Short Items Dealing With the News of a Week.

The Cotton Mills is now being painted. Don't jump to conclusions; walk right up to them. The demand for a first class hotel in Oxford increases daily. The mean man is not apt to die of enlargement of the heart. Satan always giggles when he sees the hypocrite upon his knees.

No man is so homely but that he is a hero to some woman. Read change of advertisement of the Savings Bank of Oxford. Mrs. Chas. Behlen, who has been sick for two weeks is out again. Even cold blooded people have been warm enough the past week.

Work continues on the artesian well at the Oxford Orphan Asylum. The First National Bank of Oxford, is getting ready to open on the 15th. The residence of Mr. Joseph F. Meadows on College street is going rapidly up.

The improvements to Dr. S. H. Cannady's residence will soon be completed. Some hilarious person Tuesday night broke one of the plate-glass windows of Mr. Ustry's saloon.

We understand that the machinery for the Cotton Mills will arrive in a few weeks. Mr. Lon Hunt, who has no superior as a figurer, is making out the tax list for the county.

A Camp of the Woodman of the World was organized at Berea Saturday by Mr. D. A. Moore. Board of County Commissioners met Monday to hear complaints as to over valuation of property listed.

The slate for the Methodist church has arrived and suppose it will be put on some time in the future. Mr. and Mrs. James Paris, who have been numbered with the sick, are pleased to say, are much better.

We call attention of our readers to the advertisement of sale of land by Davison & Baker, trustees, in another column. Quite a number of our young people enjoyed a picnic at Cheatham's pond Friday and those afflicted with cupid's arrow were in the zenith of loves glory.

Mr. W. B. Ballou has purchased the Kingsbury residence next to the Presbyterian church, as well as the old Granville Warehouse, lot from Mr. James Floyd. Owing to the absence of Rev. A. McCullen there will be no service at the Methodist church next Sunday morning. Union service at night conducted by Rev. John E. Wool.

The pastoral service of Rev. R. H. Marsh at State Line church will cease at the close of the present year. The church has been notified to this effect and the election of a successor requested. The former dwelling of Mandy Anderson, near town was burned last Wednesday night. The disreputable parties who had occupied the house had moved out that day, and it is not known how the fire originated.

On the 4th Sunday in July the unveiling exercises of the monuments erected over the graves of Messrs. James A. Renn and John Henry Meadows by the Woodman of the World will take place in Elmwood Cemetery. Will announce the hour later. The bright and sweet little boys and girls of Oxford in charge of their parents formed the lantern brigade Friday night and illuminated our streets with their youthful presence. They were all dressed in white and each one carried a lantern of unique design.

One of the old time Republican sights met our gaze Saturday afternoon--that of seeing the two famous Bills entering the Court House together. It is a blessed thing that the white people of Granville decided that they should no longer reign supreme in the Court House. Granville come to the front this year on listing under the new revenue law. The increase over last year on personal property amounts to $325,000. We take this occasion to congratulate the list takers and the people upon the fine showing old Granville has made.

The able and greatly esteemed Rev. John E. Wool will be the only pastor in town Sunday and will occupy his pulpit Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at the close of the sermon will be administered. The farmers of Granville and adjoining counties learn will with delight the return of Mr. Eugene Crews to the Oxford market the coming season. Mr. Crews is justly recognized as the best tobacco auctioneer in the State, as he can come nearer getting the last cent for a pile of tobacco than any auctioneer we know.

Miss Dora Sater, of Halifax, is visiting Mrs. Julia Minor. Miss Featherston, of Roxboro, is the guest of Mrs. Emmett on Front street.

The painter has about completed the residence of Mr. John Paris on College street. We call attention to the advertisements of Messrs. W. H. Gooch and J. H. Daniel, of Clarksville, Va.

Mrs. Ernest Jones, of LaGrange, after a two weeks visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charley Turner, returned home Friday accompanied by Miss Mary Pritchard. Skinner Hicks, Haywood Knott, Edward Green and Fred Rogers, four of Oxford's colored young men who enlisted in the 49th Regiment, arrived in San Francisco two weeks ago from the Philippines and mustered out, and reached home a few days ago to the joy of their kinspeople.

The editor is in receipt of the following announcement: Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Winston request your presence at the marriage of their daughter Cora, to Mr. Claude Cecil Cheatham, Wednesday morning, July 17th, 1901, at 11:30 o'clock at the Methodist church, Youngsville, N. C. At home after August 1st, Youngsville, N. C.

Complimentary. In the Oxford Public Ledger there is an elaborate and capably conceived and executed communication on the late John W. Hays. It is from the pen of Mr. F. P. Hobgood, Jr., a young lawyer of much promise and gifts, and while written with no little felicity of style it is a very accurate and charming portrait of the amiable and able gentleman whose death is so much regretted in that section. Wilmington Messenger.

Off to Wrightsville. The Granville Grays, clad in new uniforms, left yesterday morning for encampment at Wrightsville. They present a handsome appearance, and we wish the gallant boys a joyous time in camp and a safe return home. They were accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. T. L. Booth, Rev. A. McCullen, Regimental Chaplain, Rev. J. S. Hardaway, Company Chaplain, and Rev. R. B. Owen.

His Hog Burst Open. Mr. D. Hunt, who lives at Stem, entertained a number of his friends at his home last Thursday night, and there was of course a quantity of scraps left from supper. Mr. Hunt had quite a nice pig, and next morning the fragments, including melted ice cream, were given him, which he greatly relished. In a short time after partaking of the sumptuous meal his pigskin swelled up and burst open. This is a true bill.

Graded School Superintendent. We are pleased to see that our most excellent Board of Graded School Trustees are showing to the people that they intend that Oxford shall have a first class Graded School. They have been quietly at work and have secured the services of Prof. H. P. Harding, who has a fine reputation as superintendent of the Graded School at Newbern. The Newbern correspondent of News & Observer says:

"The city will lose one of its popular citizens in the departure of Prof. H. P. Harding, who has resigned as principal of the City Graded School to accept the superintendency of the Graded School at Oxford." The teachers have not as yet been elected, but we know they will be numbered with the best of our community, and rank with the best in State. You can put it down that the Oxford Graded School will be a grand success from the start and parents need have no fears of sending their children to the School.

Meeting of County Commissioners. The Board of County Commissioners met first Monday with all the members present. Two days of the meeting was consumed in examining pensioners. Ordered that Betsy Beasley, Louisa Bobbitt and Moriah Montague be put on the outside pauper list at $1 per month. A number of rebates were allowed. Ordered that R. Broughton, R. S. Uary, Ellis & Co. and I. H. Stegall be granted license to retail spirituous liquors for six months from July 1st, 1901.

On motion an appropriation of $150 was made to the Granville Grays for 12 months. Chairman Crews and W. T. Lyon were appointed a committee to settle with the Sheriff. Messrs. C. F. Crews and W. T. Lyon, committee appointed to make settlement with Treasurer J. F. Edwards, madethier report which was recorded. Sheriff Fleming reported the following taxes collected for June: State $147.52; School $222.73; County $168.61; Railroad $106.89--Total $645.89.

All the list takers in the county made their reports save one. It was found on examination of the lists that all the townships had largely increased their tax valuations save one, Walnut Grove, which fell behind in the State, as he can come nearer getting the last cent for a pile of tobacco than any auctioneer we know.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Professor Luther Buchanan Elected Superintendent of Schools.

This important body met in the Court House Monday with Messrs. F. W. Hancock and James H. Webb present. The report of Superintendent Baker was received and acted upon. The appointment of school committeemen for the school districts was postponed for two week.

The Board elected Prof. Luther T. Buchanan, the well known teacher of Creedmoor, Superintendent of Public Instruction, and is an admirable selection, as he has had a long experience in school work. Professor Buchanan is a man of great energy and will be sure to bring the schools of Granville up to a high standard of excellence.

Prof. A. Baker, who on retiring from the faithful discharge of duties submitted the following to the Board which was unanimously received: "On retiring as Superintendent of Public Schools of Granville I beg to say that I am sincerely thankful to the Board for its uniform kind treatment of me during the year just closing; also to all former Boards for honors bestowed, and to all teachers and other school officials, together with the parents and their children attending the schools, for ten thousand courtesies without one word or act of unkindness to me in my official capacity. But above all and embracing all, I am profoundly grateful to the kind Benefactor of us all for health and strength, and I trust a good degree of his spirit, which has actuated me to be on hand at every appointment in the discharge of my official duties for the past six years. Most respectfully submitted. ALEXANDER BAKER.

Death of a Christian Young Man. Our community and the neighborhood in which he lived (Carlton) are greatly grieved over the death of Mr. Ashton A. Hicks, one of Granville's most excellent young men, at St. Luke's Hospital, Richmond, Va., on last Wednesday night. His death was a shock to his family and friends. This greatly esteemed young man had a severe attack of appendicitis and taken there to be operated upon, but the disease had such a firm hold he only survived about 50 hours after the operation.

The remains reached Oxford Thursday afternoon and carried out to his home at Carlton, and at 6 o'clock were consigned to the tomb in the family graveyard amid the tears of grief-stricken loved ones, friends and neighbors.

The deceased was the brother of Senator A. A. Hicks, of Oxford; Mr. T. T. Hicks and Mrs. S. H. Harris, of Henderson; Mr. Hewitt Hicks, Mrs. J. T. Cozart and Miss Maggie Hicks, and to all of whom the sympathy of the editor go out in much tenderness in the unexpected death of a devoted brother.

Mr. Hicks was a most exemplary young man, and greatly endeared by association to many of our people as he was reared near Oxford. He was 30 years of age, and a true member of the Methodist Protestant Church and lived the life of a Christian. He was a quiet, manly young man, and wore his faults on his sleeve. Warm-hearted and generous, his finer and better qualities were known only to those who had the pleasure of an immediate acquaintance.

One of his neighbors, who knew him from boyhood, remarked in the editor's presence that "Ashton Hicks was one of the best young men he ever knew, honorable and upright, and of unblemished character." "Rock of ages cleft for me, Sung above a coffin lid, Underneath all restfully, All life's joys and sorrows hid. Nevermore, O, storm-tossed soul! Nevermore from wind or tide, Nevermore from billows roll. Wilt thou need thyself to hide. Could the sightless sunken eyes Closed beneath the brown hair, Could the mute and stiffened lips Move again in pleading prayer, Still, ay still, the words would be-- Let me hide myself in Thee."

It is easier to keep well than get cured. DeWitt's Little Early Risers taken now and then, will always keep your bowels in perfect order. They never gripe but promote an easy gentle action. J. G. Hall.

Installation of Rev. E. P. Bradley. Rev. E. P. Bradley was installed pastor of the Oak Hill Presbyterian Church, in this county, on Sunday, June 30th. The sermon was preached at 11 o'clock service by Rev. John E. Wool, of Oxford, from Mark 13:33: "And unto every man his work." After recess and dinner the installation services took place. Rev. Wool presided and propounded the constitutional questions. Rev. A. R. Shaw, of Henderson, then charged the pastor, after which Capt. J. M. B. Hunt, an elder in the Nutbush church, made a charge to the people. Though the day was hot the congregation was large and the services were enjoyed by all.

Messrs. Long Bros. are making some improvements to the Aiken residence which they recently purchased.

MEMORIAL SERVICES SUNDAY

At Methodist Church in Memory of One of God's Anointed, Mr. John W. Hays.

A special service was held at the Methodist Church last Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in memory of the late greatly beloved John W. Hays, which was attended by a very large congregation, many members of the Baptist and Presbyterian churches, including their pastors, attending. The service was very interesting, the remarks that were made being especially appropriate and the singing of choir with Miss Eva Minor at the organ, and the solos by Mrs. Sid Hunt and Mrs. John Booth being exceedingly touching.

The program began with an anthem by the choir, "Nearer my God to Thee," followed by a prayer by Rev. J. S. Hardaway, pastor of the Baptist Church. After the choir rendered "The Home of the Soul" Mr. R. L. Brown, Superintendent of the Sunday School, spoke of Mr. Hays as a Sunday School Worker.

The speaker went on to relate how he first met Mr. Hays in church, and upon his being introduced to him as a great Sunday School and Church worker, Mr. Hays replied, "No, I am not a great worker, I can hope to do but little except as a connecting link to hold things together," and that now we begin to appreciate what a valuable connecting link his life has been. He spoke of Mr. Hays' untiring zeal as a Sunday School Superintendent and worker, always being present even when others more hardy might have reasonably excused themselves.

He said that Mr. Hays was so excellent a teacher in the Sunday school that he had been the theologian of the North Carolina Conference, and more than one distinguished divine had been of his class and sat under his teaching. That while Mr. Hays was for so long Superintendent and teacher of the Sunday school he was always progressive, and a man of broad religious views, not narrowly sectarian; that he accepted in its broadest sense the doctrine of the great apostle as to charity and made it the essence of his work; that it was a privilege to have been associated with him, and the benediction of that life would be appreciated by every member of the Sunday School.

The speaker stated that it was the custom of Mr. Hays at Sunday school to write on the blackboard the golden text and pointing to a section of blackboard, framed, hanging on the wall in the rear of the pulpit on which were written the words, "Lovest thou me." This, said he, was the last text he ever wrote on the blackboard in his life. Those chalk marks may be erased, but the influence of the character of John W. Hays will go on to eternity.

Concluding the speaker exhorted his hearers to imitate the example of him whom we mourn and follow in his footsteps in the service of the Master.

After the rendering in a sweet voice "Raise me Jesus," a favorite of Mr. Hays, by Mrs. J. S. Hunt, Dr. Ed T. White spoke of Mr. Hays as a church steward. He said that during the 17 years he had been associated with him on the board of stewards he had been their tower of strength; that his office had been the place of all meetings of church committees and himself the chairman, secretary and central figure; that his humble service and devotion to his church would stand as a monument to his memory; that he was so gentle, calm and self-denying that they sometimes imposed upon him, and in his humble, quiet way he had directly helped and benefited the church in a thousand ways that neither pastor nor the church were cognizant of. The speaker said these lines of Tenyson's were peculiarly appropriate:

"I would the great grew like thee who Grewest not alone in power and knowledge, But by years and hours in reverence and charity."

That no service was too arduous or painstaking for him, though fragile and delicately constituted. That he drew us not by power of mind or strength of arm nor did he hold us to him by hooks of steel, but by the gentle influence of a godly walk and by the tender cords of love.

That he was systematic in his work that by an approximate calculation he made 10,000 trips to church, walking 8,000 or 10,000 miles, sufficient to have taken him to the place where they tell us the garden of Eden was situated in far off Asia. That he was the same under all circumstances, whether arguing a case before the Supreme Court or conducting a weekly prayer meeting. In temperament smooth and even, with the finest equilibrium the speaker had ever seen displayed; a man of dignity, the essence of prudence and the quintessence of goodness. That from association with him the speaker could say he exhibited the truest and highest type of our Christian civilization.

Mr. John Booth beautifully sang "Not half has been told," the choir joining in the chorus, after which Mr. Sidney W. Minor spoke of Mr. Hays as the Christian Lawyer and Christian Citizen. He paid a very high tribute to his character, saying he was the most remarkable man Oxford ever produced; that as a Christian lawyer he was known throughout the State by bench and bar as being without a peer; that he never stooped to take advantage of any man, but always fought in the open and with unflinching courtesy and patience; that throughout his whole career there never entered the mind of any one the suspicion that Mr. Hays departed one iota from the path of duty as shown by a trained and unerring conscience. Mr. Minor feelingly related how Mr. Hays had influenced his own life for good, and what a debt of gratitude he owed him.

That as a Christian citizen the purity of his life and the nobility of his character were too well known to need further encomiums from him; that the influence of his life and teachings upon those with whom he came in contact would outlive time, and that he had left behind him a priceless heritage of a stainless life.

Mrs. John Booth then sweetly and touchingly sang "Thy will be done." The last speaker was the pastor, Rev. A. McCullen, who paid an eloquent and feeling tribute to the character of the fallen leader in Israel.

He began by saying he would always be glad he came to Oxford before Brother Hays died; that he had never met any one who so profoundly impressed him with the possibilities of human life, and that the influence of his personality would go with him through life.

Speaking of his character Mr. McCullen said he had a clear conception of truth; that while prejudice, passion and policy will warp most of us his soul sought after the truth. That as he had talked with him he could almost feel the frail body pass away and the great soul within shine forth.

He was a thinker, thought for himself, and statements made to him must be analyzed. He was a dignified man, yet very approachable, genial, lovable. He was my ideal of a lighted, courteous, intelligent, Christian gentleman. He was one man in whom if there was a fault I never discovered it.

He left his family the wealth of a good name and a pure character that no thief can steal or time can corrode. He was a gifted man. He had a creative brain. God did much for him, and he did much for himself. Lacking the brass to push himself to what the world calls success, he looked up and took his ideal of life from the God of the Universe and he won. He was a man of prayer. His faith went beyond cause and effect.

He loved the church of God and gave himself to it. I loved him in life and was glad when they placed his body in the cemetery next to that of my baby boy. May the mantle of this saintly man fall upon his bright boys and send them forth into the world to perpetuate such characters among men.

After another hymn the services closed with benediction by Rev. John E. Wool of the Presbyterian church.
