The Cotton Market Situation

THE deadlock in the general spot cotton market remains unbroken. The contract markets have again become irregular and unsettled, owing mainly to the indefinite delay in peace prospects and more recently to unex-German commerce raiders in the South Atlantic ocean. This has increased the difficulties already existing in the matter of shipping and insurance, and caused a revival of the talk about a stop to exports. But it is to be remarked that the same kind of talk has been going on for a long time, and still the rate of exports keeps up. Stress has also been laid upon the Census Bureau report showing a small decrease in the consumption by American mills for the month of December. There is really nothing in this, because there was one working day less this year, and besides probably most people will agree that the holiday season was more liberally observed this year. The really crucial fact of the report was that active spindles showed an increase of over 1,100,000 this year, which proves decidedly greater activity, but fewer working days. There is by no means any reduction in the rate of American consumption as yet, and none indicated.

Again it to be observed that the time to sell cotton is when there are plenty of buyers and the market is strong. As was cautioned in these letters before, unforeseen lulls in activity are bound to occur, and it is never advisable to try to force a dull and heavy market. What is required now is the exercise of patience and confidence. Long before we will have another crop ready for use, the need will be urgent for all of the present supply; in fact, there is very grave doubt that there will be enough to last through the month of August. If peace should come in the meantime, there will undoubtedly develop such a call for cotton as will take up everything available at prices considerable higher than any yet seen this season.

Our gross sales of 1916 more than doubled those of 1915. This fact clearly demon-strates that our method of doing business and our ability of being able to supply high-grade seeds at a reasonable price meets with the approval of the buying public. If you are not a customer of ours, we want you to become one. Give us a trial order and compare our grade of seeds and prices with those of our competitors. We are located in what we consider the best section for the production of high-grade farm seeds in the South. Get our price list on all farm seeds by dropping us a card. Our stock is complete on such seeds as: Grasses, Clovers, Field Peas, Soy Beans, Velvet Beans, Irish Potatoes, Cane Seed, Millets, Cotton Seed, Seed Corn, Peanuts, Seed Grains, etc. Buy your seed early. It looks as if all farm seeds are going to be very scarce and high in price. Kirby Seed Company, Gaffney, S. C.
