Chairman Adams on Butler.

The finest thing Chairman Spencer B. Adams ever did in his life was the roast he gave Mary Ann Butler in Washington last week. Democrats and Republicans alike despise Butler, and it is distinctly pleasing to everybody that the chairman of the republican party, speaking for his party so plainly shows the esteem in which he holds the gentleman from Sampson. Chairman Adams declared that the North Carolina republicans were for Roosevelt, and he said of the charge that Butler had made that republican leaders here were trying to defeat Roosevelt and his policies: "If the exsenator was as well known here (in Washington) as he is in North Carolina, no credence whatever would be given his assertions."
