County Home Superintendent Says He Is "Innocent" in Advocating Plan to Draw Social Security

The chairman of the Board of County Commissioners said yesterday that James Temple, field representative of the Social Security Board, a week earlier told commissioners he would approve the plan which County Home Superintendent Lee B. Newton had placed before the board for consideration, enabling Newton to continue his duties at a reduced salary while drawing social security benefits.

The board chairman, George D. Morton, quoted Temple as saying "it wouldn't look exactly right" in view of the fact that no reduction was to be made in the duties of the home superintendent.

With .22 calibre rifle bullets whizzing over their heads, "second nighter" gas thieves escaped by rawling across a muddy field in the Dickerson section of the county last Friday morning.

Behind the gun was Clifton Walters, who had prepared for the return of thieves who the night before had drained the gas tank of the school bus driven by his son, Cecil. The gunfire sent the thieves on their way Friday morning before they had completed their mission
