Alaseigh Register. TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 18, 1827.

We have the pleasure of stating that JOHN STANLY, Esq. reached this city on Saturday last, on his return home. from his Tour to the Buncombe and Virginia Springs. The state of his health is much improved, his spirits are good and he has so far regained the use of his affected side, communications are made at the rate of as to walk about his room with a little ass st nce, and as his situation is constantly improving, we hope he will be able again to take his seat in the House of Commons. at the approaching session of our General Assembly.

Death of Mr. Canning .- We announce this sudden and unexpected event with feelings of much concern. The last advices from England had informed us that the Premier had been indisposed, from a Rheu matic attack but was better, and no one had therefore entertained any apprehension of danger from his illness. We now learn that Mr. Canning died of an inflammation of the liver. This sudden dispensation of Providence has produced a great sensation, not only throughout the British dominions, but throughout the civilized World. The event had a momentary effect on the price of the British funds, until it was discovered that the King was resolved to continue the same course of policy which had been adopted by Mr. Canning. It will be seen, in the extracts which we give from the London papers, that Lord Goderich is appointed Premier, with power to arrange the Ministry as he thinks proper. Hi Lordship's talents, though not of that order which at once command universal admiration, are said to be of a high class, & superior to those of most other public men in life. He is of illustrious descent, distinguished for high and honorable principles, spotless integrity and of gentlemanlike manners ; and by a peculiar, frack & manly character, excites in the mind of every one an entire confidence in his judgment. The mind is struck with awe at the contemplation of the succession of catastro phes by which the Chair of the British Premier has been vacated, within a few years. Mr. Perceval perished by the hand of an assassin. Lord Castlereagh, who succeeded him, fell by his own hand. The Ear of Liverpool, who then ascended the seat, is now lying prostrate in political death, andler a stroke of apoplexy'; and scarcely had Mr. Canning made his ministerial arrangements, when he was summoned by the Angel of Death. How unstable and transitory is all human power. Lord Castlereagh denominated the seat of office "a bed of thorns."- We think it may be more Georgia, have offered a premium of 50 dol truly styled a bed of death 1

The Editor of the Telegraph printed at Washington finds fault with the New-York Editor, for thus paying homage to the trappings of royalty. We think ourselves, that this tribute to the departed Statesman had better have been omitted, but certainly, Gen. Green should be the last person to carp at its for that paper has during the summer, defended the conduct of Mr. Canning in relation to the West India Trade, with a zeal becoming the most deoted minion of the Premier and has labored un easingly to place England in the right and America in the wrong.

Telegraph Intelligence is carried to such perfection in France, that a communication is made from Paris to Lisle, a distance of 180 miles in two minutes. A list of five other routes is given not quite so favorable as the first route for the operation, in which 40 miles a minute. The velocity of sound is estimated to be 13 miles a minute ; that of a cannon bail to be 8 miles; so that information is conveyed by means of a Telegraph with three times the velocity o sound, and with five times the speed of a cannon ball !!!

FROM THE LONDON COURIER, AUG. 8. Death of Mr. Canning .- This is a sui unnouncement: and how little was th country prepared, a week ago, to learn the dismal tidings ! Though not, in the or dinary sense of the word, a sudden death, yet the rapid progress of the disease, which terminated thus fatally, gives to the event much of the stunning quaiity of such a calamity.

Mr. Canning has left three childrenwo sons and and a daughter, the Marchioness of Clauricade. His eldest son is a Capain in the Navy ; his youngest son, Charles arrived from Yorkshire the night before last, when he was summoned to attend the death-bed of his illustrious father. He arrived in time to receive his farewell. Mr. Canning was in his 57th year.

A Cabinet Council has been summoned to assemble to-day at the Foreign Office. Mr Herries was to have embarked yesterday for the Continent; but in cousequence of the too certain approach of this sad event which has now taken place, the Hon. Gentlemen suspended his departure. A messenger was sent down to him this norning, at his country seat, and he arrired in town in the course of the day.

A Mesenger was despatched this morning, by Lord Goderich to the King, communicating the result.

Another evidence of the Kings feelings on this melancholy occasion, is to be found in the order to the Treasury, directing, hem to bestow the appointment of Commissioner of the Customs, vacant by the removal of Sir F. Watson to his Majesty's household, on Mr. Stapleton, (Mr. Canning's Private Secretary.) "as a mark of respect for Mr. Canning's memory.

Mr Canning will be buried in Westminster Abbev, as near as circumstances may admit, to the grave of his great model and predecessor, Wm. Pitt.

The funeral will be a private one, in the ordinary sense of the word : but from the number of individuals who have already sent in their names, anxious to assist in paying the last tribute of respect to the memory of the illustrious Statesman. It will, no doubt, like the obsequies of Mr. ceremony.

The National Intelligencer congratulates those who rejoice in the progress of Internal Improvements, upon the decisive step, which the Corporation of Washington has taken towards the construction of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal. It may well be called decisive, for they have subscribed one million of dollars to the Stock. Should the work go on, as we cannot now doubt, to the city of Washington will justly atttach the honor of commencing the work of which the great patriot who gave his own name to the City was the first great projector. An act was also passed by the Corporation, for creating a Stock bearing an interest of 4 per cent. per annum, irredeemable Liverpool, we have received London pafor thirty years, to an amount adequate to satisfy the judgment of the Supreme Court principalty filled with the melancholy dein favor of Chastain Clark, the gentleman who drew a prize of $100,000 in the Washington Canal Lottery which howey. er was embezzled by Gillespie, the Managtr.

Gen. Juckson and the Secretary of the Navy .- The correspondence between these eminent citizens has not yet been brought to light, though from occasional hints in the public papers, we perceive that there is yet a possibility of the Public's being favored with it. A writer in the National Journal, who seems to know very well what he is about, s. ys that a copy of this correspondence was sent by Gen. Jackson, as long ago as in April last, to a supporter of his at Fredericksburg, and is road to individuals occasionally, accompanied by oral commentaries of their own. A narrative is given of the circumstances which led to this correspondence, which were, to say the least of it, very extraordinary --It seems that it originated in a conversation at a private table, in which Mr. Southard had the temerity to express a doubt of the exclusive agency of Gen. Jackson in bring ing about the repulse of the British a New-Orleans. Mr. Southard, it seems, retained some feeling of respect for the services of Mr. Mouroe, ( he late President who, as acting Secretary of War, had an ef ficient agency in preparing the means by which that result was brought abac'; and very naturally he expressed this semiment. The report of this table-talk being carried to the Hermitage, drew for n a demand from Gen. Jackson for exp anations, which brought on the correspondence. This curious correspondence, though it terminated in April last, has not been published by either party. With due deference to both parties, we think it belongs to the political history of the day, as well as the mili tary history of 1814-15, too materially to be withheld from the public eye.-Int.

With the exception of the demise of the Sovereign himself, we do not believe there is an individual now living, whose decease would excite so deep and general sensation. A mighty stupendous moral and political power has been withdrawn which guided not only the interests of our own Empire, but which influenced, in various degrees, the movements of surrounding Empires : a Statesman is no more, with whose prolonged existence the prosperity and freedom of the civilized world was indentified; a Minister has sunk into the grave, who has done more for the glory and honor of his own country, and for the general good of mankind, than any one who wielded the powers he lately wielded, since the time of
