THE NEW EXCHEQUER SCHEME

From the N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

All the financial hobbies of the anti ank financiers having been jaded out and tumbled down, we have now a fresh one brought out to eclipse every thing. tis a bran new plan of separating the financial affairs of the Government from hose of the People. It is a beautiful little national bank, with branches all over the country, just to do the neat little business of the Government. The plan, we see, takes well, and no small number of unfledged political economists are opening their little bills in its praise. Among the most important of these, it would seem, is Mr. Gouge, a gentleman of Philadelphia, who has acquired considerable celebrity among the hard money party for his writings on banking, or rather on anti-banking. We cannot his second, but we have read in the newspapers one of his letters on this new plan of Government separation from the People. It is well enough calculated to take with persons who are satisfied with mere off-hand assertion, but those who require a case to be made out with proofs and arguments, as well as declarations, will not be so fully satisfied with Mr.

The new plan of separating the Goy ernment from the People, and its busi ness from the business and bosoms of the People, we should not have expected the present Administration, above al others, to put forth; for we supposed was their especial claim that they mingled and merged every thing in and with he interests of the People. A separaion of the finances of the Government from the general business of the community has nothing more to recommend O' More's Description of the mode of fitting t than a similar separation on all other subjects. Doubtless it would be a very neat little affair for the Government to run a mail just to carry its own despatches; I promised my mother to bring a pre-

THRILLING INCIDENT.

The following occurrence which took place at the fire on Sunday morning, has been described to us by an eye witness,

as one which excited the most thrilling interest in the bosoms of the spectators:

While the fire was at its height, and the flames were raging with the greatest violence, orders were given to blow up a wooden house on the South side of Queenstreet. The gun powder was placed in the lower story of the building-the slow match ignited, and the Engineer's horn sounded, as a signal to the people to depart from the spot. The signal was promptly obeyed, and the crowd retiring in all knit together in the strongest affection. prove too easy?" "That's aisy cured," directions, left a vacant space in front of the devoted building. At this moment, an Engine drawn by negroes and directed by the proper officer, came furiously down the street, burst through the crowd, and rushed into the deserted spot. So rapidly did they advance, that every effort to arrest their progress proved unavailing. Amidst the noise and confusion of the scene and the rumbling of the wheels of the Engine over the stones, the loudest cries were unheard or disregaded, and the poor fellows attached to the Engine full of zeal and energy, moved on as it was feared to advanced towards the fatal spot, the leader seemed to become aware that there was something wrong, and the Engine was halted, directly in front of the build-It was a moment of breathless interest. The explosion instantly followed, attention. The Engine could not at that time have been more than 20 feet from the walls of the house which was blown up. The effect was much less disastrous than could have been anticipated. Every person standing on the Engine was thrown off by the shock of the explosion, and two of the negroes (belonging to WM. BELL, Esq.) were severely wounded, the one having his arm very much bacerated, and Drugs and Medicines, Paints, the other injured in the head, both by fragments thrown from the building .-The rest of the men though very much stunned, and some of them slightly bruised, got off without any serious injury .-There was obviously not the slightest A Reg'lar Fut Man .- 'I'll tell you blame to be attached to any one in this regardless of consequences.
