TO THE Farmers of Granville And Other Counties:

While we do not claim that tobacco is selling as high as it did last year, there has been a nice advance in prices in the last few days, and if you will compare them with any other year, Tobacco is Selling Well.

Practically every man is satisfied with his sales. Z. W. Lyon, at the Minor Warehouse knows how to sell tobacco for the highest dollar possible, and he will give every pile of yours

His Careful and Best Attention and get the highest prices for you. When you get a load ready to sell come to the MINOR and we will make it pay you.

BIG JOB AHEAD

The Greensboro Record says: Under the enabling act, under which Virginia is to have prohibition, it will be two years before it is effective, yet it is not too early to remind the people that if some mighty good work is not done, they are going to have a time enforcing the law in Richmond and Norfolk especially. These cities voted wet in the late election, tending to show that public sentiment in these places is against prohibition. The plan will be to elect city officials who will wink at the violations of the law as is done in Memphis, Savannah and other places. The common boot-legger who slips around with his small amount of liquor really amounts to nothing compared to the big fellow who is permitted by city officials to sell right along. Sunday as well as other days. If Virginia shall fail to enforce prohibition in Norfolk, outlawed Norfolk liquor sellers will continue to sell liquors and a part of their revenues will be available as a "war chest" to finance politicians and political rings pledged to protect them against law enforcement. Prohibition or other liquor laws unenforced create in cities a body of wealthy law-breakers that to insure the perpetuity of law-breaking stands ready and willing to stake with money corrupt politicians and to buy elections in their interest.

Possibly there are prohibitionists dwelling in country districts who, not seeing this condition in cities, refuse to believe that it exists, but that does not alter the truth. Soon or late, the law-breaking whiskey sellers of the city undertake to corrupt the politics of the State.

To inject into an act a criminal quality by statute and then fail to enforce the act is to breed a nest of criminals who hinder the enforcement of all laws to prevent crimes.

NATIONS THAT BUY FROM US.

What and how much the nations of the world are buying from the United States, as told by American Consular officers, are discussed in "Commercial Relations of the United States," a volume of 272 pages, just issued by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Four countries other than the United States offer each a market for over $1,000,000,000 worth of foreign products annually—the United Kingdom, Germany, France and the Netherlands. Great Britain buys $3,000,000,000 worth, about 20 per cent of which is from this country; Germany $2,500,000,000 with about 15 per cent from the United States; France, $1,500,000,000, of which 11 per cent is from the United States, and the Netherlands, an important center for the transshipment of foreign goods, nearly $1,500,000,000, in which the American goods figure to the extent of about 10 per cent.

Belgium's annual purchase fall just short of $1,000,000,000 in value United States products supplying about 8 per cent, while Austria-Hungary, Italy, Canada, Russia, India, Australia, Argentina and Japan are next in order, with imports ranging from $722,000,000 to about $300,000,000. These countries vary greatly in the proportion of their purchases from the United States, Canada taking 65 per cent and India 3 per cent. Brazil's exports exceed $308,000,000, only 15 per cent of which are from the United States, which takes 40 per cent of the Brazilian exports.

PRAYER FOR PEACE

All the churches of Oxford on Sunday last kneeled in prayer, imploring the Almighty for divine intervention to preserve or restore peace. This is not the first instance that people of the United States have been moved to prayer by a proclamation issued by the President of the United States.

Between 1798 and 1881, seven such proclamations were made:

1798—President John Adams named May 9 as a national day of prayer because France threatened to make war upon the United States.

1815—President James Madison proclaimed January 12 as a day of prayer when trouble was brewing between the American republic and Algiers.

1861—President Abraham Lincoln designated the last Thursday in September for national prayer for the restoration of peace between the North and South.

1863—President Lincoln called for a second day of prayer—April 30—recommending that the people keep the day "in all humility and with all religious solemnity to the end that the united prayer of the nation may ascend to the throne of grace and bring bountiful blessings upon our own country."

1864—For the third time during the War Between the States a general day of prayer was proclaimed. That was August 1, 1864. Lincoln wrote: "In sincerity and truth let us rest humbly in the hope, authorized by the Divine teachings, that the united cry of the nation will be heard on high and answered with blessings no less than the pardon of our national sins and the restoration of our divided and suffering country to its former happy condition of unity and peace."

1865—President Johnson proclaimed June 1 a day of prayer in commemoration of President Lincoln who died on April 15 the victim of Booth's bullet.

1881—President Arthur designated September 26 for general prayer to mark the burial of President Garfield who had died September 19 from an assassin's attack.

President Wilson's call for a day of supplication was issued September 8. It was the first time in American history that the people had been urged to pray for the restoration of peace in foreign lands. He requested that "all God-fearing persons repair to their places of worship, there to unite their petitions to Almighty God that, overruling the counsel of men, setting straight the things they cannot govern or alter, taking pity on the nations now in the throes of conflict, in His mercy and goodness showing a way where men can see none, He vouchsafe His children healing peace again, and restore once more that concord among men and nations, without which there can be neither happiness nor true friendship nor any wholesome fruit of toil or thought in the world."

CREAMERY A SUCCESS

In the five months the Guilford creamery has been running there has been a boost given the dairy business in Guilford county and the rest of the central part of North Carolina. Farmers are just coming to realize the importance of the business and dairying gives promise of coming to be well established.

The creamery now is supplied by from 400 to 500 cows and makes over 10,000 pounds of butter per month and is selling 4,000 gallons of pasteurized milk per day. This, however, represents only about one-fourth of the creamery's capacity, showing that there is yet much room for dairy cattle, for three or four times the number now employed.

Since the opening of the creamery representatives have been out on the cream routes regularly, gathering cream, weighing it, sampling it and sending it in. The trains bring it to Greensboro on passenger trains at baggage rates and the cans are returned free.

The above news item is worth while, but it might be suggested that the one real reason the Creamery has been a success is because the manager, Mr. Hornady, knows his business and attends to his business.—Everything.

CROP REPORTS FOR SEPTEMBER

The crop estimates for North Carolina and the United States for September show up well on an average for both the state and the nation.

Both wheat and corn show an increase in the nation of more than one hundred and thirty million bushels each. Oats fell off a little. Rye gained a million bushels. Potatoes held their own. Apples gained seventy-five million bushels. Tobacco lost nearly 300,000,000 pounds, a very heavy shortage; hay gained slightly, cabbage lost, peaches about one-third more than for 1913. Melons gained, sorghum lost, peanuts gained slightly. There is a notable increase in stock hogs, the percentage being 105 in North Carolina for 1914 and 94 per cent for 1913. There is a slight increase in clover seed also.

Sounds Small
YOU SAY!

But is it small? Ask the woman who buys the groceries for the family. We are holding our great list of patrons—and increasing them—because we save them the pennies—a penny here, another one there, and so on down the long list of articles sold in a grocery store.

By the end of the year this accumulation of pennies saved one at a time has doubled and trebled and multiplied until it has reached a sum in dollars of surprising proportions. It pays to trade with us—you save the pennies.
