much damage to stock at this season of the year. If the animals are infested the stables are also, and it will be necessary to clean out all litter or bedding and give the stables the same treatment as the stock. The coal tar disinfectants on the market are probably the best remedies for colts and calves. Any non-irritating oil may be used for the hogs.

It is not too early to make preparations to kill the ticks that have passed through the winter or that may hatch from eggs laid late last fall. If no ticks are allowed to mature on the cattle this spring and drop to the ground all will be dead by July 1. There is no more effective time to attack the ticks. Let us get at it in good season and dip or treat the cattle regularly—every last one of them—until all the ticks are gone. When the pastures are once clean they are easily kept clean.

This is the month to prepare for late spring grazing if it was not done last fall. Oats, oats and Canada field peas, rape and other crops sown in February and early March will furnish grazing in April and May. If good grazing is expected only good soil should be used, and in no case is it worth while to sow rape on any but very rich, good land.

While most pasture plants for spring and summer do best in the South when sown in the fall, there are a few exceptions, and then many failed to sow last fall. For instance, there is probably only one better summer pasture plant for the South than lespedeza. It is a great plant for the South because it is a legume and will make some growth on poor soils. If you have made no other provision for summer pastures, or in any case, sow some lespedeza the latter part of this month or in March.

The new born lamb, calf and colt and the litter of pigs as soon as they come have a value beyond that generally recognized. They not only represent a speculative or future value, but they actually represent the keep of the sire and dam and the risks and investment in these animals from six to twelve months. If these facts were kept in mind more care would be taken to properly provide for the care of the new-born on our Southern farms. It will pay to give special and intelligent attention for the saving of even one pig will pay for all the attention a sow and litter require. See that all young are born in suitable, comfortable, clean quarters.

The females that are to produce young this spring need careful attention and feeding. Exercise which is regular, but not violent, and feeding that is moderately liberal and with abundant supplies of protein are the two important points. The brood sow needs something more than corn, the brood mare more than corn and fodder, and the cow more than the stalk fields or cottonseed hulls and meal, if they are to bring forth strong, healthy young and produce an abundant milk supply to nourish them.

It is important that the horses and mules that have been idle during the winter be given some preparation for spring work before being rushed into hard work and full feed. At least, two weeks should be taken to get such work stock on full feed and gradually hardened to do a full day's work. The collars should also be broad, smooth, hard and clean. The South has much to answer for in the poor collars it compels its horses and mules to do its work with.

"I Want What I Want When I Want It"

It often occurs that somebody needs a particular commodity not advertised at the present time. In our paper, this is because advertisers cannot afford to stay in the paper every issue. For the benefit of our readers, therefore, we have printed a little booklet, "Where to Buy Farm Supplies," which we will be glad to send free. Address the Advertising Department and say, "I want your booklet, 'Where to Buy Farm Supplies.'" Next mail will each advertiser listed is square. Don't forget, however, that we are constantly getting new ads every week and that you ought to read them and save your paper and bind for reference.—The Progressive Farmer.

When writing to advertisers, say: "I am writing you as an advertiser in The Progressive Farmer, which guarantees the reliability of all advertising it carries."

HOLSTEINS

Purebred Registered

HOLSTEIN CATTLE

Six thousand copies of the "Outlines of the Holstein-Friesian Advanced Registry System" were recently divided among state agricultural colleges. Any dairyman can have a copy. Every breeder who officially tests his cows, and enters them in the Advanced Register, aids in raising the standard of the breed, and increases the selling value of his cows by proving their capacity. He also has a chance at the annual $15,000 prize money. All this is excess value plus the value of the Holsteins themselves.
