RICHMOND TOBACCO.

(Report Furnished by E. K. Vletor & Co., Leaf, Strips, Stems and Scraps.) August 10.

There has nothing of interest happened in our market except that a few round lots of common tobacco have been sold for export. As the priming season is approaching now the farmers should keep in mind that there are a good many lots of dark and semi-bright primings still held by dealers from last year's crop; that, therefore, unless one of the trust branches want them, the stock of primings will not bring as much money this year as they did last. The weather has continued dry and remarkably cool. Should we get too much rain after this long drouth, the crops might be materially injured in quality.

No change has taken place in local conditions in the cotton market. A light business is being done from day to day, according as a few small lots are offered for sale. Prices have remained without variation, 13 cents for good middling, or 11½ cents for low middling, which is more to the point. The crop of 1911-12 has been about laid on the shelf as a market influence; everything now depends upon what may be the prospects for the new crop.

The past week has been generally favorable for the crop, and the average expectation of the out-turn has undoubtedly been raised. The hot, dry weather of the latter half of July has served to bring out the crop in the eastern and central sections of the belt in a way which at least enhances the superficial promise in a great degree. At the same time, it is likely that the improvement has been considerably over-estimated, as is usually the case at such times. The crop has made some advance toward catching up its backwardness, but still remains a good deal later than the normal. Good rains have relieved the drouth situation over Oklahoma and the lower half of Texas, but so far the official reports fail to show any material relief to the lower half, where rains were most needed. However, the general outlook appears to be much better in the western section, and it now remains to be seen just what Texas can do toward making a bumper crop without the aid of artificial fertilization. On the whole, the season there has been as propitious as will probably ever be had, and it is now all up to the land. It may be added that despite the fine seasonal conditions, some surprisingly unfavorable accounts are already commencing to come.
