LOVE OF ANIMALS IS KEY TO CHARACTER

In an "Introduction," written for "Thoughts on Humane Education," P. P. Claxton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, says: "The really great are ever gentle and kind and the greatest are the kindest and most gentle. Cruelty and indifference to the feelings of one's fellows or of any sentient beings are marks of coarseness of nature or want of proper instruction and training. Fineness of fibre, inherited or acquired, in man or woman, as in woods and textiles and cordage, is a sure element of strength.

"Thoughtfulness of the feelings and interests and welfare of others comes chiefly from careful instruction and training in childhood and youth. Learning to think and care for the welfare of wild and domestic animals makes one more thoughtful and careful of the feelings and welfare of men, women and children.

"How much richer and fuller is the life of the man or woman who has learned to sympathize with all nature and to treat all creatures kindly and mercifully. For indeed the quality of mercy is not strained. It blesses him that gives even more than him that receives. Our best living is not in abstract and logical thinking, but in true and kindly living and in actions prompted by good will. He who has learned to regard the birds as little brothers of the air and to look upon domestic animals and the beasts of the field as his less fortunate kindred who need his help finds a pleasure in their color and voice and motions, and a joy in the contemplation of their habits unknown to those who are without this feeling of kinship. He feels, as others cannot, the throb of the life of the world and rejoices in the recognition of his kinship with the universe.

"The teaching which leads to these results is a part of the inalienable rights of all children and must be included in the education of home and school if we would replace the old cruelties by thoughtful kindness and make the new world a world of freedom and progress and brotherly love."

SIXTH SUNDAY AFTER TRINITY

The June Wedding Bells are silent, and it may be appropriate to explain the preference of our Church for the undecorated Church Building for Wedding Ceremonies; it is not altogether a question of taste with us, and of course, other religious bodies are left, without criticism, to their own ideas. We believe that to decorate the Church draws a line between those who have money and friends, and those who are not so provided for, and the House of God should be exactly the same for all. When two miserable sinners drift up the aisle for the wedding ceremony, in a Church more profusely adorned for them, than for the Presence of Almighty God in the ordinary Christian assembly, something is wrong with somebody, and St. Mark 11:15.16 suggests itself automatically. The natural joy, with its reverence, sobriety and fear of God, found expression, in former divorceless days, in the reception of the Holy Eucharist at an earlier hour. The familiar expression "Wedding Breakfast" comes from the meal after that early Eucharist.

The Farming Business

The equipment and facilities of the National Bank of Granville has always been perfected and developed especially with a view to meeting the banking requirements of men in the farming business.

Thirty years of success have proved that the encouragement which we extend to farmers by making loans on liberal terms and by doing everything within our power to keep Granville County in the forefront of the agricultural communities of the state, is thoroughly appreciated.

We invite you to join the thousands of customers who carry their bank accounts with us. Give us an opportunity to prove how valuable our service is to those who have any funds to protect or financial matters of any kind to transact.
