BIG TWO KNOCKED OUT,

A Strong Negro Woman More Than they Were Able to Manage.

Mr. Charley Turner went out Tuesday morning to try to persuade Aggie Paschall, a strong negro woman, to vacate a house on Stewart hill, about two miles from town. When Mr. Turner mentioned his business she said: "Looker yer man I aint gwine no whar, and dest stay out dar or dare is gwine be truble. When the gallant officer attempted to go into the house she showed fight and he narrowly escaped being paralyzed by a heavy blow from the almost iron fist of Aggie. After several attacks on Fort Paschall Colonel Turner withdrew in good order as Aggie was too well fortified with muscle, and besides did not care to strike a woman. He returned to town at once and informed General E. K. Howard, his heavy weight chief, of his attack on Fort Paschall and his repulse without being hit by a black projectile
