Bitten by a Spider.
 Through blood poisoning caused by a spider bite, John Washington of Boqueronville, Tex., would have lost his leg, which became a mass of running sores had he not been persuaded to try Bucklen's Arnica Salve. He writes: "The first application relieved, and four boxes healed all the sores." Heals every sore. 25c. at R. L. Hamilton's, druggist.

Learn to Shake Hands.
 One does not need to grasp the hand in a death like grip, but there is something about a good handshake which is the silent interpreter of a welcome. A person possessing a great deal of personal magnetism may just take your hand in his and the cordial welcome is recognized without even so much as the slightest pressure of the fingers. Others may have a good grip, which is more like a clutch. There is no set rule for handshaking unless a person bears in mind that handshaking must be a feeling expressed with the hands and not the eye or voice. If only done through a matter of form, there is no earthly use shaking hands at all. Strong intuition serves a great many persons, and to grasp a cold, clammy hand, which lies like a piece of marble in one's hand, is to make a big-hearted person feel like he had come in contact with the wrong party.

Why Did They Do It.
 Without any reference to the whiskey question whatever, we would love to know why the most furious deliberative body on earth granted the right to vote on liquor to Creedmoor, a hole in the ground in Granville county with but 60 odd voters, and turned right around and denied the same right to Lexington, a town with upwards of 700 voters, a population between five and six thousand, and room enough to hide a dozen or two Creedmoors. The legislature granted several other absurdly small villages the same privilege it granted to Creedmoor and denied Lexington, and yet it is being said in high places that the legislature was consistent on the liquor question. It may have been on that question, but it was not consistent on the question of local self-government. It is very probably true that no town or individual has a right to sell whiskey, and it is very probably right that none should be allowed to, but in the name of common sense, if any town is to have the right to vote on it, then give them all the right, and if none should have the right even to express itself, then give the right to none. Waiving all other considerations, and bringing it down to a question of justice and fairness, the legislature acted mightily queerly in letting a place like Creedmoor vote and refusing to let a place like Lexington.—Lexington Dispatch.

Happened in Charlotte in a Week.
 Hell has broke loose in Charlotte, as well as Georgia—a citizen killed a fellowman, a Sunday school teacher has skipped with $73,000, a whiskey still was captured in the heart of the city, a bawdy house discovered on a main street and a chicken thief arrested, all inside of a week in the Queen City and hit a pro-high-bition town, with a revival in full blast.—Charlotte Observer.
