

Flashes of Fun.

"Well, my little boy," he said to his neighbor's son, "so you've got back home, eh?"

"I think," said the minister, who was visiting a parishioner, "that it is easier to coax children than to drive them."

"Papa, how do they catch monkeys?" inquired Willie, who had been to the menagerie.

Mrs. Van Coover (to celler)—"I have such a splendid cook, and she is such an early riser."

First Kansas Woman—Were you at the polls yesterday, Mamie?

City Editor (apparently troubled)—Do you mean to say, Mr. Stubben, that you have completed this report of the horse race?

Reporter—That's the best I can do. "Why, see here, you haven't even said anywhere that the track was cuppy or a horse went into the air."

City Editor (decisively)—No matter; work it in somewhere. It sounds professional and your report needs something; anybody can understand it now.

"That's what I call a good dinner," remarked Bobby, as he leaned back in his chair with an air of repletion.

"Bobby," said his mother, "I am ashamed of you." The minister of the chapel, who was dining with the family, laughed heartily.

He was leaning against the lamp post, and the watchful guardian of the night came up very respectfully.

"Thank you, thank you, but there's no need. The other side of the block will be round this way in a moment, and I'll just pop in when my door comes along. Thank you. Good night."

A man, while fishing, suddenly fell into the water. A fellow fisherman of benevolent aspect promptly hauled him out, laid him on his back, and then began to scratch his head in a puzzled way.

"Then never you mind the other fifteen."—Manchester Mirror.

First Omaha man—What's the matter, not out of business, are you?

"That's queer. I thought you started a little factory to darn stockings for young men, old bachelors and others with no women folks to look after them."

"No, the whole crowd of customers hunted 'em up Sunday and married them."—Omaha World.

PERSEVERANCE REWARDED.

He boarded the train at Rochester and came to the only vacant seat in the car, beside a young lady.

"By golly and you live in Buffalo. Why, I've sold butter on Elk street market high onto twenty years."

"That's what I thought. I don't s'pose now it's Brown or any o' them colors?"

"No." "That's what I thought. I don't s'pose now it's Brown or any o' them colors?"

"No." "That's what I thought. I don't s'pose now it's Brown or any o' them colors?"

"No." "That's what I thought. I don't s'pose now it's Brown or any o' them colors?"

"No." "That's what I thought. I don't s'pose now it's Brown or any o' them colors?"

"No." "That's what I thought. I don't s'pose now it's Brown or any o' them colors?"

A THRIFTY MAN.

A white man, upon meeting a negro whom he had not seen for many years, vigorously shook his hand and said:

"Spencer, I am delighted to see you. How have you been getting along?"

tuck de off's dat a thrifty man goud make er libin outen it, an' jes ez I got to be sorty thrifty da whirled in an' sent matter dat penitencey, 'mung dem thievin' niggers an' low down white fokes."

"Pat's Legacy.—"What did your father leave you when he died, Pat?"
