

REMINISCENCES OF AN OLD SOLDIER.

That tall, intrepid old soldier, Squire J. P. Cannady, in spite of Saturday's murk weather, came in town that day and paid a visit to the editorial den. Knowing that the squire has a great many interesting reminiscences locked up in his chest, the editors beguiled him into talking about the war period, and after much persuasion made him promise faithfully that he would write several stories for the Ledger. He knows dozens of things that Cranville people should know and many of them are known only by the squire himself.

"Squire, what command were you in?" the old soldier was asked.

"Fifty-fifth North Carolina, John R. Davis' brigade, Heath's division of A. P. Hill army corps, which was the 3rd."

"Now, 'Squire be right nice now and tell us a good story."

After looking first at his watch and then out the door at the weather, he was at last teased into relating an incident that he personally knew of.

"As I told you," said he as he shifted his long alpenstock from the left to the right side of his chair, "I was a member of the 55th North Carolina which was brigaded with three Mississippi regiments, the 11th, and 7th, 42nd. The incident I am about to tell you happened on the 3rd day of the battle of Gettysburg, which you know was July of '63.

"For some time, but how long I don't know, heavy cannonading had been raging between the two armies. There was a fellow of the 11th Mississippi, named Jerry Gay, stationed on the left of his regiment, which was joined to the right of ours.

"One of the Yankee shells came whizzing by and tore away a part of the unhappy soldier's right arm, right side, and right hip, making a grewsome spectacle. As he fell and struck the ground I saw that he was mortally wounded. When he hit the ground, he turned over and ran his hand over his face, and then over his wounded parts.

"While he was being examined, the litter corps came along and bore him to the field hospital, whence he was carried to the general hospital. I was the commander of the litter corps of twenty men and therefore went to see the wounded soldier carried back to field hospital.

"He was stimulated with brandy. One of the doctors said:

"Jerry, you are mortally wounded, and can't live long," at the same time giving him more brandy.

"How long do you think I can live," asked the brave fellow?

"Can't tell exactly, but about two, three, or four hours," was the response.

"Then," said the dying man, "I want to write to my mother."

"Can you write," he was asked.

"Yes, I think I can." Pencil and paper was given him, and leaning for support against an old house, Jerry wrote as follows:

"My dear mother: I am most mortally wounded and will soon be dead. I fell at my post and this note will be handed to you by the doctor and I want you to give my dying regards to my folks, and to my intended, you know who. Tell them I remembered them to the last."

Then he put the pencil in the gaping wound at his side and added in the letter, "this is my blood," and signed it, "Your devoted son, Jerry Gay." And in a very brief while the poor fellow was dead.

"That was awful wasn't it 'Squire?" "Yes it was awful," the squire replied. Oh! I tell you he was a fine fellow. I don't know whether he was an officer or not, but he was a wealthy, accomplished, and well educated young man. He was soon to have been married.

"Well," the old soldier said, as he again looked at his watch, "I must be going. Good luck to you."

"Now, you are going to write some of these interesting incidents for us aren't you?"

"Well, I dunno! I am so busy farming that I don't have much time, but if I can find time I will try and do something for you. Mean weather we are having, ain't it?"

The readers of the Ledger can look forward with pleasure to some of the squire's interesting letters.

MR. JOHN KINNEY

A Prominent Indianapolis Lawyer, Says, "After Grippe Take Vinol. It Built Me up and Made Me Feel Strong."

"The grippe left me in a nervous, weakened, run-down condition. Nothing seemed to restore my strength. At last I tried Vinol with the very best of results. It built me up and made me feel like a different man, and I am now better and stronger than I have been for years." John Kinney, Indianapolis, Ind.

This is because Vinol is a genuine tonic and body builder which contains peptonate of iron together with every one of the body-building medicinal elements of cod liver oil but without one drop of oil to upset the stomach and retard its work. Vinol acts directly on the stomach, creates a healthy appetite, and enables the digestive organs to obtain the necessary elements from the food eaten to make rich, red blood, healthy flesh and muscle tissue and create strength.

Your money back if Vinol fails to benefit. Hamilton Drug Co., Oxford.

Letter to Pete Bullock, Oxford, N.C.

Dear Sir: We can't get over talking about those two houses at Lufkin, Tex., owned by Judge I D Fairchild.

Both houses are exactly alike and both painted at same time by J M Lorraine.

One took 15 1/2 gallons Devoe; the other 25 gallons of another paint sold at same price.

That 25 gallon paint is weak and 15 per cent whitening; that's why it took 9 1/2 gallons more.

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOE & CO.

Like Finding Money.

J. G. Hall, the popular druggist, is making an offer that is just like finding money for he is selling a regular 50 cent bottle of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half-price. In addition to this large discount he agrees to return the money to any purchaser whom the specific does not cure.

It is only recently, through the solicitation of Druggist J. G. Hall that this medicine could be bought for less than fifty cents, he urges the proprietors to allow him to sell it at this reduced price for a little while, agreeing to sell a certain amount. The result has justified his good judgment for the sale has been something remarkable.

Anyone who suffer with headache, dyspepsia, dizziness, sour stomach, dyspepsia before the eyes, or any liver trouble, should take advantage of this opportunity, for Dr Howard's specific will cure all these troubles. But if by any chance it should not, J. G. Hall will return your money.

The specific is very pleasant to take, coming in the form of small granules, and there are sixty doses in every package.
