Memorial at Chapel Hill. Those students who left the State University during the civil war were memorialized June 2 at Chapel Hill when Gov. Craig presented for the State the monument erected in their honor.

Gov. Craig described the entrance of Sherman's army and the prayer meetings held for protection by the desolate families who had sent their sons to war to never return.

"The University was consumed by the war," he said, "only one member of the class of 1865 graduating." He said that every member, 84 of the 1860 class, went to the army without conscription, and that more than a fourth of the graduates of the war period died in battle.

Describing the bronze statue he said a new "generation will read its meaning and we dedicate the monument as a covenant that we, too, will do our tasks with courage and fidelity."

Few students were buried in the University cemetery, but 400 are commemorated by this monument unveiled.

A Southern Farmers Thrift. The New York Times says, the circular of the National City Bank, contains an account of a farmers' meeting in Mississippi at which a member testified that in 1907 he owed $900 on his 160 acre farm; he had two ponies, small plows and a wagon. He added:

"The merchant in my town would not credit me for five cents because they thought it impossible for me to make a living for my family and seven children and pay my debts."

But the "Demonstration work" begun by the late Dr. S. A. Knapp of the Department of Agriculture reached this farm; Dr. Knapp's local agent urged him to cultivate one acre of cotton under the Government's instruction. He was asked to break the land 8-inches deep. To do this he had to borrow a team from his neighbors, and the full bale of cotton which he gathered from that one acre—he had previously cultivated 12-acres with a combined yield never over three bales—opened his eyes. He produced 6 bales of cotton on the 12 acres in 1908, nine bales in 1909, and he is now in a way to grow 2 bales of cotton for every acre that he cultivates. His financial status has, of course, changed:

"Merchants now run after me to sell me goods. I have paid the debt on my place, have four fine mules, and future looks bright. I have one son and one daughter in college this year, and believe that I am going to be able to give all my children a college education."

At the close of the farmer's talk a merchant arose and said that, whereas in 1907 he would not have credited this man "for a plug of tobacco," he would now give him credit "for $500 any time that he wants it." The fact that practically all the Southern States are co-operating in this demonstration work, and that they are reaching many thousands of farmers like the one who recited his experience, seems significant, in the opinion of this very influential bank.

Plan for State Board of Education. Dr. H. Q. Alexander, of Charlotte, a member of the State Constitutional Amendment Commission will propose a change in the Constitution for the appointment of the State Board of Education.

Instead of the Governor and council of State comprising the Board as at present, Dr. Alexander propose a board of five men to be appointed by the Governor, regardless of their political affiliations, the men to be chosen for their peculiar fitness for the position. The plan contemplates the appointment of one member for two years, one for four years, one for six years and two for eight years. Afterward each one would be appointed for a term of four years. This arrangement would prevent any one Governor appointing the whole board or even a majority of it, and in this way Dr. Alexander believes the board could be kept out of politics entirely. He would also have this board constituted the board of directors of all the State's educational institutions, including the University and the A. & M. College, the State Normal College, the Institutions for the Blind, etc. He would make the State Superintendent of Public Instruction secretary of the board and would have the salaries of members of the board fixed by the General Assembly as are the salaries of the other officials of the State. The board would also constitute the State text book commission.

Any plan that will take the schools away from politics, that will put in charge of the State's Educational interests men fitted for the work rather than men considered from the viewpoint of politics, is to be commended. Too often is it the case that men are selected to serve on boards who, besides not possessing a high school education, are not fitted for shaping the destinies of the schools of the land.
