FRIDAY, AUGUST 22, 1823.

The next President The Star. Trinted at this place, expresses an opinion that the popularity of Mr. Crawford is rapidly declining in this State. We do not admit the statement to be torrect, and call upon the writer of that paragraph, for proof of this broad resertion. Where will he look for it? Will it be found in popular assemblies in private meetings-in friendly discussions, or in family circles? No, there it cannot be found. Has the writer attended muster-grounds and barbacues, and there called out like the Philosopher of old, Eureka, Eureka? But to a serious investigation of this mistaken opinion. We deem it, impossible, that any man who cousiders with an impartial eye and unbiassed judgment, the conduct of parties respecting the Presidential Election, an believe for a moment, as far as reles to this State, that any candidate an be placed in competition with Mr.

members for the State Legislatureshove all let them examine the Congressional elections, and candidly answer us, whether they find any indications of the popularity of Mr. Crawford, being on the " trane." From all the Congressionallelections within this State the results of which have been ascertained. Representatives ave been returned decidedly favorable to the claims of Mr. Crawford. And we understand that in three districts, vet to he heard from, one of which is termed "Mr. Calbonn's strong hold," the issue will be not only honorable to Mr. Crawford, but doubly so: for that in all probability, despite of powerful opposition the friends of that gentleman will be returned, while they who are adverse to him, will be allowed to remain at home and enjoy offium cum dignitate. Where then, shall we look for proof of Mr. Crawford's unpopularity. The voice of a State speaks through its Representatives—the Representatives of North-Carolina are friendly to Mr. Crawford, whence we draw the unavoidable inference that this gentleman instead of "rapidly declining" is visibly upon the ascend-We have before insisted and still persist in declaring, that the circumstance of Mr. Crawford's giving way to Mr. Monroe, is an evidence of his modest, unambitious character, and should more firmly endear him to the American People. He declined a competition, and yet got fifth five genuine democratic votes. And we are now told he is no Penublican-and that he is at the head of a faction! Of the existence of Radicals, a slang name given to Mr. Crawford's friends, we know nothing, and care less .- And the only excuse we have for those who thus bespatter the party, is that abuse is very easy, when argument fails, and that moderation in political discussione, is a rare qualification, for "impartiality is a virtue which hange too high for common minds to reach." We have already said, that we entertain a very high opinion of Mr. Calhoun, and in this we have the good fortune to have the Star follow our lead, but however respectable his character, however splendid his talente. and however high we estimate his priwate worth, he is too young to he placat the head of bur General Government. Hitherto, the Presidential Chair has been filled by the venerable Fathers of their Country, whose youth had been spent in her service, and who merited the distinction not less from their long tried patriotism, than for their political knowledge, their public exertions, and their private integrity. Such a man, or we mistake his character is Mr. Crawford, and sufficient is known of him to warrant his just pretensions to the Presidency. Let it be known, he has risen from the Democratic floor, and has been the artificer of his own fortune—it is more to his honor. As a Barrister-a Legislator -a Financier and a Statesman, Mr. Crawford has passed the ordeal of public opinion, and come out purified .-His plain unostentatious habits-his vigorous mind-his information on foreign and domestic politics, and his general knowledge, eminently fit him for the exalted station to which he seems destined. Those who have observed the political bearings and private prudence of this distinguished man, will have no difficulty in admitting his claims to the high office in questionthose who have not, will do well to enquire, before they assume the place of dictators. Above all, Mr. Crawford will never involve his country in war unless in absolute defence, to swallow up the hard earnings of honest labor.

One thing we must be permitted to say, in reply to the doubts entertained by the Star on the score of Mr. Crawford's republicanism. We confess this is an objection, that could not reasonably have been expected from that quarter! As well however, might they question the pure democratic principles of our own venerable patriot, Macon, the tried and particular friend of the popular Candidate. The insinuation also made, that this State is influenced in her political course, by her respectable neighbor Virginia, is an aspersion upon its independent character. We venture to predict, that when the eventful crisis arrives, North-Carolina will not only act independently but efficiently.

done. We perceive that some writers on the Presidential Question, blinded by party zeal, are still harping on the old affair of the suppressed document and urging it against Mr. Crawford. It is absolutely an insult to the understandings of the community, that such an objection should be brought forward after the actors in the plot have themselves been driven from before the public, and compelled in order to avoid the execration they deserve, to hide themselves in secre- late treaty with Spain, (says the Na-

-they wished that the whole subject, and all the persons connected with it should be brought before the public. But what was the conduct of the actors in the A. R. plot? Shielding themselves behind constitutional privileges " they sought darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil:" they became the defendants when from the nature of the charges they had exhibited, they ought to have heen the prosecutors. Who is to blame if more of this disgraceful business is not known ? Is Mr. Crawford. or tiose who professed friendship for him? No, but his worst enemies, the very persons, who made the accusation and who refused to answer questions although npon oath. How contemptible the actors, how disgraceful the scenes were in this drama, are well known : let them be forever consigned to merited oblivion.

Most of our readers probably recollect. (says the Western Carolinian) that the Rev. Colin McIver, of Favetteville, last year published a neat little packet Almanack, styled the "North-Carolina Register and United States Calender." He now proposes to publish one for 1824, with improvements, corrections, &c. To those who have seen the last year's publication, we need not say any thing of its merits; but to those who have not, we must briefly observe, that, if they have neither the time nor opportunity to search libraries, napers, documents, &c. this little book will afford them a great deal of valuable information, relative to the departments and officers of the general and state governments. the public institutions, societies, corporations, companies, &c. of the State. It is requested by Mr. McIver, that all those who wish copies of the work, will inform him by mail, post-paid, directed to Favetteville, N. C. as soon as possible, as it is necessary the work should be commenced about the 1st September.

An unfortunate occurrence, (says the Favetteville Observer) took place in Anson county, a few days since, by which a worthy citizen was suddenly deprived of life. The ciccumstances, we learn, were as follows; Mr. Dejarnette, having a dispute with one of his neighbors, took down his gun, for the purpose of striking him with the butt of it: the person attacked, very naturally, reced his arm to defend his head 'on t'e blow, and unluckily hit the trigger-the gun immediately went off, and lodged its contents in the body of Mr. Dejarnette, who expired almost instantateously.

Louisiana .- In this State, the newspapers announce Henry-Johnson as a candidate for the office of Governor, to succeed Governor Robertson, whose term of service will soon expire, being limited by the State Constitution .-Mr., Johnson (says the National Intelligencer) is at present a Senator from this State, and, highly appreciating his estimable qualities, public and private, we shall part from him with great regret, though we are confident the selection of him for Governor will be of importance to the interests of the People and State over which he will, in all probability, be elected to

Sir ROBERT WILSON met with a splended reception in Spain. Civil and military honors were showered upon him. At Pontredesa, the young ladies placed a crown of laurel upon his head, and with a triumphal car escorted him into the town, amidst the rejoicings of the people, and a discharge of artillery. Sir Robert was accompanied by Col. Light, Capt. Erskine, and several German and French officers, who intended to fight in favor of the Spanish Constitution.

WILLIAM COBBETT has received a large silver medal from the London Society for the encouragement of arts, manufactures and agriculture, for his discovery of an English grass, which he had bleached by a skilful process, and had caused to be platted by some of the manufacturers in Hertfordshire, which surprised the dealers in that article, and was quite equal to the manufactures imported from Italy.

It appears, by an article going the unfortunate Marshal Ney, who was shot at Paris on the restoration of the Bourbons, was an American by birth, was born near Elkton, Maryland, and that his proper name was Michael Rudolph. His history is briefly this: He commenced his military career, and received the first rudiments of his education in Captain Lee's dragoons of the Maryland line during the Revolution, from which he was honorably discharged. He was born in Cecil county in that state, and after the period of his discharge from the army, he removed to Carolina, where he married, but his matrimonial con nexion rendered him unhappy, or which he left his family, took a ves sel to the West Indies-remitted the proceeds, and declined returning to his native country, since which in investigation. They were disposed which it is probable will be their last ition of Ney, took possession of his participants of Philadelphia.

pers and made the discovery. Gen. Lallemand, when in this country, while travelling through Maryland from Philadelphia to Baltimore, confirmed this by a reference to the circumstance. - Bridgeton Whig.

From an intimate knowledge of the Rudolph family, the editor of the Aurora is enabled to state, that the circumstances alluded to in the above paragraph, actually occurred to Michael Rudolph,, and that he was not heard of by any of his relations since his departure from this country, until late events have shown to what distinction the brave American arrived, and to what a disastrous fate that distinction finally led him .- Jurora.

Chillicothe, (Ohio,) Aug. 4. By yesterday's mail from the West, we are advised of the apprehension of John Reese, the celebrated mail-robber. After his second release by Judge Byrd, of Ohio, he posted off to Louisville, Ky, to the stage, under the name of Hanover, and, near to Lexington, he again accomplished his villanous purpose, of robbing the mail. They now have him safe in Kentucky, where he will meet that punishment his crimes so justly deserve. Every effort was made by Mr. Kelly, at Bainbridge, (Ohio,) and Mr. Creighton, of this place, to bring this villian to justice before; but in this we failed, as Judge Byrd appeared determined to discharge him, and willing to throw the blame any where else but on Reese.

Melancholy accident .- Last Sunday a party returning from Church, near Godfrey's ferry, were obliged to take refuge from the impending storm in the house of Mr. Daniel Davis-among them were Benjamin Avant and Miss Ann Philips.

Mr. Avant had reached the door, and Miss Philips was in the act of entering the house, when a tree near them was struck by lightning, the fluid passing the house instantly killed them. Mrs. Davis received a severe shock but soon recovered. No other person was effected by the lightning although the collection was numerous.
