Great Whig Jubilee.

One of the largest festive meetings which ever assembled in North-Carolina, was principles, so happily evidenced by the late participating in the Entertainment, we can- give up their vantage ground. not forbear an imperfect sketch of it, in advance of the regular account.

The BARDROUE was served up on the grounds of Mr. Burgwyn, about a mile distant from Hillsboro'. Col. Cadwallader Jones presided, assisted by Messrs. Nash, Holt, Smith and Mebanc. The preparations were on the most extensive scale, and expense seemed to have been entirely disregarded in the desire to furnish a feast worthy of the proud event, which it was design d to commemorate. Nothing damped the general satisfaction. but the absence of Gov. DUDLEY, one of the distinguished champions of Constitutional Liberty, in honor of whom the Entertainment was given. Unavoidable circumstances having prevented his attendance. and a sentiment having been drank in honor of him. William B. Meares, E-q. of Samuson, rose, and after the cheering had subsided, responded to it, in his usually handsome style. In the course of his remarks, he gave a concise history of Gov. D's. life, and paid a merited tribute to his

for Mangum, who was present. The an plause with which this sentiment was recrived. was of the most enthusiastic character, and continued for some minutes Order being restored. Mr. Mangum rose. under the influence of strongly excited feelings, which it was impossible for him to suppress, and for about two hours, kept the attention of those who surrounded him perfectly enchained-now electrifying them with impassioned bursts of eloquence, now convulsing them with laughter, and now melting them almost to tears. He was frequently compelled to suspend his remarks, on account of the deafening cheering of the compana: and it was not merely the calm, cold assent of the judgment in his favor, but the overflowing of strong personal and political predilections on the part of hundreds, who viewed with abhorrence the base and bitter persecution] and unfounded calumnies, with which he has been hunted down. We dare sav. that this very effort to vindicate himself, and enlighten the public mind, will be used to his disparagement by the Van Buren presses, for his every action is wrested to the purposes of party malevolence; but his native State will yet reward his maintenance of the principles of the Constitution against the ruthless assaults of with admiration that fortitude which derises under the pressure of adverse influ-

There were a number of Strangers present from all parts of the State, but the great body of those who participated in the Festival, was composed of the substantial Farmers of Orange, who, under their gallant leaders, WADDELL and GRA-MAN, recently achieved a victory which will be as famous in the annals of our State in the legends of War.

As the evening approached, the whole multitude formed into double column, and, preceded by a splendid Band of Music, (the enlivening strains of which contri-

"You have seen, no doubt; that the Standard is endeavouring to put forth the impression, that our Senator, BARNETT, is pledged to go with the Van Buren party. in all of the most important measures that shall come before the Legislature at its next meeting. But there is not a solitary being, who is at all acquainted with Barnett, or the grounds upon which he was elected, that would credit such an assertion in the least. Barnett pledged himself, it is true. not to vote for MANGUM, but never made any further promises. I do assure you he is a true Whig, and will go with his party in all important measures."

GOING AHEAD. - Maryland has once more nobly sustained the cause of correct principles. She has borne up against, and triumphed over all the arts and exertions of one of the most indefatigable, and, at the same time, one of the most intolerant parties, known in the history of the American or perliaps any other Government.

An election has just been held in this State for the choice of 40 Electors, to whom Power, and posterity will contemplate is given the power, by a strange Constitutional provision, of selecting the Senators of rives splender from persecution, & which the State Legislature for a period of FIVE YEARS-thus fixing for that long time the political character of the State Senate. Burbarity. - One of the most astonishing cases of brutality, which ever came within our knowledge is related in a Card in the Buffalo Journal, over many respectable signatures, relative to the conduct of Capt. Geer of the Steamer Victory, on Lake Erie. While the boat stopped to wood at Grand her mother, stepped on shore, and was not able to get on before the boat started, and notwithstanding the request of the various passengers and the pleanings of the wretched mother, the Captain refused to put back. although he was but a few rods from the landing when the request was made.
