ILLINOIS.

The WHIGS and CONSERVATIVES of the 3d District of Illinois celebrated, on the 29th ult. at Springfield, their victory, in the election of their candidate for Congress and the defeat of Locofocoism. 'Fhe Sangamon Journal states that 2,000 citizens were present and partook of a sumptuous Barbacue. This great assemblage formed and marched with music through the town to Porter' Grove, where the Banquet was provided. The following are a few of the Toasts drank on the occasion :

The United States-No one star can ever stricken from the glittering firmament, without dimming the brightness of all.

The Constitution-As the mariner turns to his compass to direct him, so may our rulers, to all fumere ages, turn to the Constitution to guide them. The Whigs and Conservatives-They have uni ted to subdue a common foe : " United we stand, divided we fall."

The State of Illinois-She has now only commenced what she intends hereafter to accomplish. In 1840, Locofocoism will find no home on her prairies, and no hiding place in her forests.

HENRY CLAY-With the deathless affection of a father for his froward child, he clings to his tution stands, will he be remembered as its boldest champion.

WM. HENRY HARRISON-As a soldier and a statesman, we honor him, and should he be the candidate of the Whig party, we will support him.

WM. L. MAY-By his patriotic opposition to the Sub-Treasury scheme, he has exchanged the insipid flattery of a few palace slaves for the over- 1714; till John and Richard and Thomas flowing applause and gratitude of millions of free-

When this Toast was drank, Mr. MAY, in answer to the calls of his fellow-citizens, appeared upon the stand. In conclusion of his speech, Mr. M. offered the following sentiment :

The union of all honest men, of whatever name or denomination, to arrest the further progress pended, which ascertained the site of Cape of EXECUTIVE USURPATION.

Gov. DUNCAN addressed to the Committee that Cape, to the exact middle of the pethe following independent and characteristic ninsula. Lord Baltimore became dissatisletter, which, from the home truths it con- fied with this agreement, and endeavored to tains, deserves to be given entire :

JACKSONVILLE, SEPT. 28, 1838. your celebration, I beg leave to say that I rejoice sincerely at the result of our Congressional election in this District.

You say yours is a celebration of Whigs and Conservatives. To me party names are of but little consequence. I commenced my political career a Democrat; and continued to claim that name so long as that party acted upon the principles with which they set out; but since they have abandoned them I am ready to join any party, careless of its name, advocating true Democratic Kepublican principles, such as I have ever adhered to. When I learned my principles of Democracy, that party was in favor of a cheap and economical Government, and we turned Mr. ADAMS out for expending $13,000,000 per annum. Mr. VAN BUREN, the leader of the present dominant party, has increased the expenses of Government from $13,000,000 to 39,000,000 per annum! It was then considered dangerous and anti-republican for public officers to interfere with elections. It is now made a part of their duty, and the present Democratic Chief Magistrate has the glory of having been elected by the personal influence and official dictation of the highest officer in the Government. When I belonged to that party, every public officer was a freeman-could vote, speak, and act independently-and was considered a servant of the public, governed by and acting under the authority of law, which made every one a check upon the others, from the highest to the lowest, and all guardians of the People's rights ; but now, they are regarded as mere dependants of Government, to do the bidding of the President, and are required to act as a unit, or be dismissed, disnced, and denounced as refractory subordinates; lich policy has removed all those checks and balnces that have heretofore so effectually secured the ablic interest. Such policy must soon reduce the ublic officer to the condition of an abject palace slave. The Law and Constitution, as construed by the Courts, was then held sacred by all, and considered, by the Democrats especially, to be the main ber of Congress ? bulwark of our libertics, and their strict observance as the best protection of the weak and poor from the oppression of the arbitrary and the rich. The President, claiming to be the great head of the Democratic party, has advised and fully sanctioned the doctrine of his predecessor, in administering the | branch of said Bank at Nashville. Is Felix laws according to his own judgment, and violates them and the Constitution whenever they stand in the way of his ambitious grasp after power. The freedom of Congress and the freedom of the press were then considered by that party as the great palladiums of our liberty. Its leaders do not now hesitate to bribe and corrupt both by the most shameful and barefaced bestowment of high public offices upon Members of Congress and Editors of Newspapers, to an extent never known before in our counry, for the manifest purpose of rewarding their ser vility in obta uing support for the party. "When I belonged to this party it professed to be jealous of every unauthorized exercise of power .---It has since sustained the Executive in his illegal removal of the public money from the custody of the law to depositories of his own arbitrary selection, and it now sustains the same power in its extraordinary efforts to get entire possession of the public money, by which the purse, in violation of the soundest principles of prudence, as well as against the Constitution and spirit of our free Government, will be controlled by a power which does not only command the armed forces of the country, but holds despotic sway over thousands of dependent, servile mercenaries, who are taught to support his authority, and do his bidding at their peril. "Since most of the old blue-light Hartford Convention Federalists have become , patent Democrats, all will confess there is great power in a name. I know it by my own feelings; for never could I consent to yield my claim to bea Democrat until I saw the old Federalists changed, as it were, by a magician's wand, into the most loyal power-loving Democrats. Then what shall I call myself-Whig? Yes, if Whig means now as it did fifty years agothe true friend of liberty, who could not be bribed or intimidated by the favor or threats of power. 10 Conservative means such as are striving to wrest the Government from the hands of those who, from an unhaly ambition, from fear, from contempt of the People's rights and free Government, or from ignorance of the machinations of the leaders, are plunging the country into ruin, then I, also, claim to be a Conservative. "Although the "political lizard" that has crawled to the summit of the column is already seen skulking down under the frowns of an infuriated and insulted People, the friends of law and constitutional restraints will have much to do in correcting and eradicating the dangerous precedents' and usurpations of those who have been in power for the last eight or ten years. "Allow me, gentlemen, in conclusion, to offer the following sentiment, believing it will be acceptable to all those who desire reform of the present abuse of Government :

MASON'S AND DIXON'S LINE .- This line is very frequently referred to, in debate and conversation. A correspondent requests us to give him the history and location of it, and to comply, we borrow the following explanation from the Salem Gazette:

This boundary is so termed from the names of Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon-the two gentlemen who were appointed to run unfinished lines in 1761, between Pennsylvania and Maryland, on the territories subjected to the heirs of Penn and Lord Baltimore. A temporary line had been run in 1739, but had not given satisfaction to the disputing parties, although it resulted from an agreement in 1739, between themselves. A decree had been made in 1618, by King James, delineating the boundaries between the lands given by charter to the first Lord Baltimore, and those adjudged to his Majesty afterwards to William Penn) which di vided the tract of land between Delaware Bay and the Eastern sea on one side, and the Chesapeake Bay on the other, by country, despite its ingratitude. DANIEL WEBSTER--So long as our Constiline equally intersecting it, drawn from latitude. A decree in chancery rendered the King's decree inoperative. But the situation of Henlopen became long a subject of serious, protracted, and expensive litigation, particularly after the death of Penn, in 1718, and of Lord Baltimore in Penn, (who had become the sole proprietors of the American possessions of their father William) and Cecilius, Lord Baltimore, grandson of Charles, and great grandson of Cecilius, the original patentee, entered into an agreement on the 10th of May, 1772. The Globe, of Thursday night, contains dinner speech of Senator Brown, of North Carolina, from which we extract the follow. ing:

"I cannot permit myself to doubt, gentlemen, that the system of the Constitutional Treasury, the advocacy of which has drawn on its friends all these abuses and violent denunciations from those opposed to it, will finally, and at an early day, prevail.-The power of the banks, when left to their own resources alone, is great and dangerous to the liberties of this country; but when united to the Government with the mighty engine of the public deposites in their hands, they become too powerful for the Government-too powerful for the people. If they are ever again permitted to obtain possession of the public deposites, the cause will be lost perhaps for ages to come, as no Administration which shall succeed this will venture to oppose them. The banks and their partisans will consider themselves victorious over the people-victorious over Govern-

Mr. Brown belongs to the Globe clique, which paper but a few days since said, "the Government makes no war on the banks ;" yet here is one of the props of the administration who declares that the " power of the banks is dangerous to liberty!" Is there not war on the banks in this assertion? Madisonian.

John Ryan, a stupid looking old man, was tried on a charge of having bled William Ryan to death, on the 18th of June, at Barymore. Mr. Scott, Queen's Solicitor, stated that the Crown would not go on with this case but for the hope that the result of the trial would be such as to warn many illiterate persons who, he understood, were going about the country in the practice of bleeding. Daniel Ryan sworn-Deposed that deceased was his brother, and that deceased lived in his house. "I'll tell your Lordship all about it," said he. "The deceased came to my house, says he to the prisoner. 'John,' says he 'the first time you bled me, you relieved me for six years, but now I am very bad again,' pulling out a raiser. (Laughter.) 'Here John,' says he, 'gi' me a couple of tips now.' (Laughter.) Wid that, my Lord. he gave the raiser to the prisoner, and pulled out a bottle of whiskey (loud laughter) and filled out a glass for himself. 'Here goes,' says he, 'for courage.' Then the prisoner an' myself tuck a glass apiece .--Laughter.) The prisoner then strapped the raiser, my Lord, an' says he to the deceased, 'William,' says he, 'I'll only tip wan leg now, and thry that for a week.'-(Laughter.) 'Oh!' says the deceased, 'I'd be in bed for a week wid wan leg, so you may as well tip every leg I have.' (Great laughter.) So wid that, my Lord, the deceased tuck off his stockins, and settled himself with his back to a chair, and says he to the prisoner, 'John,' says he, 'if you tip me at all, now do it well, and draw blood. Laughter.) So, my Lord, the prisoner took the raiser, and gev the deceased tip, tip, tip, on wan leg-(loud laughter)-and then two or three more on t'other-(continued laughter)-and when he was done, the deceased turned round this way, and looked at his legs bleedin' away, an' says he, 'Ha! I like that.' (Shouts of laughter.) Well, my Lord, he was standin' there till he bled about a quart, an' thin he fell over the chair, an' was a corpse in about an hour. Dr. Bradshaw proved that the loss of blood sustained was sufficient to cause death. The legs of the deceased were full of varicose veins. The prisoner was found guilty; but from the mitigating circumstances of the case, sentenced to a fortnight's imprisonment only, on the condition that he would never again attempt to bleed any one.

GUBERNATORIAL DIGNITY.

Mr. Speaker Polk is performing the rand round of electioneering in Tennessee, for the office of Governor of that State. We perceive, that like a missionary field preacher, he has his appointments weeks ahead, and it is stated that he will make the tour of the State in this way. We know not how far custom will permit a candidate for this high office to make personal solicitations for it, but it is degrading to any man, that can be degraded, to do it. It would be prostitution in a State to elect one, who thus shamelessly addresses her. The salary for the office in Tennessee, we perceive is small, only $2000. The honor of the place; is the only thing therefore, which could make its attainment desirable. When that honor was freely conferred by the voice of a sovereign State, it would be evidence either of great merit, or of great popularity. But when the office is sought-nay begged for in stump speeches-when party feeling is roused to inflame, when partial statements are used to mislead, and all the unhallowed arts of electioneering are practiced to gain the office, it is evidence of neither merit or popularity. It is no honor: it is a REPROACH alike to the officer and the electors.

But we presume these extraordinary pains re taken, not alone from the lust of office, hough we know not the gentleman in whom that passion is more indecently strong. It is said and believed, that the State of 'Tennessee is to be reconverted to Humbuggery and Jacksonism, and that orders from Heads of Department, have gone forth to this political missionary, to do this for Mr. Van Buren, and his reward shall be greater than a Governorship. But if we mistake not. the people of Tennessee, and the assailability of this aspiring gentleman, he wilt wish he had not set out on this untoward journey. We doubt whether he will not meet with some dangerous animals, and see some strange sights, and hear some dreadful sounds on his road. For instance, about Nashville,

"The awful knell

Of a death Bell" Will be rung in his ear. At or near Knoxville,

" "Ile will see a sight,

Look dimly White And he'll take to a hollow tree."

We have just received a neatly printed volume, entitled "Memorials of North-Carolina," by J. SEAWELL JONES, Esq. and dedicated to the Hon. Wm. C. Johnson, of Maryland. We have not yet had time to give it a perusal; but publish with pleasure the following complimentary notice of it from the pen of a gentleman of learning and taste :- National Intelligencer.

Reflections on the beneficial influences of intellectual treasures, daily diffused by the teeming press, have been elicited by the perusal of a recent publication, entitled " Memorials of North-Carolina, by J. SEAWELL JONES, of SHOCCO," the style of which is at once graphical and lucid, and its proofs and arguments are strong in support of the facts presented. The work referred to is, indeed, replete with most interesting matter, and commends its enlightened bearing famine on their wings, and uttering author to the grateful consideration of the American People. Young men beware .- We heard of an old gentleman once who had three daughters, all of whom were marriageable. A young buck went a wooing the youngest and finally got her consent to take him 'for better or worse.' Sam Houston's Eloquence.- A gentleman direct from Texas informs us that President Houston has been addressing public meetings in Texas, on the land law and Indian affairs. Four weeks ago he made the following hit at the American land speculators: "They come," said he, "like the swarm of locusts that overspread Egypt, but the single hungry cry of land ! land ! land! Yet, let the land they so much covet be invaded by the Mexicans, or a straggling band of Indians, & these men are the first to wide as the Atlantic, to hem in such dastardly fugitives."-Natchez Free Trader.

Love and Marriage .- A case was recently tried in Rutland, Vermont, in which Miss M unson recovered $1425 of a Mr, Hastings, for a breach of a marriage contract. The curiosity of the thing is, that the Vermont Judge charged the jury "that no explicit promise was necessary to bind the parties to a marriage contract, but that long continued attention or intimacy with a female, was as good evidence of intended matrimony as a special contract." The principle of the case undoubtedly is, that if Hastings did not promise, he ought to have done it ! and so the law holds him responsible for the non-performance of his duty. A most excellent decision : a most righteous judge: compared with whom Daniel would appear but a common 'squire. We have no idea of a young fellow danging about a woman for a year or two, without being able to screw his courage up to the sticking point, and then going off eaving his sweetheart half courted; we hate this everlasting nibble and never a bite: this beating the bush and never starting the game : this standing to the rack without touching the corn; it is the crying sin of the age. There is not one girl in twenty can tell whether she is courted or not.

No wonder that when Betty Simper's cousin asked her if Billy Doubtful was courting her, answered-"I don't know 'xactly; he's sorter courtin', and sorter not courtin'." We have no doubt that Hastings is one of these "sorter not' fellows, and most heartily do we rejoice, that the Judge brought him up standing with a $1425 verdict.-Utica Democrat.
