THE COTTON MARKET SITUATION

The cotton market has continued strong and active. Prices have risen into new high ground and large sales have further reduced the rapidly diminishing stocks. The statistical position grows stronger week by week. Exports have been light, owing to the scarcity of freight room and the excessively high rates of freight. It now costs anywhere from $35 to $50 to carry a bale across to the continent, not to mention the heavy toll for insurance. While Savannah is around 22½ cents for middling, Liverpool is quoted on the basis of 31 cents. In ordinary times the difference is hardly as much as 1 cent. But they need cotton very badly on the other side, and it only shows what may be expected as soon as shipping conditions improve moderately.

There has been an increase in cotton speculation recently, Western interests coming in the market upon the stopping of speculation in wheat. These Western traders have lots of money, and they take the view that cotton is the cheapest of all the great commodities. They are not disturbed by the talk that the price of cotton is enormously inflated, because it is known that raw cotton is still far below a parity with the manufactured goods, and mills are unable to meet the demand for the goods, and are contracted far ahead.

The Bureau report has caused grave apprehension regarding the outlook for the coming crop. The condition is the lowest on record for the season of the year; and it is the general idea now that there has been a reduction in the acreage planted. Under the increased difficulties in the way of growing cotton, to mention only the weevil, the falling fertility of the land and the reduced labor supply, there really seems little chance for much if any increase over last year. The prospects are that cotton is going to be very scarce and very high next fall, and our people should work to the utmost limit to make as much as they can in consistency with the ever wise policy of providing for home food requirements. W. T. WILLIAMS, Savannah, Ga.

YES, SUH!

"It's this way in the black-land belt now," said the New York Evening Post's friend from Texas: "Cotton's so high that a farmer comes into Dallas, eats a square meal at one of the best hotels, puts down a cotton seed, and gets fifteen cents change. Yes, suh!"—Youth's Companion.

"I can't find that record by Sousa's band; do you know what became of it?"
"No! I guess somebody stole a march on us."—Harvard Lampoon.
