"Types and Breeds of Farm Antmals," says: "No class of breeders carry so many nurse cows on the show circuit as do the Hereford men." While they are strictly special-purpose beef animals, they may usually be relied upon to give sufficient milk to raise their calves well.

Polled Herefords.

Polled Herefords have been developed, but have never become popular or numerous. They differ little from the standard Herefords in color, markings and general characteristics, but in the development of this hornless variety more attention seems to have been given to the dualpurpose idea, and as the progenitor of these polled animals was a freak cross between a Hereford-Shorthorn cow and a pure-bred Hereford bull. they seem to be better milkers than the standard animals. Freaks, or hornless Herefords, as they sometimes occur, have also been used in trying to-develop this hornless breed or variety, but they have never taken any prominence among the breeds of cattle of any section of the country.

When I used the tuberculin test in my herd ten years ago and killed seven animals, completely banishing the disease, I was met with ridicule from my brother farmers. An annual test for eight years has failed to find a single reaction. Although this policy has been worth thousands of dollars to me in the sale of registered cattle, very many of them cannot see it.-W. D. Hoard.
