ANNUAL DELIVERY BILL

It Costs a Million Dollars Annually In North Carolina.

The annual expense of delivering groceries and other merchandise in the cities and towns of North Carolina is well over a million dollars according to officials of the Food Administration, who have been investigating the problem and who declare that more than half of this expense is unnecessary. Scores of stores operating two and three and four delivery wagons or trucks could dispose of all except one, fixing absolutely rigid routes and hours of delivery for their territory.

The Food Administration from the very first has encouraged the "Cash and Carry" method of doing business and with the labor shortage becoming more and more acute all the time it is promoting in every way possible the elimination of all the man power, horse power, gasoline and other expenses of delivery.

State Food Administrator Henry A. Page's attitude with regard to the conservation of labor is well known. No able bodied man in Mr. Page's opinion, has any business working at a job which could be filled, and would be gladly filled, by patriotic women and girls. The elimination of one-half the delivery service in North Carolina could be easily accomplished in the opinion of Mr. Page and this would add several hundred able-bodied men and boys to the available supply of labor which is needed in essential industries. This has already been accomplished in a large measure by the hotels and restaurants through the substitution of girls and women for men waiters and by a similar process in either industries. There is a very noticeable trend in this direction.

SOME HINTS ON KEEPING COOL

Most of the Heat Prostrations Reported are Due to Some Other Cause Entirely. (State Board of Health.)

In this part of the United States there is no possible degree of heat or humidity that should worry a thoroughly healthy individual who avoids over-exposure to the direct rays of the sun and who is temperate and reasonable in his manner of living.

The heat prostration reported so often in the papers during every spurt of the thermometer are seldom heat prostrations, strictly speaking. The heat merely gives a finishing touch to a body already weakened.

Here are some ways to beat the heat.

- Get the surplus fat off the body.
- Keep cool mentally, as well as physically.
- Keep the head protected from the sun.
- Take little meat, and take no alcohol.
- Do not overload and distend the stomach with sweet, "fizzy" drinks that only increase thirst.
- Slightly acid drinks, such as unsweetened orangeade, lemon juice and water, are more thirst quenching.
- Get enough sleep.
- Don't talk about the heat.
- Don't read about the heat.
- Ask your newspaper not to publish Ask your newspaper not to publish "heat horrors."
- Don't look at the thermometer.
- Try to keep the air moving around your body.
- Get all the fun out of the hot weather that you can, without overdoing, and remember that millions of busy people are not letting the thermometer worry them.

'SAMMIES SHOWN IN ACTION IN 'THE MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY'

When the elaborate production of "The Man Without a Country" was being filmed it was necessary to secure some realistic battle scenes to show the spirit of the modern "Sammy."

Lieutenant Colon Maulden, commandant at Fort Slocum, became so interested in the filming of the feature that he extended every military facility of the post to aid in making it a remarkable production.

Many of the scenes were taken at Fort Slocum and are true to life. In one incident 2,000 soldiers who were being transferred to another post were appropriated to action in the construction of the vivid scenes shown in "The Man Without a Country."

The "Sammies" are shown at their quarters, lined up for roll call, and marching to the steamer. It is a real picture of army life and shows just how our sons and brothers look when they leave their home to "do their bit."

While at Fort Slocum, Director Warde, thanked Lieutenant Colonel Maulden for the effective co-operation he had given him and also the men. One of them replied: "We were glad to help in a picture like this one you are putting on. It will do more good than a thousand patriotic speeches."

The photoplay version of the famous masterpiece is the first presentation of a series of efforts on the part of the American Defense Society to "Wake Up America" to the necessity of each and every person "doing their bit." There is work to be done in assisting their government to a successful conclusion of this world's war.

The society's activities have extended to every state in the Union in the suppression of treason and disloyalty, as well as such influences which have deterred the progress of the administration. Pro-German publications and newspapers have been put out of business. German insurance companies, who knew of the sailings of our merchantmen, have been curtailed in their activities. While seditions and disloyal street corner speaking has been stamped out in various cities through the co-operation of the local police departments, further work is to be done by the Vigilance corps, which is enrolling members throughout the land, who are following the society's motto of "Serve at the front or serve at home."

—Capt. Donald F. Ray of the 156th field artillery, whose home was at Fayetteville, died Saturday in an army hospital at Fort Sill, Okla., where he had recently been sent for a ten weeks' course in aerial observation. He had been attached to the brigade staff at Camp Jackson.

—The fourth shot from a gun manned by a Navy armed guard on an American merchant ship struck the conning tower of a German submarine, which attacked the ship May 12 last at 1,000 yards distance. The submarine was compelled to submerge after having launched four torpedoes, two of which missed the steamer's bow by about 12 feet. Chief Gunner's Mate Harry R. Chambers, commanding the armed guard, was commended by Secretary Daniels for efficient conduct.
