VOL. XXIX.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1829.

NO. 1,380.

On Friday last, the Militia of this County was reviewed by General HENRY BLOWET of Nash.

The name of Gen. E. B. Dudley is announced in the Wilmington Recorder, as a Candidate for Congress in that District, vice Gabriel Holmes, deceased.

The current and uncontradicted report, that CONSTANTINOPLE has fallen before the Army of Russia, is replete with interest to the whole civilized world, though difference of opinion, as on all national subjects, will naturally prevail.

WON by the sword, the Mahomedan religion has been maintained by the sword, until this period. It may be asked now, as in previous contests with Russia, may not the too great extension of that already vast Empire, from a cold and invigorating, to a warm and enervating climate, weaken rather than strengthen her general power?

The most animated description of Constantinople, its rivers, picturesque scenery and adornments, may be found in the second volume of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire.

The Turks in private life are generally mild and peaceable, and their public crimes and punishments are perhaps more owing to the absurd bigotry of their religion and the despotic nature of their Government, than to the natural man.

Since the above was in type, we have received intelligence from Liverpool to the 10th Sept. The report of the capture of Constantinople is not confirmed.

The Sultan had recognized the Independence of Greece.

The Elections are just over in Delaware. The Anti-Jackson candidate, for Governor, DAVID HAZARD, has succeeded, and the Legislature, is as two to one against the Jackson party.

Penitentiary System.—We learn from the Milledgeville Recorder, that the labor of the convicts confined in the Georgia Penitentiary has been found sufficient to defray the expenses of that Institution, the present year, and that although the Legislature had appropriated a sum of money for its support, it has been found unnecessary to draw from the Treasury any part of it.

Post office Reform.—The Concord (N. H.) Journal contains a list of forty-four Postmasters, turned out of office in that State.

Washington, N. C. Oct. 10. Awful Catastrophe.—We learn from creditable sources, that on Wednesday night in Hyde county, three men, who were at work in a brick yard, at Foscoe's creek, were struck by lightning and immediately expired, viz: John Silverthorn, Esq. Senator of Hyde; his cousin Mr. Joshua Silverthorn, and a negro man.—Three others were stunned, one of them severely burnt.—Echo.

Petersburg Market.—About twenty Bales new Cotton have been brought to Market, most of which being very fine, was purchased by the Manufacturers here at 9 1/2c. This price, however, cannot be calculated on from Shippers; as the European Markets continue very much depressed. A few sales of old Cotton are made at 8 a 8 1/2c.

Wheat has advanced in price to 100c. a 10 1/2c. in consequence of the reports of a wet harvest in England. The next accounts from thence, are looked for with great interest. Similar reports prevailed last year, and gave rise to speculations which terminated in heavy losses.

Removal and Appointment.—We learn, that Mr. A. S. Robertson has been removed from the office of Inspector of the Port of Petersburg, and Captain Joel Hammon appointed in his place.—ibid.

Transportation.—The Wagons belonging to the Petersburg Transportation Company, are now in operation between Petersburg and Pride's Ferry on Roanoke.

Mr. John H. Patterson, Agent for the Company at Pride's Ferry, will receive Cotton, Tobacco, and other produce at the Company's Warehouse, and forward it to Petersburg, at the rate of 35c. per 100w.

Mr. I. Squires, Agent at Petersburg, will attend to forwarding Goods, and to the business of the Company generally—his office is in the basement of Powell's Hotel.

Wagons loaded with produce intended to be forwarded by the Company's line, will be allowed to pass Pride's Ferry free of toll. The Ferry will be kept in the best order for the use of the public generally.—The approaches to it are undergoing repair.—ibid.

We understand that a small difference of opinion, as to the exercise of the power of removal or appointment in the clerkships of the officers subordinate to the different Heads of Departments of the General Government, has resulted in an inquiry as to the cause of the removal, which was announced some days since, of Mr. W. Streuben Smith from the Second Comptroller's (Mr. Hill's) Office, in which he had been employed by Mr. Crawford, at that time (1822) Secretary of the Treasury. We understand, further, that the President of the United States, being satisfied that there was no official cause for removal, and altogether unapprised of such a step being in contemplation, has given directions, to obviate any objection to that official harmony which should prevail throughout the Government, that Mr. Smith be assigned to duty in another office of the Treasury Department, which will be quite as agreeable as that from which an attempt was made to remove him.

In this interference of the President, and in this arrangement, we recognize with pleasure a disposition to discountenance feelings of malevolence, and to repel the attempt to gratify such through the medium of official acts.—Nat. Intell.

In Russell Jarvis's Fifth Address to the Public he takes some pains to convict his quondam partner, Mr. Green, of falsehood, &c. and is of course successful. This labor is certainly supererogatory. Among the "secrets of the prison house" revealed by Mr. Jarvis, is an account of the number of contributions to the Telegraph, made by Green, himself, and others, between January 2d, 1828, and October 1st, 1828. It seems that besides the publishers, Green and Jarvis, there were other editors behind the curtain, who contributed, during the period of a few months, seventy-two articles for the editorial department of that print. While Mr. Jarvis is in the narrative vein, the public would be entertained by his informing it who were the respective authors of these seventy-two articles! Nat. Jour.

The U. S. frigate Brandywine, Com. Jones has arrived at New-York from a cruise of three years and one month in the Pacific. She left Callao on the 20th of June, and Rio Janeiro on the 27th of August. The B. has brought home for trial six mutineers from the ship Constitution of Norfolk, and three from the brig Post Captain of New York.

The Brandywine has been absent 37 months, having sailed from Sandy Hook on the 3rd Sept. 1826; since when it is computed she has run upwards of 52,000 miles.

The Legislative Committee of the Virginia Convention have decided, 13 votes to 11, that white population shall be the basis of Representation in the House of Delegates; but on the question declaring the same basis of Representation for the Senate, the vote being taken without discussion, it was negatived 13 to 11, Mr. Madison, on this question voting against the principle; on the former question in favor of it.

Florence, Ala. Sept. 24, 1829.

On Saturday last, at a house raising on Big Cypress, in this County, the Rev. Alexander Farris was killed by the falling of a log. We have not obtained more of the particulars, than that the fatal log had to be raised above the head of those persons below with forks, one of which was used by Mr. Farris; their hold upon it slipped—he was caught in its descent and had his head severed one half entirely from his body. A Negro man of the party was also killed, and some other persons wounded, but not dangerously.

Ten days ago, the water was let into the Juniata branch of the Pennsylvania canals. According to the Democratic Press, 250 miles of canal, are now in use in that state. Pennsylvania commenced her system of State Improvement, some years after Virginia. We have completed some eighteen miles of useless and cumbersome canal, parallel with the course of a great River which nature has rendered sufficient for all valuable purposes, while Pennsylvania has completed an immense line, penetrating the interior and infusing activity and prosperity wherever it extends! Is this humiliating comparison to last forever, or will it cease with the new government of Virginia.—Rich. Com.

Cotton Canvass.—A small pamphlet has issued from the press of Mr. Jona. Elliott at Washington, in which is collected sundry facts, connected with the late correspondence concerning the use of cotton canvass—nearly all which has been hitherto published in the REGISTER. We have long believed, on the testimony of many who ought to be well acquainted with the properties of this cloth, that it answers its purpose better than other cloth manufactured of flax or hemp; but fair experiments are now about to be made, and we trust that the result will prove satisfactory. There are three factories of cotton duck—one near Boston, another at Paterson, N. J. and the third at Baltimore. Mr. Colt, the proprietor of that at Paterson, made 9,600 bolts between the 1st May, 1828, and 1st Sept. 1829—therefore only about 2,500 or 3,000 bolts per annum, which shows a greatly increased use of the article. About 2,000 pieces are yearly made in Baltimore, and the demand is advancing. We hope that this cloth will not only supplant the use of Russian, British and Dutch duck, but pretty soon make a pleasing item in our exports.

The Baltimore "American" of the 29th ult. has a very interesting article on the subject. The following are the chief results, ascertained, or stated, by practical men.

The seams of the sails of the schooner Yelott were opened—there was no appearance of mildew, though they had been in use six years, and made two voyages round Cape Horn and two to Smyrna, but a patch on one of them being of hemp or flax was "completely mildewed." These things appear conclusive on this point.

The cost of cotton canvass is less than that of flax or hemp; the material and its manufacture are wholly our own—it lasts the longest and holds the wind so much better, as to be esteemed equal to one mile per hour.

Most of the vessels trading between different places on the waters of the Chesapeake, are clothed with cotton sails. The swiftness of our craft is proverbial, and economy is also consulted in the fitting of them.—Niles.

Spontaneous Combustion.—A writer in the Hartford (Conn.) Courant, relates a case of spontaneous combustion, which if true—and we see no reason to doubt it—might satisfactorily account for many of the recent fires.

A case of spontaneous combustion was reported to me a few days since by a gentleman of undoubted veracity, that took place under his own observation. He is a manufacturer of machinery for cotton factories, and had directed one of his workmen to stain the frame work with linseed oil mixed with Spanish brown, and to rub it down with a handful of shavings as the usual practice is. These shavings were thrown upon the floor. In the evening, a few hours after, a light was discovered in the shop; on repairing, to it these shavings were found to be on fire, and in a few moments the building would probably have been on fire also.

As it is an every day practice with cabinet makers, &c. to do this very thing, and as it is a new case to me, and probably to others I send it to you for publication, for the benefit of whom it may concern.

The Legislative Committee of the Virginia Convention have decided, 13 votes to 11, that white population shall be the basis of Representation in the House of Delegates; but on the question declaring the same basis of Representation for the Senate, the vote being taken without discussion, it was negatived 13 to 11, Mr. Madison, on this question voting against the principle; on the former question in favor of it.

Lines to a young lady, on her marriage.

They tell me, gentle lady, that they deck thee for a bride, That the wreath is woven for thy hair, the bridegroom by thy side; And I think I hear thy father's sigh, thy mother's calmer tone, As they give thee to another's arms—their beautiful—their own! I never saw a bridal but my eyelid hath been wet, And it always seemed to me as though a joyous crowd were met To see the saddest sight of all—a gay and girlish thing Lay aside her maiden glances—for a name—and for a ring. And other cares will claim thy thoughts, and other hearts thy love; And gayer friends may be around, and bluer skies above; Yet thou, when I behold thee next, may'st wear upon thy brow, Perchance, a mother's look of care, for that which decks it now. And when I think how often I have seen thee, with thy mild And lovely look, and step of air, and bearing like a child, Oh! how mournfully, how mournfully the thought comes o'er my brain, When I think thou w'er may'st be that free and girlish thing again. I would that as my heart dictates, just such might be my lay, And my voice should be a voice of mirth, a music like the May; But it may not be!—within my breast all frozen are the springs, The murmur dies upon the lip—the music on the strings. But a voice is floating round me, and it tells me on my rest, That a sunshine shall illumine thy path, and joy shall be thy guest: That thy life shall be a summer day, whose evening shall go down, Like the evening in the Ea tern clime, that never knows a frown. When thy foot is at the altar, when the ring hath press'd thy hand, When those thou lov'st and those that love thee, weeping round thee stand, Oh! may the thyme that friendship weaves, like a spirit of the air, Be o'er thee at that moment—for a blessing and a prayer!
