OXFORD A GROWING CITY

MR. WILLIAM C. LYON OF CHAR-LOTTE OBSERVER WRITES A-BOUT OUR GOOD TOWN.

Newspaper Man Finds Lots of Things To Excite His Attention-One of Our Manufacturing Plants.

In the Charlotte Observer of the 15th, the following article appeared, Mr. William C. Lyon, being the author:

So much has been said and written of the growth and development of North Carolina cities in the pastfew years and there has been such a similarity in the growth of the various towns that one hardly knows how to tell of distinctive growth of any particular town. I have been in a number of these growing cities in the past few months and have seen the rapid soldes day are making toth and development.

Since the organization of the Agricultural Association last week there has been much comment upon the subject. From all quarters of the County the people are saying that it Most Progressive of Communities- will be a tremendous power for progress. Numbers of farmers who have been worked up to an unprecedented enthusiasm have declared their in-"tention of raising the best crop that they have ever cultivated. So far Southern Granville has taken the keenest interest but the northern parts are waking up and are determined to do themsleves proud.
