Live Subjects This Week and Next

REGULATE Production, Regulate Marketing: Two Essentials for getting Profitable Prices.—If prices of farm products are to be made in favor of the farmer, farmers will have to see to it. Congress can do little, but farmers working in unison can do much. There is still time to join the cooperative marketing organizations and lend your influence in behalf of better prices of farm products! ..... Page 13

Five Suggestions for Peanut Farmers.—Mr. Brown calls attention to some of the things the peanut growers must do and must not do if the exchange is to succeed to best advantage. Overproduction in 1922 is one of the dangers against which to guard ..... Page 19

Mrs. Brooks Upsets the Tea Kettle.—Waddles, the pup, started it all by running under Mrs. Brooks' feet. And scalding hot water falling on Baby, three-year-old Susan, and Mrs. Brooks' feet and ankles very nearly finished things. Now what would you do in an emergency like that? Nobody but a good general like Mrs. Brooks could have had things so well in hand by the time the doctor came ..... Page 14

How Farmers Make Extra Money.—Are you providing for any extra sources of cash this year, or are you depending on your main cash crop? Many farmers are making extra money by picking up and utilizing some of the unexpected sources of cash about the place ..... Page 9

Veterinary Column.—So many of our readers have asked for advice on the diseases of livestock that Dr. Butler has consented to give us a veterinary column each week. In this space he will give practical methods for treatment of those common diseases of livestock that can be successfully treated at home ..... Page 8

Next Week's Paper.—Are you keeping up with the "More Money From Farming" articles? "Making Sweet Potatoes a More Profitable Crop: How to Do It," is the subject for next week. In addition to this, you will find the usual monthly review of "The World's News" and the always timely subjects under "Garden and Orchard," "The Poultry Yard," "How Farmers Make Money," and many other departments with their helpful suggestions.
