SERBIAN PRINCE LIKES POMP

Regent Buys Gorgeous Carriages and Furnishings Austrian Ex-Royalty Discarded.

Vienna.—Alexander, the prince regent of Serbia, is surrounding himself with some of the second-hand regal panoply of the Hapsburgs. A commission from Belgrade has bought two of the many state carriages stored in the old royal stables here, one of semi-state vehicles for official calls and the other one of the splendid glass and gold coaches used on occasional occasions. The commission also takes back to Belgrade the complete furnishings of one of the state apartments in the Hofburg for installation in the Kara-

NOTORIOUS BARBARY COAST

Made Famous in Present Generation by Operations of the Chieftain Mulai Ahmed Raisuli—Recalls Famous Perdicaris Case.

Madrid.—That part of Morocco called the Spanish zone, where Spain's troops have just suffered disastrous reverses at the hands of the Moors with the loss of thousands of men and thousands of square miles of territory, is part of the notorious Barbary coast whose pirates preyed on European commerce for many years and carried Europeans into slavery.

In the present generation it has been made famous by the operations of the chieftain, Mulai Ahmed er-Raisuli, who captured and held for ransom Ion Perdicaris, an American citizen, in 1905. This was in the administration of President Roosevelt and evoked from Secretary Hay the historic phrase demanding "Perdicaris alive or Raisuli dead!" It resulted in the almost immediate release of Perdicaris.

Three Races in Land.

Three races inhabit Morocco, the original Berbers, or mountaineers, who conquered Spain on three different occasions; the mixed race of Arabs and Berbers known as Moors both of which races are generally Mohammedans; and the colonies of Jews which inhabit the coast cities and control the majority of the country's commerce.

The Spanish zone, where the fighting is now in progress, is a narrow strip of land along the northwestern coast fronting on the Mediterranean sea. It extends from Algeria, under control of the French, to the Atlantic ocean on the west. It does not, however, include the extreme northwestern tip of land on which is located the city of Tangier.

Spanish troops have fought the Moors for centuries, but it was only in 1912 that the northern littoral of Morocco was assigned to Spain under the terms of the Franco-Spanish treaty signed in that year. Since then Spain has been engaged at intervals in sporadic attempts to maintain her authority, with varying success and failure.

Want More Order.

Both the French and Spanish governments decided in January, 1920, to make military demonstrations in their respective zones for the purpose of preparing the way to more orderly government. The French zone was soon pacified. The Spanish territory, which is administered by Gen. Damaso Berenguer as high commissioner, was not so submissive.

Spanish troops at first made their base on the Atlantic coast of Morocco at El-Arisha, also known as Larache. From there they penetrated well into the interior and captured a number of Moorish strongholds, including the so-called secret city of Sheshawan. For some time little activity has been reported in that western district of Morocco.

The Spaniards, however, sent another expedition under the command of General Silvestre, who established a base at Melilla, midway on a promontory which extends from the eastern end of the Spanish zone northward into the Mediterranean. From that point, General Silvestre's troops attempted to penetrate southward into the interior. Early successes were reported, but last spring the Spaniards encountered strong native troops and hostile tribesmen, estimated to number 20,000 and said to be well armed and equipped with artillery. The present reverses of the Spanish forces had their beginning early in
