OFFERS AN ANCIENT BIBLE FOR SALE

After being nearly three hundred years in one family, a fine old Wittenberg Bible was offered for sale in New York recently by a Russian nobleman who fled from Petrograd just before the revolution. This handsome young man, whose hair is amazingly yellow and eyes like a blue tulip, who speaks several languages and is highly educated, has held on to the family Bible until almost the very last of the valuables that he managed to save from a magnificent estate.

Bound in heavy leather, with tarnished brass clasps and deep-cut lettering in the title, the big tome stands about 14 by 10, by 6 inches. It was compiled by Prof. Leonhartus Hutters who wrote the introduction, and was printed by the court printer at Wittenberg, dated July 22, 1606.

Picture Of Luther.
In the front are several queer, full-page drawings in black and white of church notables, starting off with Martin Luther himself, bare-foot, and wearing a quaint robe falling a little below the knee. The seven electors and other princes of that day and time are shown in their Sunday clothes, with nodding plumes upon their hats and rich vestees of embroidered silks. The double-column, large-printed pages are worn at the edges and stained with age, but every word is clear and easy to read, if you know German. Now and then there are exquisitely repaired torn places. There is a mellow old fragrance about the leather, and an ancient, musty smell to the paper, but its back is as sturdy as the day it left the bindery that stood fairly in the shadow of the church whose doors still bear the prints of the nails where Martin Luther's ninety-five theses were posted. The Bible was taken from Holland to St. Petersburg by the great-great-great-great-great grandfather of the present owner, when, as personal physician to Peter the Great, he joined the court in the new imperial city. For two hundred thirty-four years, then it was handed down from father to son, cherished and guarded by each generation.

In Fugitive's Baggage.
Until the Bolshevik outrages in Russia, the massive old volume had never known anything but dignity, quiet and splendor. Since then it has been a fugitive's baggage, has hidden in strange quarters in Paris, has crossed the ocean, and been transported around Fifth avenue busses in New York city. It was finally placed on exhibition at headquarters of the National Lutheran council, to be sold to some foreign-tongued outsider in a strange land, to bring enough money to take care for another two or three months, of the nobleman's young wife and little son, who is the last of the line, while he finds work. His father and mother, who refused to leave the old home in Petrograd, died during the early days of the revolution.

How to make it

Use level measurements for all materials

- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- Grated rind of 1/2 orange
- 1 egg and 1 yolk
- 2 1/2 cups flour
- 4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
- 1 cup milk
- 1 1/2 squares (1 1/2 oz.) of unsweetened chocolate (melted)
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Cream shortening. Add sugar and grated orange rind. Add beaten egg yolks. Sift together flour, salt and Royal Baking Powder and add alternately with the milk; lastly fold in one beaten egg white. Divide batter into two parts. To one part add the chocolate. Put by table-spoonfuls, alternating dark and light batter, into three greased layer cake pans. Bake in moderate oven 20 minutes.

FILLING AND ICING

- 3 tablespoons melted butter
- 3 cups confectioner's sugar
- (Powdered sugar may be used but does not make as smooth icing)
- Grated rind of 1/2 orange and pulp of 1 orange
- 2 tablespoons orange juice
- 1 egg white
- 3 squares (3 oz.) unsweetened chocolate

Put butter, sugar, orange juice and rind into bowl. Cut pulp from orange, removing skin and seeds, and add. Beat all together until smooth. Fold in beaten egg white. Spread this icing on layer used for top of cake. While icing is soft, sprinkle with unsweetened chocolate shaved in fine pieces with sharp knife (use 1/2 square). To remaining icing add 2 1/2 squares unsweetened chocolate which has been melted. Spread this thickly between layers and on sides of cake.
