order to the music of the wedding march rendered by Miss Oecle Wilkerson: Mr. Thomas S. Ragsdale and Miss Lillie Bowling; Mr. A. P. Harris and Miss Lizzie Overly; Mr. Robt Davis and Miss Elizabeth Pittard; Mr. Charlie Ward and Miss Florence Clement; Mr. James W. Winston and Miss Sallie Pittard. Following these came the bride and groom handsomely attired. The ceremony was performed by Dr. R. H. Marsh, of Oxford, in an impressive manner in the presence of a large number of friends.
Messrs. J. K. Clement and W. H. Ragsdale acted as ushers.
Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party with a few invited friends returned to the residence of B. T. Winston, Esq., the father of the bride. After the usual congratulations and some sly glances between those pulling for the same blessed haven supper was announced.
Up to this time the sense of the beautiful had been gratified, and now we were thinking only of the "inner man," but if possible the loveliest scene of all presented itself. The table was a "thing of beauty" and could we have remained there would have been a "joy forever." Everything that appetite could desire or mind suggest was furnished in abundance and in the best style. Those of us who knew Mrs. Winston had no meager expectations, but none of us were prepared to expect and enjoy what she had prepared. Mrs. Winston has one daughter left, and if she intends to duplicate that supper when she embarks on this blissful year your correspondent desires to give notice of his presence unless fortune fails to present the opportunity.
A glimpse at the parlor after supper impressed one with the fact that the couple just married were not the only ones that believed that marriage is not a failure. We venture the assertion that the future will show that some of that lovely party will soon do likewise. The belle looked unusually well and was the center of attraction and the groom did not fail to present his most manly appearance. The presents were numerous, valuable, useful and handsome.
To-night the bridal party is at the home of Mr. G. W. Pittard, the father of the groom, and we assert without fear of missing the truth that there will be a repetition of last night.
In conclusion we but voice the sentiment of the entire community, and a large circle of friends in this State, Virginia and Texas, when we express the wish that the life of the wedded couple may be but a continuation of the joys and pleasures that cluster around and crowd themselves into their lives and the lives of their friends during this joyous occasion. With this no cloud can darken their path, their future will be sunshine, their home happiness and their lives a success.

—Blower has indicated the editor of the Greensboro Democrat for libel.
—Be sure and secure your reserve seats for the Madame Fry Concert Friday night.
—The Parlor Concert at the Granville Institute Tuesday evening was a most enjoyable and entertaining affair.

—Mr. J. T. C. Norwood, of Albin, has lost in the past few weeks some fifty hogs from cholera or some other disease.
—Mrs. Lucy Curran, who has been sick for some time, has been removed to the residence of her son, Mr. Matt Curran.

—Mr. John B. Booth gave a most delightful entertainment to his young lady and gentleman friends at his prize house on Monday night.
Sing me a Song of Christmas,
A mad-clap frolic of feast and fun,
Of the happy flutter of little hearts,
Of Peace and Good-will to every one,
And hey for a Merrie Christmas!
—Mr. Leroy Elliott, of Buchanan, has just received at his home a 16 pound young Democrat and he will no doubt become a good farmer and Allianceman if he should live.
—Major J. J. Ward, father of our townsman T. J. Ward, died at his home in Louisburg last week of pneumonia. He was 84 years old and was a most estimable Christian gentleman.
—Messrs. S. W. Mitchell & Son have sold out their hardware store to Messrs. Garrett & Dickerson. They are wide-awake young gentlemen and will no doubt reap a good share of patronage.
He wanted the earth, like the rest of his kind,
Yet he swore like a trooper rant,
Because a dray, passing along the street,
Splashed a small blotch of mud on his pants.
—We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of J. W. Markam in another column. He has three stores, one in Oxford and two in Durham, and would be glad to have at either one of them as he is prepared to sell you goods at bad rock prices, and satisfaction guaranteed.

PITTARD-WINSTON NUPTIAL.

MARRIAGE OF TWO OF OUR NORTHERN GRANVILLE'S POPULAR YOUNG PEOPLE.
For some weeks past the subject of this notice has been the one event of paramount interest to all others transpiring or to transpire in this neighborhood. A marriage at any time or place or under almost any circumstances is of peculiar interest to most of us. When you add to this fact the prestige, popularity and high social standing, not only of the contracting parties but of their entire families, incident to the one now to be noted there is no wonder that the community stands on tiptoes in anticipation of its consummation.
Few who were fortunate enough to be present at Grassy Creek Baptist Church, on Wednesday afternoon, December 17th, will ever forget the beautiful marriage solemnized there at that time. The church unadorned is a pretty one, but after having been touched in decoration by the skillful hands of a few lady friends of the parties it was scarcely recognizable by its most frequent visitors. From corner to centre, from centre to corner, from centre to side, from side to centre, and around and above the Pulpit hung beautiful evergreen decorations, festooned with grace and symmetry. The terminus of the aisle was spanned by a magnificent arch trimmed with lovely cedar, handsomely and profusely decorated with fern leaves. From the centre of this hung the "Marriage Bell" whose artistic arrangement was brightened by its lily white clapper as it chimed forth the marriage notes of love and happiness. Directly in front of this stood a snow white pyramid adorned with evergreens, rare flowers and lovely vases of every hue that seemed to vie in loveliness with the pure crystalline flakes of the beautiful snow which was "floating and waiting" to their own sweet music without. Above and on each side of the pulpit were the letters "P & W. Taken all together, and especially for harmonious adaptation to produce a desired effect your correspondent has seen these decorations equalled but seldom surpassed.
It was fitting that this appropriate place should be thus appropriately adorned for the marriage of Mr. John L. Pittard and Miss Sallie A. Winston. The bride is the daughter of B. T. Winston, Esq., of this place, who is known not only in this community but throughout the county as a man of sterling worth, high social standing and unbounded hospitality. Miss Sallie has been for the past two years the most popular, beautiful, highly accomplished and cultured lady of this portion of the county. The groom is the son of Mr. G. W. Pittard, a man as well and favorably known as any one man in this community. No place has among its young men a man of more intrinsic worth than John L. Pittard. He is honest, upright, popular, industrious and pure.
The bridal party arrived at the church at 3 o'clock and entered in the following

VANCE IS RE-ELECTED.

THE ALLIANCE IS ENTIRELY SATISFIED.

Now the Only Question Open Is: Do the People Want to Instruct Senator Vance to Vote For the Sub-Treasury Bill--If So, They Can do It.
The last Progressive Farmer contained the following correspondence between Mr. Elias Carr, President of the State Farmers' Alliance and Senator Vance. It will be of great interest to every citizen of the State, for it absolutely and unchangeably settles the Senatorial question in North Carolina.
PRESIDENT CARR'S LETTER.
NOVEMBER 20, 1890.
Hon. Z. B. Vance, Black Mountain, Buncombe Co.
DEAR SIR:—After carefully considering the political situation in our State, I deem it wise to write you and ask the following question: "If the Legislature instructs you to advocate and vote for the Sub-Treasury plan of financial reform, will you carry out said instructions in good faith?" I hope that you will understand I do not reflect in the slightest degree on your devotion to the people of North Carolina, but there are precedents where United States Senators have carried out instructions, and also precedents where they have disregarded them. I trust that you will give me an answer at your earliest convenience.
Very respectfully,
ELIAS CARR,
Pres't N. C. F. S. A.

SENATOR VANCE'S REPLY.
UNITED STATES SENATE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 6, 1890.
Elias Carr, President of N. C. Farmers' Alliance, Old Sparta, N. C.:
DEAR SIR:—In answer to your official communication of the 20th ult., which did not reach me until the 1st inst., I have to say that I recognize the old Democratic doctrine of the right of the people to instruct their representatives to the fullest extent to which it has ever been carried in North Carolina. I hold that the will of the people, clearly and unequivocally expressed, must be obeyed unless compliance would involve the representative in a moral wrong, in which case it would be his duty to resign and give place to a representative who would obey. Good faith in the observance of instructions and public pledges is absolutely essential to a government based on the popular will.
Very respectfully yours,
Z. B. VANCE.

WHAT THE PROGRESSIVE FARMER SAYS.
By reference to the correspondence between President Carr and Senator Vance, printed in another column, it will be seen that the Senator agrees to obey the instructions of the General Assembly, if it shall "unequivocally" direct him to vote for the Sub-Treasury "plan" of financial reform. It is now the duty of the people of North Carolina to meet in their several townships and indicate to their representatives in the General Assembly their will, as to whether Senator Vance shall be instructed to support the Sub-Treasury "plan" or not. In these meetings there should be the fullest and freest discussion of the merits and demerits of the Sub-Treasury "plan," with a view to ascertaining its practicability, as a scheme of reform. It has been said, more than once, that the majority of the farmers in North Carolina were opposed to the Sub-Treasury bill. If this opposition exists, now is the time for it to manifest itself. The Alliancemen of North Carolina are impregnable in their demands for reform. But they are not wedded to any special scheme of bringing it about. If a better scheme of reform can be devised than the one embodied in the Sub-Treasury "plan," the Progressive Farmer, for one, is in favor of the better scheme. This is our position now, and this has been our position all the while. Any other position, as it seems to us, would be irrational.
This agreement of Senator Vances' to obey the instructions of the General Assembly in the matter of supporting the Sub-Treasury "plan" should, and, we doubt not, will, allay all opposition to his re-election to the Senate, which arose from his expressed opposition to the scheme of reform, to which the Alliancemen are committed. The Alliancemen have it in their power to secure for their reforms the support of Vance by issuing instructions to him through the Legislature; and if they neglect to secure these instructions that will not be the fault of Senator Vance.
The Progressive Farmer is delighted to know that a way to the composing of the differences between Vance and the Alliancemen of North Carolina has been found; and it sees a splendid vista, lined with opportunity to make a careful and wise embodiment of Alliance principles in the plans of reform which will be brought before the next Congress. We see the way clear to the accomplishment of all that this paper has ever contended for; and we are content.
