First Visit Since 1876

Mr. and Mrs. William Cole and son, B. F. Cole, all of New York are the pleasant guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Howard this week. Mr. William Cole has been connected with the New York Times for 34 years. He visited the town of Oxford in the year of 1876, when he reaches the old town this time he will be pleasantly surprised when he sees the progress it has made since he last visited it, for the writer thinks she is on a boom and I know it. Mr. Cole is a brother of Mr. Frank and Charlie Cole, the sons of Dr. Cole who used to live at Berea. Mr. Cole also told me that when he was here last our good old faithful J. T. Britt was hammering on the Public Ledger and I told him the paper was still printed by Mr. D. A. Coble, also a faithful servant of the people of the good old county and State.

Personals.
