The President having stated the object of the meeting, on motion, a Committee of 12 was appointed by the President to report Resolutions expressive of the sentiments of the meeting, consisting of Messrs. C. J. Orrell, Dr. B. W. Robinson, R. C. Belilen, J. J. Ling, T. S. Lutterloh, W. Draughon, Jas. Crow, J. W. Hamilton, M. V. Jones, David Smith, J. D. Williams and W. D. Your Committee beg leave to report the following Preschible and Resolutions :

Whereas, convinced as we are, by "confirmation strong as proofs from Holy Writ," that something is wrong in the affairs of government, and that that wrong is attributable mainly, if not entirely, to the bad policy and worse practices of the present Administration :

Therefore, 1. Resolved, That we, a portion of the Young Men Whis party, do of this County, of the true Republican Whig party, do condemn the leading measures of the present Administration, jointly and severally, believing them to be not in accordance with the Constitution and Laws, but in derogation of both.

2. Resolved, That in the opinion of this meeting, the present state of pecuniary distress pervading the country, is produced principally by the high handed interference of the Executive with the Currency, in a manner not authorized by the Constitution, but in violation thereof.

3. Resolved. That we regard the course of the present Administration as more in accordance with that pursued by despotic than Republican governments, and that its tendency is to distress the people and blast the hopes of every laboring man.

4. Resolved, That we look upon the Sub-Treasury scheme as unsafe, unsound, and corrupting in its tendency ; as emanating from and designed to answer party purposes; as prejudicial to the interests of the Farmer, the Mechanic, the Labourer, and the trading community generally; and as placing the people's money in jeopardy, liable to be "Swartwouted" at any and all times.

5. Resolved, That we view with abhorrence the course of the Administration party, relative to the recent case of contested elections from New Jersey ; believing it to be subversive of the rights of the people and of the States.

6. Resolved. That we have full confidence in the honesty, capability, and patriotism of William Henry Harrison ; and we trust that by his election to the Pre-

4. Resolved, That we most heartily concur in the nomination of John M. Morehead, of Guilford, as the Republican Whig candidate for Governor of this State; that his talents, integrity, private worth and sound political opinions, will secure our cheerful and zealous support.

6. Resolved. That we recommend to the Young Men of the Whig party in this County to form Associations for the dissemination of political information, and for the advancement generally of the Whig cause. 6. Resolved, That we approve of the Convention to day of April next, (being Tuesday of County Court in that County,) for the purpose of appointing an Elector for this District, and that we will appoint 20 delegates to attend the same.

At the request of the meeting, able and patriotic addresses were delivered by John Winslow and Arch'd A. T. Smith, Esqrs., which were listened to with great attention,

MR. GALES :- Having occasion to visit the North-Western part of our County, a few days ago, after accomplishing the object of my visit, I took occasion to feel the pulse of a few of the bone and sinew of the land whom I met with, on the subject of politics, and had the pleasure to find them perfectly healthy and be held in Rockingham, Richmond county, on the 21st sound to the core-in a word, they were thoroughly Whig. I was informed that in a neighboring precinct, called New Light, the people were not at all satisfied with "the lights now before them," as they had been formerly, and were resolved to open their eyes and admit new light. Some eight or ten had recently left the ranks of the Administration, and had "listed during the war." under the banner of old Tippecance-determined that they would not be humbug-Under the 6th Resolution, the following ged any longer. Mr. GALES: In pursuance of my promise, I return again to my Port-folio of new Music, in the bope that one composition, at least, may be discovered where sense and song shall be found united. What have ve here ? "I'll shed no teur for thee," by THOMAS HATNES BAYLY. Well do we recollect the first effusion of his prolific pen. The sensation it caused was prodigious; and thousands of the London population were, in consequence, daily expressing their desire to become butterflies and reside in bowers. When lo! another BATLY appeared upon the scene, and the melodies of the BAYLY's seemed interminable. Now the virtuosi were sorely puzzled to discriminate between Mr. Thomas Haynes B. and Mr. Frederick W. N. B., and the spirit of rivalry waxed hotter and hotter. If a proper fit, so as to enable him to appear de-Mr. T. H. B. published something "very sweet" under the name of " I met her in the moonlight grove. out next day came Mr. F. W. N. B., with something more exquisite still, in the shape of " I stood amid the glittering throng." If Thomas published a whole olume of melodies, entitled " Songs of the Boudoir, Frederick was speedily out with a quarto of "Songs of Almacks." That something must be done was universally acknowledged, when a Cockney, in a happy fit of inspiration, recollected that in the metropolis there were two prisons, well known to all, as the Old und New Bailey ; forthwith Mr. Thomas H. was invested with the dignified title of the Old Bailey, whilst his rival. Mr. Frederick, was made to rejoice in that of the and what is worse than all, they have but one New-appellations doubtless borne by each to the present day. But to the song ; the subject appears to be the dismissal by a young lady of her lover. THE POLITICAL POSTURE-MASTER.

In one of the papers of the Guardian, there is a pleasant sketch of a versatile man of genius, to this effect :

"I remember a very whimsical fellow, commonly known by the name of the Posture-Master, in King Charles the Second's reign, who was the plague of all the tailors about town. He would often send for one of them to take measure of him, but would so contrive it as to have a most immoderate rising in one of his shoulders. When the clothes were brought home and tried upon him, the deformity was removed into the other shoulder. Upon which the tailor begged pardon for the mistake, and mended it as fast as he could ; but upon a third trial, found him a straight-shouldered man as one would desire to see, but a little unfortunate in a hump back. - In short, this wandering tumour puzzled all the workmen about town, who found it impossible to accommodate so changeable a customer."

Our readers, we fear, will be too ready to apply this description to the erratic Senator from South Carolina, who has of late so per plexed our Sartorian brethren of the Press. in their well-intentioned efforts to furnish him with appropriate habiliments. Every attempt to take his measure, or as he calls the operation, "to define his position," results in a failure. He plays such wickedly fantastic tricks with this same wandering tumour, that no one knows how to arrange the sack in the garment for its proper reception. One while it indurates into Consolidation and Centralization : at another it bloats up fearfully into Nullification ; and then again swells out enormously into a States Rights enlargement .---We don't wonder therefore that Mr. Calboun is continually complaining, (though like his famous prototype, the Posture-Master of King Charles the Second's time, it's all a joke.) that his own tailors, the Mercury, the Pennsylvanian, and the Globe, can't turn him out cently in company with consistent gentlemen; Oh, who fell before him in battle-tell me who ? but is constantly sending back his coat, much to their mystification, to be turned, and remodeled. Still less are we surprized, that the old standing firm, the National Intelligencer, should not be more successful. Altho' they are working men of good repute, and employ very fair materials in their business, they can't accommodate themselves to the varying freaks and fashionable innovations in dress required by this class of customers; pattern in their shop for a political suit;-the Jefferson cut : and that, unluckily for political Posture-Masters, is the old-fashioned cant, straight-breasted, with the upright

Your Committee respectfully report the following Resolutions for adoption :

1. Resolved. 2. Resolved, That the alarming state of affairs, towit: the prostration of credit; the low price of cotton, timber, and other produce; the derangement of the currency ; the scarcity of money ; the total disregard of the rights of the people; the loss of enormous sums of the people's money by the failure of dishonest and corrupt office holders, and the absconding of others; the avowal of the doctrine that to the victors belong the spoils of office; the violation of State sovereignty; the family of four boys, yet in their infancy, contempt of the Constitution and the laws by the powers that be ; the unjustifiable attack upon the credit of the States; the proposition to force upon the People the Sub-Treasury scheme-a scheme impracticable, and totally insufficient to answer the wants and necessities of the people-have, in the opinion of this meeting, been brought about by the principles, measures and policy of the present Administration, and that we cannot, as citizens of a free and Republican government, as patriots devotedly attached to her institutions, as men mindful of their own interests, and desiring to hand down to posterity a free and simple and prosperous Republic, support an Administration so reckless of our rights, our interests and our happiness 3. Resolved, That we have full faith in the patriotism, integrity and principles of William Henry Har-rison, of Ohio, and John Tyler, of Virginia; that we believe them to be honest, faithful, capable, and true to the Constitution, and that we will use all honorable means to secure their election to the offices of President and Vice President of the United States-because we believe that their elevation will be the means of restoring the country to its primitive purity and Republicen simplicity, restore confidence, and bring presperi- which is the way to your bed chamber ?"to on the nation.

TIPPECANOE AND LIBERTY .--- The ball is in motion and its progress is onward. A very large Meeting of the Whigs was held at Gates Court House, and we are informed several eloquent and spirited addresses were made. The people of Gates have become convinced that those in whom, they have heretofore confided are no longer to be trusted. They are determined upon a change of men as the only means of having a change of measures. We venture to predict with the most perfect confidence, and our predictionwill not be falsified, that the ensuing election will show that old Gates is on the side of Harrison and the Constitution. Our advice to the Loco Focos of that county is to surrender, and retrace their steps, their cause is now desperate, and nothing but a pride of opinion prevents them from admitting it .--We call upon the Whigs throughout the district to follow the noble example of the Whige of Gates .- Albemarle Sentinel.

WORTHY OF IMITATION .- A gentlemau from Georgia, who was plaintiff in an execution against one of our citizens for about six thousand dollars purchased his negroes at sheriff's sale at our court-house door on Monday last. and although his own deht was barely satisfied, he having to pay a large amount on older executions to enable him to get a clear title to the negroes, seeing that the defendant | Farmers, Mechanics and other laborers, read it : was entirely sold out, with an interesting made a bona fide transfer of five of the negroes to the sons of the defendant. Such disinterested generosity, in times like the present, stands like a green spot in the extensive desert of self interest. The gentleman left on the next day before the facts became known, or poor as we are, we would have contributed to the purchase of a gold medal to be presented to him. That man will go home conscious of having done a good action, and will have the blessings of hundreds showered upon his head. He has emphatically laid up treasures in heaven.

I'll shed no tears for thee-no, Tear's would but spoil my eyes; If thou would'st go from me-go, The path before thee lies. If other maids have won thee-Let others smile upon thee, Go woo them if thou'rt wise.

Here, only gausing to admire the philosophical reason our fair friend gives for not crying upon the occasion, our thoughts at once revert to the feelings of that miserable man, who is all this time standing by, looking, we suppose, very like a goose. That he is in a dilemma is evident, and so astonished and overcome is he, that his lady-love has to point out to him ' the path' by which he can make his exit, Notwithstanding the sway of the green-eyed monster is very apparent in the fifth line, the cool piece of advice she gives to her quondam lover in the concluding line, surpasses any thing we have ever heard or read of. Not content with dismissing him to woo some other dameel, she tells him, if he is wise, (a matter seemingly in her opinion very doubtful) to go and woo some ungiven number of "nice young maidens !"-but we will venture to suggest that let the young gentleman only get out of this scrape, and "if he is wise," he will not be found wooing again for, at least, another twelve month. But hark ! she sings again :

I'll smile when thou art gone, yes-Don't threaten me, but go. I mean to smile on one-guess,

If thou his name would know : When gone, thou still returnest! Oh when thou'rt gone in earnest,

How well I'll bear the bowl !! Here we learn, by the second line, that the gentleman was about to do a little scolding on his own account, but was cleverly stopped, and once more requested to The lady becomes more cruel, says, she shall sntile' as soon as he is gone, and also intends to 'smile' on some one else, and taunts him by asking whether he would like to know the name of the youth, about to bask in all this smiling ? Well, we could not think or imagine, why, with the path already pointed out to his notice, our male friend did not some time since, put on his hat, and make the best of his way to his anxious maternal relation, but here are our doubts resolved at once. We read, that "when he was gone he still kept returning," so that for aught we know to the contrary, he may be still 'going and returning' at the time we are writing this. This line, therefore, " Oh when thou'rt gone in carnest," appears to us entirely uncalled for ; but in the name of all that is mysterious, what is the lady going to do with that awful bowl ? What is it. 'a bourl' of soup ? Forbid it all ye powers of love! Had the damsel not expressed an intention +to wait.' until the gentleman had 'in carnest stopped returning,' we could have hoped they were about to settle their difficulties over a social "bowl' of negus or sangaree-but alas! for the felicity of this conjecture. How well I'll bear the bowl!

We have read that line over until our head aches. but the probable meaning, in the present state of our bewildered faculties, appears as far off as ever. Still, we are not wroth with thee, THOMAS HAYNES BAYLY: true we may have laughed at thee, when we ought to have cried, but reflecting, Thomas, that "tears might spoil our eyes," like the heroine of your song, we refrained from any visible show of our deep emotion; and further imitating her worthy example, we succeeded last night in 'bearing off' the largest portion of a bowl of Champaigne punch-our countenance at the same time becoming perfectly irradiated with 'smiles.' ORPHEUS.

TRUTH IN A.NUT-SHELL. The following Communication, which we find in the last number of that spirited Journal, the "Whig Banner," contains a vast deal in' a small compass .--

A gentleman who had the anecdote from the lips of the late Gen. Tipton himself, has been so kind as to commit it to writing for our use .- Yeoman.

ANECDOTE OF THE BATTLE OF TIPPE-CANOE.

· During the last Presidential contest, the miltary claims of Gen. Harrison were freely canvassed, and some of his opponents did not or negotiable paper by scruple to charge him with a want of courage. The late Gen. Tipton, of the U. S. Senate, who had served as an Ensign at the battle of Tippecanoe, was asked by a friend, "what think yon, General, of Harrison's courage ?" He replied, " I think him as brave a man as ever lived-no man could have behaved with more true courage than he did-while the engagement was hottest, and when the bullets flew thickest, he was to be seen speaking in his ordinary tone, and giving command with the greatest precision. The company to which I belonged," said Gen. Tipton, " went into action eighty strong, and only twenty survived-the firing upon us was most tremendous. After the General had made his arrangements for repelling the attack of the Indians at other points; he rode up to where I was, and made the following inquiries : "where's your Captain ?" He is dead, sir-"Where is the first or second Lieutenant ?" "They are both dead, was the reply. "Well, where is the Ensign ? He stands before you, General. "Well, my brave fellow," said Harrison, · hold your ground for five minutes longer, and all will be safe." In fifteen minutes the enemy was reputsed on all sides: Tipton gallantly led on his few remaining comrades to the charge, and victory perched upon the American banner.

As an evidence of Harrison's coolness in the nidst of danger, Gen. Tipton stated that at the moment the conversation ended between bimself and Gen. Harrison, and as the horse on which was mounted his aid, the late Gen. Taylor of Indiana, was in the act of turning, a rifle ball pierced him through the body and brought him to the ground, catching his rider's leg under him. It was a favorite black horse of the General's, and he exclaimed .-Ah, is my gallant old black gone ! Well, rise and mount again, for we have no time to mourn the loss of a trorse, when so many brave ones are exposed to a similar fate"and having remounted his aid, he dashed into the midst of the danger. In a few minutes the battle was over.

SKETCH of the Life and Public Services of Gen WM. H. HARRISON, of Ohio, pemphlet torm, theap edition, this day received at the N. C. Book Store by TURNER & HUGHES. April 13.

We had the pleasure, yesterday morning,

Witness, NATHAN A. STEDMAN; Clerk of our said

Yazoo Banner.

Henry the Fourth, of France, was much enamoured of a lady who used to attend the Court. The Prince one day in a gallant humor said to the lady-"Pray madam. "Through the church." said she.

ty have had a majority in both branches of Congress; and they must be held responsible for the present de plorable consequences. The present low wages for work, and low prices for produce, is the result of their wild and wanton measure, the Sub-Treasury. It may be fun for the office holders, but it is death to the people. Van Bufen quietly pockets $25,000 of Gold and Silver, and says with cold contemptuous indifference, "The people are upt to look for too much from the Government." Van Buren's policy, as appears from the present condition of prices and things, is, that the Farmer and Mechanic, and all working men, shall sell tow and buy high. . Our work, our Corn or Wheat must go low ; our Coffee, Sugar, &c. must come high. That is, whatever we make at home, must be sold at the lowest prices ; for what we get from foreign countries, we must pay the h ghest prices. This places the working men of the country on a level with the white servants of Europe, and turns Freemen into slaves .-It is a policy in favor of the rich altogether. It sells the poor to the rich, and delivers them over as bondsmen. May God, in his mercy, open the eyes of our people, enable them to dismiss their party prejudices and see the true path of our country's good, and walk in it. Yours.
