LECTURE THURSDAY NIGHT

He Is Remembered From His School Days Here.

The Rev. Frederick Blount Drane of Nenana, Alaska, who has recently been elected to take the place and work of the late and lamented Archdeacon Stuck of Alaska, will address the congregation of St. Stephen's Church, Thursday night at 7:30, telling of his work and experience in that field, where he has served several years. Mr. Drane is the son of the Rev. Dr. Drane, rector of Edenton, N. C., and is affectionately remembered from his school days here. He has proven himself especially faithful and effective in that desolate field.

The leaves do not have to be moistened or prepared in any manner whatever, previous to the treatment. After the treatment has been applied the tobacco is wet, but it is not necessary to dry it first; one may roll it immediately. It is claimed the treatment does not impair the elasticity and flexibility of the leaves. The process is also to be applied when mouldy leaves are to be restored to usefulness. The Germans expect to use this new method in order to make their domestic tobacco more paratable, for German grown tobacco is not only dark in shade but also contains a rather strong charge of nicotine. In addition, the Germans expect to treat Sumatra wrappers in a similar manner, because most of the Sumatra wrappers are too dark for the German taste Besides, it is claimed.
