained all that was mortal of his victim. His soul had gone to its final audit. Grouped around the windlass, and left to their own reflections, the hardy sons of the ocean mingled their sympathies with each other. They seemed to think of their own mortality. Conscience was at her post. And I believe their minds were somewhat impressed with the realities of eternity.

They spoke of the virtues of their deceased messmate—of his honesty, his sensibility, his generosity. One remembered to have seen him share the last dollar of his hard earned wages with a distressed shipmate. All could attest his liberality. They spoke too of his accomplishments as a sailor. Of the nerve of his arm, and the intrepidity of his soul. They had seen him in an hour of peril, when the winds of heaven were let loose in all their fury, and destruction was on the wing, seize the helm and hold the ship securely within his grasp, till the danger had passed by.

They would have indulged longer in their reveries; but they were summoned to prepare for the rites of sepulture, and pay the last honors to their dead companion. The work of preparation was commenced with heavy hearts, and many a sigh. A rude coffin was soon constructed, and the body deposited within it. All was ready for the final scene.—The main hatches were his bier,—a spare sail was his pall. His surviving comrades in their tar stained habiliments stood around. All were silent. The fresh ning breeze moaned through the cordage. The main topsail was hoisted to the mast. The ship passed on her course and stood still. The funeral began; and as "we commit his body to the deep" was pronounced, I heard the knell of the ship bell—I heard the plunge of the coffin—I saw the tear start from the eyes of the generous tars. My soul melted within me, as I reverted to the home scenes of him whom we had buried in the deep—to hopes that were to be dashed with woe—to joys that were to be drowned in lamentation. I. E.

True religion gives an engaging delicacy to our manners, which education or nature may mimic, but can never attain to. A sense of our infirmities and insufficiency makes us modest. A sense of divine presence makes us decent and sincere. A sense of our corruption, natural and moral, makes us humble. A sense of divine goodness and mercy, makes us obliging and compassionate. A sense of our immortality makes us cheerful and happy. True religion is a principle of heavenly peace within us, which expands itself over the human frame and conduct, and sheds light and beauty on all around us. At ease within ourselves, we cannot give others trouble; when the master is God, the servants Godlike, and if our conversation be on heaven, the graces of heaven will dwell on our lips, and shine forth in our actions. Religion, when it is sincerely embraced, gives contentment and patience to the sick, joy to the penitent, strength to the weak, sight to the blind, and life in death itself.

Truth and plain dealing are sometimes the result of friendship. But to utter in conversation any thing, which, though true, gives useless and unnecessary pain, is not only a breach of good manners, but of good morals, and indicates a disposition naturally cruel and ferocious. The man who wantonly tortures the mind of his fellow creature, would torment his body if he could do it with impunity.

The feelings of the heart leave traces on the memory more sweet as well as more indelible, than any actions of the mind; and a glance of the eye which awakens one chord of affection, conveys one new beam of hope or light, will be remembered when the brightest sallies of intellect, the happiest strokes of wit, are vanished for ever.

COTTON GINS. NATHAN G. BLOUNT, at Kinston, in Lenoir county, continues to make Cotton Gins, with every late improvement. His Plates and Bars are of steel, and these, as well as every material part of the Iron Work, are made by his special order in Philadelphia. To the many respectable planters and merchants who have had Gins of his manufacture in use for the last two years, he refers, to sustain the claims of his machines, to rank among the best made in this country. His price is two dollars and fifty cents per Saw for 8 inch, two dollars and sixty cents for 9 inch, and two dollars and seventy cents for Saws of 10 inches diameter, delivered at his shop. Gentlemen favoring him with their orders, shall not be disappointed either as to time or quality. As his importation of materials will be governed by the orders he receives, he requests that orders intended for him may be early given. Kinston, April 24. 32 St

100 DOLLARS REWARD.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber's Plantation in Chesterfield District South Carolina, early last autumn, two Negro Men, CHARLES and BILL. Charles is of ordinary size, well made, yellow complexion, remarkably intelligent, speaks quick, is about 25 years of age.—He was purchased in Beaufort county. Bill absconded with him, is about 20 or 25 years of age, is low, and has a scar I believe on one of his cheeks, perhaps a scar on his head; he is also inclined to yellow complexion, and beats on the drum tolerably well. Bill was purchased in the neighborhood of Snowhill. Charles may perhaps attempt to pass himself as a free man. The above reward will be given to any person who will return them to my plantation; or half the above reward will be given to any person who will secure them in Jail, or in proportion for either of them, and give me information. PLEASANT H. MAY. March 10.

The Editors of the Raleigh Star and Newbern Centinel, are requested to insert the above until otherwise ordered, and in the mean time forward their papers to me at Statesburg, S. C.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court of Judicature, to be holden at Portsmouth, within and for the county of Rockingham, in the State of New-Hampshire, on the 3d Tuesday of February, A. D. 1823.

The Libel of Caroline Hall White, wife of William White, late of said Portsmouth, gentleman, against the said William White.

YOUR libellant doth respectfully propose and declare, and give this Court to understand, that, on the 14th day of February, in the year of our Lord 1819, she was lawfully married to the said William White, to wit, at said Portsmouth; and your libellant hath ever since, from thence, hitherto conducted herself with fidelity, purity and discretion as the lawful wife of the said William White; nevertheless, the said William White, well knowing the premises, and without cause or fault in your libellant, hath willingly absented himself from your libellant (so being his lawful wife as aforesaid) for the space of three years now last past, and, during the same, and hitherto, without making suitable provision for her support and maintenance, although the said William White had it in his power so to do. All and singular of which premises were and are true, public and notorious, of which, legal proof being made, your libellant respectfully prays that the bonds of marriage between her and the said William White may be dissolved according to the force and effect of the statute in such case made and provided, and as to right and justice doth appertain. And as in duty bound, will ever pray. CAROLINE WHITE. N. A. HAVEN, Jr. Proctor for Libellant. Portsmouth, Jan. 27. 33 St

Superior Court of Judicature, February Term, 1823.

ORDERED by the Court, that the petitioner notify the said William White to appear before the Justices of the Superior Court of Judicature, to be holden at Exeter, within and for the county of Rockingham, on the third Tuesday of September next, to shew cause, if any he have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted, by causing said petition, and order of court thereon, to be published three weeks successively in the National Intelligencer, and some paper printed in North-Carolina, the last publication whereof to be six weeks before said term. Attest, NATHANIEL ADAMS, Clerk. Copy examined by Nathaniel Adams, Clerk. 33 St
