

W. A. MCFARLAND.

Wide-Awake Grocer Merchant and Citizen.

Mr. W. A. McFarland is one of Oxford's progressive citizens and one of the proprietors of a large grocery store in town. He was born in Walnut Grove Township, Granville county, and while a boy lived on the farm in that section of the county. When a young man Mr. McFarland entered business at Berea in the northwestern part of the county, succeeding Fuller Bros. He continued his business at that place for about nine years until in 1906 when he came to Oxford which has been his home ever since.

Upon coming to Oxford Mr. McFarland became associated with Mr. C. H. Breedlove one of the proprietors of a large grocery store which since that time has been known by the name of Breedlove & McFarland. He has made many friends while in Oxford and stands among the leading merchants of the town. He has not only been live in his business but at the same time he has taken an active part in the progress of Oxford. He is now serving as a member of the town board of commissioners.

THE MOORE LUMBER CO.
A GROWING ENTERPRISE

Every Year a Large Volume of Business is Done.

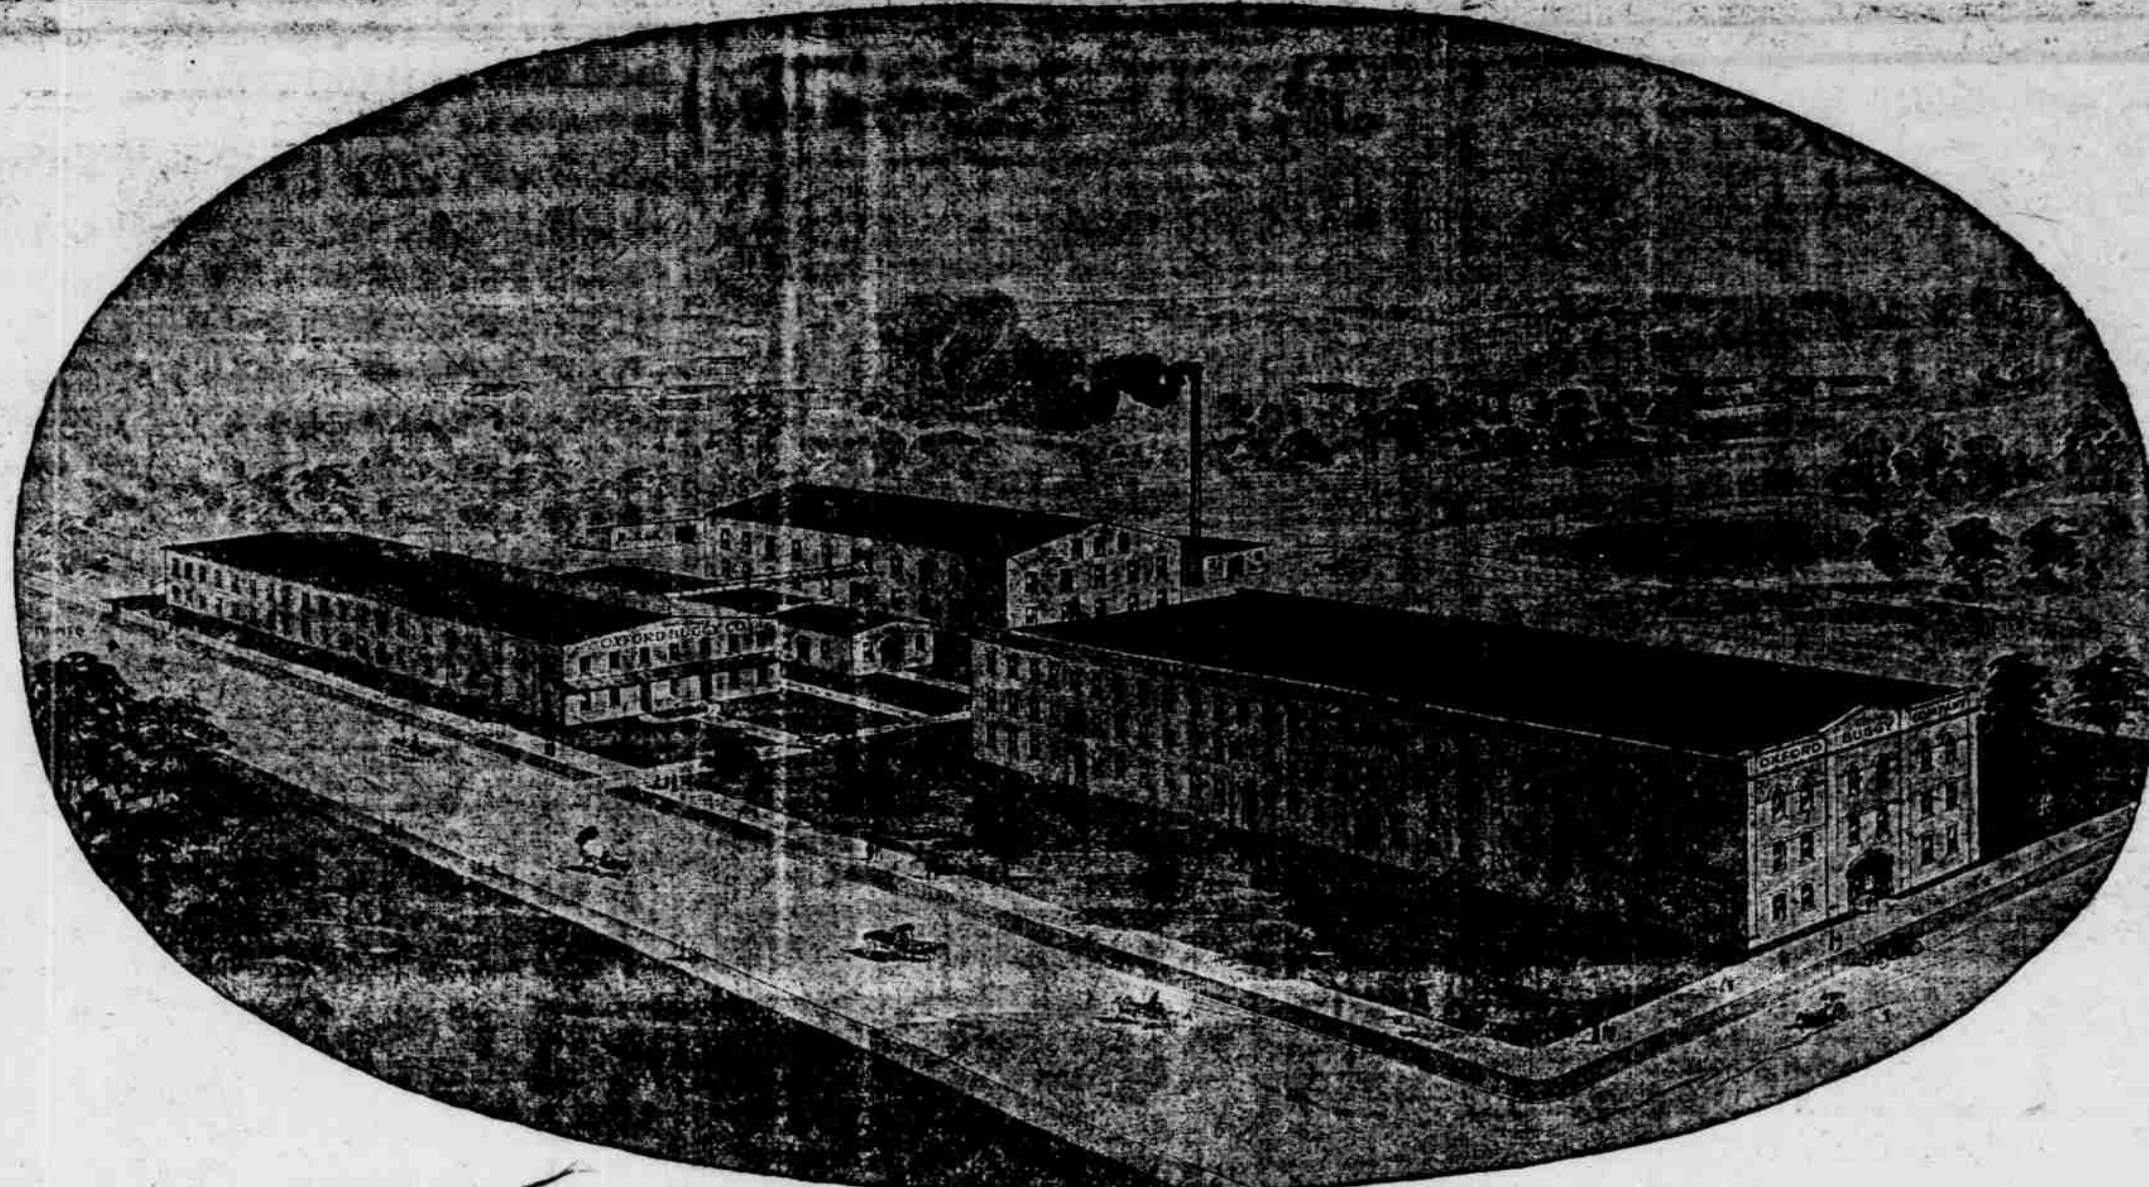

When you pass down Penn avenue from College street the first manufacturing plant you come to is that of the Moore Lumber Company, established many years ago by the late L. B. Turner who ran it under his name until the spring of 1914 when Messrs. A. H. Moore and J. M. Campbell purchased it and now operate it under the name of Moore Lumber Company. Although the two years that they have been in business have been the hardest in the history of the town yet they have maintained a busy plant with much work, and now enjoy a thriving business.

As will be seen by their ad on the first page of this section they handle everything that goes in the building of a house, factory, etc. The plant employs about nine men, all of whom are satisfied, well-paid, and loyal citizens of Oxford. The payroll of this firm has a telling effect upon the commercial life of the community.

Mr. A. H. Moore, is the congenial manager of the firm and has associated with him in the office, his brother Mr. George Moore. These are fine young business men and their large success in the business is assured. You will find them always courteous, and polite and the best boosters in town.

Linneys' Move (Wilmington Star)

If North Carolina Democracy has in its record for the last dozen years one invulnerable and impregnable fortress, it is the progress made in the advancement of public education, and yet Frank Linney, Republican candidate for Governor, attacks that. He has his nerve with him.

T. LANIER.

A Prominent Lawyer With a Noble Ancestry.

Born in Oxford in 1871 and having made it his home all his life, Mr. T. Lanier is no stranger to the people of this community. He is the son of Mr. M. V. Lanier, who during his career as a lawyer became known as one of the most prominent of the profession in the State. While very young he attended Horner Military School and Bethel Military Academy of Virginia. He then studied law at the University of North Carolina and also attended the Summer School at Harvard University. At the age of twenty-one years he received his license to practice law, two years after which he came to Oxford and began to practice. While at the University Mr. Lanier took an active part in athletics and during his earlier days was known all over the State for his ability for playing baseball. Since beginning to practice law he has not sought political offices but has made a success in his profession and has held the confidence of his many friends. He has always been interested in the progress of Oxford and has been closely identified with its growth.

What Hughes Said (Philadelphia Record)

When Senator Walsh denounced the nomination for the Presidency of a Supreme Court Justice this might be attributed to mere partisanship. But it happens that such action has also been denounced by Associated Justice Charles Evans Hughes, of the Supreme Court. Four years ago he said the Supreme Court should not be dragged into politics. One year ago he said: "As a Judge of the Supreme Court of the United States I have no right to be a candidate, openly or tacitly." But when the chance came his scruples disappeared.

D. C. HUNT

Clerk of the Granville County Superior Court.

Mr. D. C. Hunt was born in Oxford in 1869 and has made it his home ever since, during this time being a progressive citizen and active in the business life of the town most of the while. He received his educational training at Horner Military School, following which he entered into the business world in which he was active until recently when he became one of the county officers. The first few years of Mr. Hunt's career was spent in the tobacco business. Following his experience in this work he became a wholesale grocer in which capacity he was prominent in the commercial life of the community. However he gave up his business after a short while to assume the duties of the office of Clerk of the Superior Court of Granville county, to which he was elected to succeed Mr. J. G. Shotwell, deceased. Mr. Hunt is now serving his first term in this office but has proved to be an efficient and faithful officer.

TRAVELING MEN COMING TO OXFORD WELL CARED FOR.

Hotel Accommodations are Very Satisfactory to the Hundreds of Commercial Men Who "Swarm to the Best Town on Earth."

Oxford's hotel facilities are good. The largest of the hostleries is the Exchange, a modern house on Hillsboro street. Mr. Lonnie F. Smith is the proprietor and manager. He has been in the business for twenty-five years and is one of the best known men in his line in the State. The Exchange is conducted along the most modern lines, is quiet, dignified, yet enticing place, and holds a certain charm for the angel of commerce that impels many a weary traveler to make Oxford when in this territory to spend the week-end. Mr. Smith knows all the boys by name and reputation and mixes with them so freely that they regard him as one of them and are glad to have him around after supper when yarn-swapping is commenced. The cuisine is noted. The bill of fare at the Exchange is not excelled in any hotel in this part of the country; any commercial traveler approached will tell you the same. The Exchange contains about 50 rooms—neat, clean, very comfortably furnished rooms, well heated in winter and noticeably cool in the hot months. The house is the travelers' paradise, any of them will admit.

The Republicans are not going to do anything in North Carolina until they get together and make one earnest try at it.

O. B. BREEDLOVE.

From the Farm to a Prominent Merchant.

Mr. O. B. Breedlove has worked his way from the farm into the commercial life of Oxford, and has gradually climbed until he is now one of the proprietors of one of the leading dry goods firms of Oxford. He was born in Granville county and lived on the farm until thirteen years ago when he came to Oxford. Since this time he has had experience in both the grocery store and the dry goods store. For a while after coming here he worked with Pitchford & Co. and then with Mr. J. D. Brooks. He then began to clerk in the Landis hardware store where he remained for two years. After this Mr. Breedlove accepted a position with Landis & Easton and has been in the dry goods business since that time. He continued to clerk for Landis & Easton for six years but he went into business for himself, buying Mr. Green's interest in the Perkinson-Green Company. Mr. Breedlove has been with this firm for the last three years.

THE OXFORD COLLEGE

L. S. GARMAN.

Superintendent of Garman Wheel Company.

Mr. Levi S. Garman is a brother to Mr. C. S. Garman and was reared in the state of Pennsylvania. He lived in that state most of the time until ten years ago when he came to Oxford. He is a manufacturer and is connected with the Garman Wheel Co. along with his brother. When Mr. Garman first became connected with the manufacturing business he went to the woods and spent one year there getting out timber for the factory. In 1904 he entered the factory and since that time has worked there where the actual manufacturing was being done. When the factory was removed to Oxford in 1906 Garman came also and for the first nine years of its location here he served as assistant superintendent, the factory bearing the name of the Southern Wheel Company. One year ago when the company was reorganized and the name changed to Garman Wheel Company Mr. Garman became superintendent of the business. He now serves in that capacity and is one of Oxford's valuable men.

had an early beginning of his business career. In the year 1896 he went into business with Mr. B. F. Taylor. In 1900 the Taylor-Cannady Buggy Company was organized, Mr. Cannady being one of its organizers. He has been with the company ever since its organization and until 1911 was on the road all the time. He then succeeded Mr. Winston as secretary and manager and since then he has spent part of his time on the road and part in the office. In 1915 Mr. Cannady bought the interest of Col. W. B. Ballou and became president and treasurer of the company. He has always been loyal to the enterprise and he still has men in his employment who have been with the company ever since its organization.
