NOTES OF THE DAY.

THE LOCAL HAPPENINGS SERVED IN SHORT PARAGRAPHS.

Minor Events, Retrospective and Prospective, Gathered About the City By Our Alert Reporters.

Regular meeting of the Oxford Lodge, I. O. O. F., No. 103, tonight. Visiting brothers cordially invited.

We are told by some members of the colored Odd Fellows Lodge we were un-informed about Bill Bryant, and his family being neglected in their sickness. The order is giving them all the necessary attention.

Mr. R. T. Smith is making some improvements to his residence on Asylum Avenue. He is adding new porches, and having the house painted a dark red. The rooms are being handsomely papered.

We learn from the Raleigh Call that the store of E. Danenberg, of Smith field, was destroyed by fire on Saturday. Loss, $10,000. Partly insured. One policy of $2,000 lapsed last week. Mr. Danenberg has a branch store in Oxford, conducted by his son.

A young negro man, Bold Reed, an employee of the Hicks Tobacco Company, was on a visit to his relatives at Clarksville, Va. Yesterday, while crossing the Roanoke river at that place, he fell out of the ferry boat and was drowned. The body has not been recovered.

Messrs. Owen, Barbour & Smith sold today to Mrs. Bettie Cooper a handsome carriage, to be used for conveying guests to and from the trains to the Irwin Place. It is a splendid piece of work, and was turned out by the Barbour Buggy Co., of South Boston, Va.

The orphans' entertainment at the Asylum ofapel tonight ought to be well patronized by our citizens. The admission fee is small, and the performance promises to be a very enjoyable one. Go by all means and take your sweetheart, or your wife and children, as the case might be.

Big Tobacco Break.

The six warehouses are crowded with tobacco today. It is the largest break Oxford has had in several weeks. The weed is here from almost everywhere, and the golden-carpeted floors present a rich and attractive sight. The sales will consume the whole day, with a warehouse or two left over for tomorrow.

It is needless to say the farmers find prices satisfactory. They always do when they sell on our market.

Items of Interest About North Carolina Scissored and Condensed from our Exchanges.

The famous humorist, Eli Perkins, lectured at Wake Forest last night.

Rev. T. M. Joiner, who raised the "outrage" cry some weeks ago, is reported to have accepted the pastorship of a negro church in the suburbs of Raleigh for the next twelve months.

The proprietor of the McAdoo Hotel, Greensboro, denies there was a riot at his hotel. Some boys created a disturbance, but there was no serious trouble and he does not consider the affair of sufficient consequence to prosecute the parties.

The first through train over the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Railway, just completed to Wilmington, left Wilmington for Mt. Airy, 240 miles distant, yesterday. The whole line embraces about 350 miles, and is being rapidly extended.

Mr. Edison has engaged a suite of rooms in Charlotte for a year. They will be for the use of himself and his experts, whenever they shall be here, during the next twelve months, to pursue their mining investigations among the mines of the richest mineral region on the globe, as he says the southwestern part of North Carolina is. — Charlotte Chronicle.

As will be seen by the proceedings of the Supreme Court, says the News-Observer writing of the Cross and White case, the motion in arrest of judgment which was made by Mr. Henry on Saturday was denied and the certificate of opinion and judgment was ordered to be certified down to the Wake Superior Court according to law. The defendants will therefore have to serve out their sentences of seven and five years respectively as soon as the formal process of the law can be carried into execution.

IN A GENERAL WAY.

Important Happenings in Other States and Countries.

Gen. Robert E. Lee's equestrian statue in Richmond is to be unveiled on 15th May next. The ceremonies will be imposing.

The salary of a pastor of a negro church in Petersburg, Va., was reduced two hundred dollars because he voted the Democratic ticket at the election last fall.

Four hundred thousand miners in Great Britain have decided to adhere to their demand for an increase of 10 per cent in wages. It is probable that the men will strike. Should they do so the coal output would be decreased three quarters.

The Atlanta Constitution says: "It is useless to conceal the mournful fact that Samuel J. Randall is slowly sinking—dying by inches. The brave heart bears up, and the clear eyes look cheerfully into the anxious faces about him, but the grand face bears the seal of death."

Mr. Moody introduced in the Senate a bill providing that when any city or town in the United States having a population of 4,000 shown by the census reports, shall make a request for a postoffice building, setting forth the above fact, the Postmaster General shall cause to be erected a suitable building for a postoffice. The bill authorizes the Postmaster General to prescribe the cost of the building, which shall be not less than $20,000 nor more than $50,000. The bill appropriates $3,000,000 for the purpose set forth.

THE UNIVERSITY MATTER.

The Raleigh Call Says that the Defeated Towns are Envious and Jealous.

The Raleigh Call publishes some extracts from the Durham Sun, Greensboro Patriot and THE DAY, and then moralizes in the style:

There's a moral to all this. Surrounding towns instead of being proud of the capital city are jealous of it. Instead of being disposed to make the capital a pride of State and a pride of the country, they show a disposition to undermine or pull it back. For some inexplorable reason Raleigh has kind words from few sources. Hence her citizens must more closely and more firmly unite themselves to war and further her interest. She is now like a man who is struggling to go forward. He has no encouragement, but rather there appears to be a combination of the world against him. The hands put forward are to pull him back, not to push him on. His purposes may be good, his aims noble; but Jealousy and Envy are ever putting obstacles in his way. If he persevere, however, and finally win in spite of difficulties, then the same world that opposed itself to his progress is the one to cheer and applaud him most loudly and to fawn most servilely.

Then let the citizens of Raleigh form a stronger bond of unity. Let opposing obstacles intensify Raleigh's efforts. Let Perseverance endure yet a little while longer, and then, yes then, her victories will proclaim her irresistible and incomparable, and then the now existing jealousies and envies will turn to encomiums and laudations.

If demanding fair play is envy then Oxford pleads guilty.

If protesting against Raleigh getting something she was not entitled to and ought not to have had is jealousy then Oxford pleads guilty again.

There is no occasion for the citizens of Raleigh to "more closely and more firmly unite themselves to war and further her interests." That is the trouble now. They ought to enlarge their range of vision, and rid themselves of the notion that Raleigh and Wake county constitute the State of North Carolina. There are other towns and other counties, and they have claims and rights entitled to consideration every now and then.

The Oxford people would like to see their capital a great city worthy of our great State, but if Raleigh should ever reach that pinnacle they would not do any servile fawning. That is not the characteristic of North Carolinians and least of all of Oxonians. The insinuation would indicate that when the Call said (in explanation of its "social and moral" slip up,) Durham and Oxford had as good environments as Raleigh, that the editor of the Call was hardly sincere. If he was and is sincere, then Raleigh will be ready to fawn on Oxford or Durham should either of the latter places eclipse the State capital.

Our people want to see Raleigh climb the height, but want to see her keep in the straight path and not get there by reprehensible means.
