LOCAL & STATE SQUIBS.

The wheat harvest is approaching.

Capt. Spencer brought a king snake to town last evening in a little box. The boys had quite a lively time.

The Junior returns thanks to Mrs. J. W. Hays for a dish of fine potatoes sent him yesterday. We like to be remembered thus

The Beaufort Eagle says a turtle was killed there last Monday which on examination was found to contain one thousand and fifty eggs.

The Raleigh News says "the Oxford editors have returned from the Press Convention. Only two attended and were welcomed home by the other six with much gusto and hand-shaking."

Rev. T. L. DeVeaux, editor of the N. C. Presbyterian, died at his residence in Wilmington last Tuesday evening of consumption. He was about forty years of age.

We learn that a special tax of about eleven hundred dollars is to be levied on the town of Henderson for the payment of damages to Mr. Reavis of this place through whose lots a street sixty feet wide was cut. It is said the people of Henderson propose to resist the collection of the tax.

"Black tongue" is a terrible disease which is slaying the cattle in some parts of the west. If it were fatal to human cattle, there would speedily be lots of first-class funerals all over the country. You are right, Mr. Donan, and there would be several in this town before to-morrow night.

To OUR PATRONS.—When we first started the CLARION, we expected to be supported better by the merchants and the citizens generally of this place, but in this we have been disappointed. Now we would like very much to keep the CLARION up, but we work nine hours every day on the Torchlight and then go right to work on our paper; consequently, we are very closely confined, and the support that we are now receiving from the people, does not pay us for the work we do. Now if you want to have a daily, if it is small, you must advertise and subscribe, or on the 10th of June we will suspend.
