In the Simplon tunnel under the Alps, which is by far the greatest tunnel in the world, the quantity of water flowing out of the southern end from the many veins encountered in the heart of the mountain, amounted to 15,000 gallons a minute, and furnished sufficient power to compress the air by which the drills were worked, and to refrigerate the tunnel. The necessity for refrigeration may be judged from the fact that the heat in the deeper parts of the tunnel rose as high as 150 degrees Fahrenheit when not artificially reduced.

A proclamation in 1580 prohibited the erection of additional buildings in London.

"Speak, Speak, Thou Awful Guests!"

Looks like a display in a medical clinic, doesn't it? Well, what if you were looking at them and they all started to dance? That's just what happens! These are Vassar College girls dressed for the "skeleton dance" at the Junior "prom."

Lost Sent Home By Post.

English people commonly admit that Americans know London better than they do themselves, but there are exceptions to the knowledgeableness of the brother from across the seas. Witness the American who could not find his way back to his hotel from the intricate mazes of the East End. Going into a post office, he asked how he could get back. "We can post you back," was the immediate and surprising answer, and in a few minutes he was on his way home by express letter post, in charge, that is to say, of a diminutive boy. Even Londoners are often still unaware that the British postal authorities accept human beings as "correspondence," and that whatever the weight or size, a flat rate of sixpence a mile is charged.—Christian Science Monitor.

—Among Welsh miners it is a superstition that when a new man is taken on at a mine he is never to be permitted to go down with the first shift. He must go down with the last shift, otherwise misfortune will follow.

MARRIAGE IN BASUTO LAND

Bride is Bought for So Many Cattle and Has Nothing to Say Concerning Transaction.

A Basuto girl is looked upon by her father as his bank, for when she reaches a marriageable age so many cattle will have to be handed over for her by the bridegroom, says a writer in the London Daily Mail.

There is little of love and romance in a Basuto girl's marriage. This is not to say that she has no feelings or does not hear the call of romance. Like every girl in this world, these things come into her life and she thinks and dreams as we all do.

But there is no wooing or winning and none of the beauty of realized young dreams for her.

The man who wants her does not consult her—he has known her and she probably pleased his eye, and so the dusky Hendriks goes to the father and says that he wishes to marry Maluma.

The matter is then discussed by the heads of the family and their relations, and the girl gets to know of the coming marriage only by a chance word that may be dropped here and there.

Generally the principal point of discussion among the heads of the family is how many cows and sheep are to be handed over to the father by the bridegroom as "lobola" (a marriage dowry) for the girl.

This being arranged—usually a payment of so many cows down and so many to be handed over later—the girl is informed that Hendriks is to be her husband for better or for worse—generally worse—and whether he be quite an old man or a young man Maluma has to sacrifice herself and go as she is told.

The young natives living near civilization have discarded the old custom and marry without "lobola" being paid over.

The marriage takes place in a native church. The wedding party and the guests are all dressed in European clothes and they return from the church by wagon to the hut of the girl's father on his master's farm, where sheep have been slaughtered and much Kaffir beer made, and dancing and singing go on continually for two days.

The music is made by a concertina and guitar, and in all Basuto dances the male and female never dance together.

No Solitude for Him.

Highland Light, on a cliff 90 feet above the sea at the tip end of Cape Cod, is credited with being the scene of a real tragedy.

The profoundly moving story concerns Bill, one of the keepers of the light, and incidentally one of the guides to the hundreds of tourists who flock to the lighthouse. Bill, according to his own version of the affair, formerly worked on a railroad. He used to be a conductor, and he necessarily came in contact with many people. In fact, there never was a time when he did not have people around, and Bill grew weary of his kind.

Looking about for a more desirable occupation he hit upon lighthouse keeping as the perfect job for a man who wanted solitude. And it just happened—such things do happen—that instead of the lonely spot he hoped for, Bill drew Highland, one of the most frequented spots of the greatly frequented cape. Every motor-car going to or from Provincetown stops there, and in addition buses from two or three companies make the trip daily from Provincetown. And Bill's life now is one long business of guiding young women up the narrow stairs of the lighthouse and of explaining to them what it is that makes the wheels go around. Bill is bearing up under it, but he feels that fate has not dealt fairly with him.—Brockton Enterprise.

NEXT DOSE CALOMEL MAY SALIVATE YOU

It Is Mercury, Quicksilver, Shock's Liver and Attacks Your Bones.

Calomel salivation is horrible. It swells the tongue, loosens the teeth and starts rheumatism. There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel. It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Calomel is a dangerous drug, besides it may make you feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than treacherous calomel your money is waiting for you.

—The Chesapeake Bay blue crab, the largest specimen found along the Atlantic coast, is considered the best. While these crustaceans were very plentiful a few years ago, it is becoming evident that unless a "closed season" is declared they will become as rare and high priced as terrapin. The little pea crabs, found within oyster shells are considered a delicacy, while the cancer magister, the large crab of the Pacific coast, is extensively used for food in that part of the country.

—The mayor of Youngstown, Ohio, was elected on a freak platform. His platform provided for jailing any citizen who paid taxes under a recent revaluation; for discontinuance of street car service, turning the streets over to jitney buses, and the dismissal of the entire police force if it "did not meet its ways." He has lived in Youngstown only three months, starting in business there with a barrel of potatoes and a wheelbarrow. Now he has a big business.

—Indigo, which is obtainable from plants of several species, is probably the oldest dye known to mankind. At the present time the bulk of the world's supply of indigo is obtained chemically from aniline. The industry is rapidly diminishing. About the only regions where indigo farming still prevails on a commercial scale are Bengal, in India, and Salvador, in Central America.
