The following is related as a dialogue between a drunkard and his wife ; it is in perfect accordance with the unreasonableness of drunkards in general :

"I say, Molly, what have you got for dinner?"

"I told you this morning we had nothing in the house."

"O, well, let me take the baby, and you pick up something."

"So you told me this morning, but there's nothing to pick up."

" Oh pick up some bread and potatoes, Molly, pick up something."

"But, Mr. Lindsey, there's nothing in Ire house."

" Nothing at all ?"

" No meal, nor bread, nor butter, nor potatoes, nor a mouthful of any thing that can be eaten."

"Well, well, Molly, I say pick up a little something or other, and let us have dinner, for I am in a hurry."
