

"LIKE ORIENT PEARLS AT RANDOM STRUNG." FOR THE RALEIGH REGISTER.

Messrs. Editors: Permit me to trouble you with another of fancy's freaks having observed your liberal attention to the first...

The lines originated in having observed a few of those intelligences whose images flutter round the hearts of men and bless them with their soothing, pass down Fayetteville Street, with bunches of Eglantine waving round them.

AUGUSTUS.

Have Poets' tongues of golden ages fled, When rural labour sweet contentment shed? Have ardent minds with rich Promethean rays On fancy's pinion spread Arcadia's praise? Has diamond worth, in softest thought essay'd To unfold the raptures of a rural maid...

Raleigh, March 24.

FOR THE RALEIGH REGISTER.

Messrs. Gales & Son: The verses I have sent you, are the production of a very young man. They were elicited by the reception of a tract entitled, "Quench not the Spirit."

Kind friend, whose'er thou art, The tribute of a grateful heart, To thee dear self I give; If to its God, it is not true, It ever shall be true to you, Ever while I live.

Perhaps you'll think a heart that's shut Against its maker will not part Reliance on a friend; Yet ever will I love thee well, No matter wheresoe'er I dwell For love thou dost extend.

The little tract I have read through, And think that every word is true, It makes me very sad; But I will read it o'er again, 'Till though now it causes me much pain, Perhaps 'twill make me glad.

My heart is sinful, I confess, And still you think of me no less, Than if it were made pure; I thought I had not such a friend, In need his kindest aid to lend, But now I have I'm sure.

Unto our God I'll make a vow, It is to "seek Religion now," While in my youthful prime; He hath said "ask and I will give," And now as sure as I do live, I will not lose the time.

In measured verse I cannot tell, The feelings of my heart so well, As I could to thy face; My muse is slow as you will see, In this poor weak address to thee, She keeps a Tortoise pace.

Farewell, but at the "throne of grace," To which I dare not raise my face, In prayer remember me; Pray God to light me in the path, That leads from his righteous wrath, In heaven then I'll meet thee.

Raleigh, March 25.

A WINTER'S HORROR

We find in the Western Times, published in Centerville, Indiana, the following account:

"DISTRESSING.—We were informed a few days since, by a gentleman traveller from the west, that during the severe weather, a man about 45 years of age, his wife, six children, and four horses, were frozen to death on the great prairie, in Illinois. When discovered, the mother lay with a small child in her arms—five other children around her—the father, with an axe and flint in his hands, as if he had been trying to strike fire—a part of his wagon was cut in small pieces for kindling, and all the horses in a heap, stiff in their harness. The name of the unfortunate family, or where they were from, was not ascertained when our informant passed."

All men feel—there is not a heart that God has formed, that does not melt at the contemplation of such a scene as the one recorded above. But where is the father or mother, who looks out upon the group in the great prairie, and does not feel a swelling of the heart, to which tears are but a momentary release. There is no gift of poetry to heighten that scene—fancy can lend no color to the picture—nature, truth, the dread realities, have done more than ingenuity would have dared to invent or record.

The Mother—sad lest those whose hearts have almost burst while watching the expiring anguish of a child—who have seen the convulsions of death distort the lip of the little one, and felt that life had lost its charms—let them send their thoughts to the prairie of the west, and see the mother gazing with unutterable despair, as one by one, the five children around her ceased to breathe—let them imagine the anguish with which she turned from the distortion of the visage, upon which the cold had fixed with indelible impress, the last workings of death's agony. One tie yet bound her to hope, and she pressed the infant to her bosom—haply one of all might be saved in such a covert—but the source whence the nursing was to draw its heat, was cold; the "sympathetic fount" whence had issued the streams of its nourishment, was frozen, and the little one's life chilled away. Yet even in death the mother was provident—the infant was yet on her icy bosom, her arms knit closely around her youngest born, which not death could loose, the congealed effigy of a mother's love.

And near was the Father—he had been engaged in preparation for the preservation of his flock. In peril and distress, the whole had gathered for sympathy around the mother; and the father had sought in vain to elicit one spark from the steel, to bring back his expiring family—but the power to effect it had failed; even a husband's and a father's love could not call up the departed energies—and the whole, father, mother, and children, even the beasts of burthen, ceased to exist, and lay stiffened, silent, and uncorrupted; as if the king of terrors had set up his throne in the solitude of the west, was peopling his new dominion from the grave, and making the out-stretched prairies "the valley of the shadow of death."—U. THE PUBLICATION OF THE North-Carolina Journal, Pro Patria et Legibus. IS CONTINUED BY T. L. HYBART & WM. F. STRANGE.

It is expected the JOURNAL will be made a vehicle of useful information of every description, including the politics of the day, and in politics, advocating so far as they are separable, measures not men.

The JOURNAL has hitherto been a warm supporter of Gen. Jackson's Administration, and it is not the intention of the Editors to depart from that course.

CONDITIONS. The JOURNAL will be published with good type on an imperial sheet at Three Dollars per annum payable in advance, or Four Dollars at the end of the year. No subscription will be received for less time than one year. And no subscription will be discontinued until all arrears are paid up unless at the option of the Editors.

Advertisements inserted for Fifty cents a square for the first, and Twenty-five cents for every subsequent insertion.

All letters and communications addressed to the Editors on business of the office must be post-paid, or they will not be attended to. The former subscribers to the JOURNAL will be considered as continuing their subscription, without a formal notice of their withdrawal.

PROSPECTUS OF The National Intelligencer. Published in the City of Washington, by GALES & SEATON.

THE NATIONAL INTELLIGENCER is an old established Journal, at the Seat of the General Government. It publishes, originally, the Proceedings and Debates of Congress, and contains a more regular, full, and accurate Report of these than any other paper in the Union; it contains also, the Acts of Congress, and all the State Papers and Documents of public interest, laid before, or originating in that body. These recommendations, in addition to the variety of other information which is to be found in its columns, connected with the General Interests of our own Country, with Literature and Science, and the Affairs of the World at large; together with the character of fairness which the paper has always sustained, make it useful and even interesting to all who feel an interest in the concerns of this or of other Countries.

The INTELLIGENCER is published Daily and Tri-weekly.

The Daily Paper is $10 a year, or $5 for six months.

The Country INTELLIGENCER is published three times a week (with the exception sometimes of a portion of the recess of Congress, during which it is published twice a week) at the price of Six Dollars a year, payable in advance, or four dollars for six months.

Culture of the Grape Vine.

A LOUBAT, in 1828, planted a Vineyard of 40 acres, and selected his location 6 miles from New York, on Long-Island, situated on the Lafayette Fort Road. His stock consists of 65,000 Vines, and a nursery of 50,000 Vines of 62 different varieties, selected in Europe, between the 40th and 50th degrees of north latitude.

The present year he has sufficient Grapes to commence making Wine, and to silence all doubt respecting the success of the Vine in this country.

A. Loubat proposes to those who are desirous of undertaking the culture of the Grape, to furnish him with roots three years old, carefully labelled, packed with wet moss, and delivered on ship board, free of expense, on the following conditions, viz: For 1,000 or more roots, 125 cents each root; for 50 to 1000, 15 cents each; and 25 cents each for less than 50 vines.

Payment to be made on delivery of the roots. Letters not received unless post paid.

Subscriptions received by J. GALES & SON, Raleigh, N. C.

Warren's Threshing Machine. A NEW INVENTION. Patented in 1830.

THE Subscriber having purchased the Patent Right of this Invention, for this State (excepting the counties of New-Hover & Brunswick), offers them to Farmers as one of the best, cheapest, most simple, and most durable inventions ever offered to the public. In every case, he will warrant the Machines to perform with great expedition and tireless Grain perfectly clean.

One horse will thresh from 150 to 200 bushels of Wheat, Rye, Oats or Rice, per day. If the Machine does not come up to his notice, the purchaser is at liberty to return it, and receive back the purchase-money. This Machine also shells Corn, as fast as one hand can feed it.

It is common in a new invention, to offer a long list of Certificates of performance, &c. &c. In this case, none is deemed necessary, as the performance of the Machine is the best positive guarantee of its utility. Persons having Cotton Gins, will incur no expense, further than the Machine, as it is only necessary to put the band off of the one, on the other.

Orders for Machines, will be thankfully received and duly executed.

Literary and Scientific INSTITUTION. FOR YOUNG LADIES.

IN addition to the Studies before advanced, Mr. HENKLEY will give instruction in the French Language. The Class will commence on Monday the 11th of April next, at an hour which will not interfere with the regular studies of the School.

By the System he pursues, the dull drudgery of committing columns of French verbs to memory, without perceiving any application to them, is avoided—and the pupils will learn to write, read, and speak good French from the commencement.

As this System of Instruction cannot be understood by an advertisement, Parents and other interested, are invited to visit the School, on any day and at any hour that may be most convenient. The Lectures on the Natural Sciences are given in the morning. Those on Mineralogy are illustrated by specimens from a small but well selected Cabinet; those on Botany, by collections of flowers from the fields and gardens; and on Animal Physiology, by comparative dissections and well executed engravings, and those on Chemistry, by the best apparatus in the incipient state of the Institution will afford.

The leading object of this course of Studies, in addition to the usual Branches taught in Schools, is to extend to females a general knowledge of those useful Sciences, which hitherto have been almost exclusively monopolized by males, and confined to our Colleges and Universities.
