BISHOP GEORGE

AND THE YOUNG PREACHER.

BY T. 9. ARTHUR.

An aged traveller, worn and weary, was pently urging on his tired beast, just as the sun was dropping behind the range of hills that bounds the horizon of that rich and picturesque country in the vicinity of Springfield, Ohio. It was a sultry August evening, and he had journied a distance of thirty-five miles since morning, his pulses throbbing under the influence of a burning sun. At Fairfield he had been hospitably entertained by one who had recognised the veteran soldier of the cross, and who had ministered to him for his Master's sake, of the benefits himself had received from the band which feedeth the young lions when they lack ; & he had travelled on refreshthe evening shades darkened around, he the stranger to occupy a larger space. felt the burden of age and toil heavy upon
