During his first term he stood as the lone star Democrat in Con-gress from North Carolina, the remaining representative from this State being of the "black-and-tan" variety. 102 40 He fought ship subsidies, trusts, and all other hurtful Republican legislation. He is not only a good talker in Congress, but a worker and a practical and constructive legislator. He stands for something and is a real power in that august body, having served on a number of important committees.

Mr. Kitchin is now entering upon a period of great usefuness. In statesmanship, as other things, it takes time and experience to prepare a man for his best work. It takes time for a Representative to acquaint himself with public questions and also to "learn the ropes" and how to se-cure the best legislation for his constituents. We are in the habit, sometimes, of taking away a Representative just at the time when he can be of some use to his constituents. It is possible we might secure another man as good as Mr. Kitchin, but we could certainly secure no better man. Should we even nominate for the next term as good a man as Mr. Kitchin he would have to get the experience which Mr. Kitchin already

THE FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

The 57th Congress met Monday and probably never before in the history of the United States, certainly not since the close of the Civil War, has a United States Congress been confronted with problems as intricate and as far reaching as those that will devolve upon this Congress.

The acquisition of a vast area of new territory with millions of inhab- cent stamps to pay expense of mailing itants whose interests are at once antagonistic and identical with our falo, N. Y. own but who must be governed from Washington presents the most complex of problems.

Vast monopolies known as trusts, with stupendous capital behind them, must be investigated and restrictive legislation enacted as the mass of the people of this country are rapidly be coming their slaves. Immense combines of transportation lines must receive attention, the people demanding a curtailment of their alleged rapacity and the promoters strenously opposing governmental interference. The enormous and grinding revenues taxes, which are a burden on the people, should be reduced fifty milions dollars, but will the Republicans do it? These are a few of the weighty maters that will exact from 57th Congress the highest degrees of statesnanship and political perspicacity. Large Republican majorities in ooth the Senate and the House will ender easy of accomplishment all egislation which that party may deermine upon and will fix upon the mrty the responsibility of all measares which may be adopted or shirkd. In addition to the responsibility which rests upon the Republicans in longress there is the disadvantage f having a new and untried Presient in the WhiteHouse who takes a lown the throats of the Southern people, but he will never do it, no iever, as long as his name is Negrovelt. Roosevelt is young, impulsive, und untried. His eratic nature may lead him to regard as irksome the great Senatorial prerogatives which custom have established and an antagonism between the White House and the Senate would almost result in a disaster to the Republican party which should come as it is against the interest of the masses as it fosters and passes laws to protect trusts because said trusts furnish the "cold hard stuff" to run the campaign and buy votes with.

his bill lowering the duties on steel and will push it to successful issue. He believes he has the approval of the entire West and that action which will curtail the profits of the steel trust. Senator Vest, of Missouri, is confident that the Republicans will split on the trust question, that they dare not revise the tariff, and that no reciprocity treaties will be ratified; he says that the Democrats will watch every move and with an unprecedented singleness of purpose will avail themseves of every opportunity to win the cofidence of the people.

Senator Simmons is at his post in Washington and will serve his State in the Senate with credit and honor. He has appointed Mr. A. D. Watts, the handsome editor of the States-2 00 ville Mascot, his secretary.
